Fireproof Files Could Save Firm

. . . IN BLAZE

By RICHARD BUDIG
Star Staff Writer

Pretend, for a moment, that an uncontrollable fire levels a city block in downtown Lincoln.

Say 10 businesses are wiped out.

Odds are that within 24 hours five of the firms will be well on their way to reopening.

Another may or may not be able to swing it.

Four will never do another day's business.

Inadequate

Inadequate protection of business records is the major reason, according to DeWayne McIntyre, Lincoln fire inspector.

For every 100 businesses destroyed by fire last year, 43 were unable to start again.

Seventeen out of every 100 were unable to produce a single record.

"Too often, I find local businesses using an old wooden desk or a plain metal filing cabinet as a record file, McIntyre said.

Thinking a building labeled fireproof is actually fireproof is another fallacy, he declared.

"True, concrete or brick walls won't burn, but other items, such as desks, chairs and records will burn."

With proper record protection, a burned out business can usually get its operation fairly well under way within a few hours to within a few days

Hard Job

"It's a tremendous job trying to find out who owes the burned out firm money and whom the firm owes when records are destroyed," he advised.

And, in cases where a firm's books are lost, "their credit rating usually goes to pot," he warned.

Business managers and executives usually think in terms of guarding records and valuable papers against theft, McIntyre noted.

In comparison, loss by fire far outweighs loss by burglary.

$1.3 Billion

During 1964, fire loss in the nation was placed at $1.3 billion while loss from burglary was set at $248 million.

Federal Bureau of Investigation statistics indicate, however, that if the total destruction done to property which resulted from burglary were known and could be added, the cost of the crime would be substantially increased.

A major deterrent to record loss is proper storage, such as safes which are rated by the number of minutes or hours they will withstand intense heat. They range from one-half hour, one hour, two hours and four hours.

Classify Records

Firms should survey and classify records in terms of importance. Next, a firm should evaluate its structure and estimate the length of time a fire will burn there. McIntyre said his office would "be glad" to help make the burn-evaluation.

Once records are classified and the firm's burn-rate is established, a reputable container supplier can make suggestions as to the proper type protective cabinet needed, McIntyre said.

Testimony Secret At Pope's Hearing

. . . BY JUDICIAL DIRECTIVE

A pre-trial hearing in the Duane E. Pope bank robbery-slaying case was continued Wednesday until Sept. 28, after part of the testimony taken during the three-day hearing had been placed under secrecy wraps by judicial directive.

Pope is a 22-year-old Roxbury, Kan., farm youth who is charged with robbing a Big Springs bank and killing three employes on June 4, just four days after he graduated from McPherson (Kan.) College.

Federal District Judge Robert Van Pelt Wednesday directed newsmen and other courtroom spectators to make no public or private disclosure of testimony given by Robert V. Harman Jr., FBI special agent in Kansas City, as it pertained to two statements given by Pope after his surrender to Kansas City police June 11.

'Rights Violated'

The pre-trial hearing dealt with a defense motion to suppress the statements on the grounds that Pope's constitutional rights against self-incrimination and his right to the services of an attorney were violated at the time.

U.S. Atty. Theodore Richling asked that the ruling on the motion to suppress be continued until the court rules on a government motion to secure psychiatric examination of Pope.

"The issue of the defendant's mental condition has been raised and the government is not now prepared to offer expert testimony" concerning it, Richling said.

Pope's attorneys had called a Lincoln psychiatrist, Dr. John Baldwin, to the stand Monday to testify as to Pope's mental condition at the time he gave the statements June 11 and 12 and since then.

The censorship was invoked for the first time with Harman's appearance Wednesday.

"What you have heard here is not to be discussed outside this courtroom," Judge Van Pelt told newsmen and spectators.

Must Be Kept Private

He said any information as to the contents of the statements given by Pope must be kept private until such time as the statements may—if at all—be received as evidence during the actual trial of Pope before a jury.

Defense lawyers had contended that a public hearing would put information in the hands of prospective jurors which could prejudice Pope's case.

Judge Van Pelt over-ruled a renewed defense motion that all persons be cleared from the courtroom during cross-examination of Harman.

He also over-ruled a defense motion to bar specifically two Deuel County officials, Sheriff Floyd Stahr and County Atty. R. E. Richards.

State charges of murder have been filed in Deuel County and Pope could later be tried on these charges although the initial prosecution is being made under a federal indictment.

Spectators

Stahr and Richards have been attending this week's hearings as spectators.

Judge Van Pelt also disclosed Wednesday that a "New York concern," not further identified, had requested permission to televise Pope's trial when it begins Nov. 1, but the request had been denied.

3 Major Fronts Report Fighting

By The Associated Press

Fighting was reported on three major fronts of the India-Pakistani conflict Wednesday while U.N. Secretary-General U Thant left for New York without the cease-fire he sought.

A government spokesman in Rawalpindi said Pakistani forces repulsed Indian attacks in the Sialkot and Lahore sectors and maintained "constant pressure on the enemy" in the Khem sector. There were also reports of continued air action.

Thant said he thought both sides want to stop fighting. He is due in New York Thursday, and the Security Council will meet Friday to resume debate on the conflict.

In New Delhi, Prime Minister Lal Bahadur Shastri said Thant's mission had failed to bring peace to the subcontinent and that the war must be pressed against Pakistan.

While informed sources said Tuesday that Shastri was giving serious consideration to a cessation of hostilities, it was President Mohammed Ayub Khan of Pakistan who talked peace Wednesday.

Ayub told a news conference at Rawalpindi that President Johnson should be the peacemaker. (See story on Page 2.)

Asked whether Pakistan still stood by its declaration that there must be a plebiscite in Kashmir within three months, Ayub said, "It's a matter that can be negotiated." This was the first time any Pakistani official has said that the vote question could be negotiated.

Way Kept Open

In Washington, Johnson reaffirmed U.S. support for U.N. efforts, but kept the way open for an American role in ending the conflict.

A Pakistani military spokesman said the Indians have suffered heavy casualties in the Sialkot sector, southeast of Rawalpindi and roughly opposite the Indian border from Jammu, winter capital of Kashmir.

On the Lahore front, the Indians were said to have launched artillery and armor attacks against the Pakistanis, but the spokesman said these were stopped.

Lahore, West Pakistan's second city, is only 10 miles from the border and opposite Amritsar, the holy city of India's bearded Sikhs. Khem Karan, another front on which action was reported, lies about 25 miles south of Lahore.

There was no indication, however, whether India intends trying to push deeper into Pakistan in operations it said were designed to prevent an attack on India.

Americans Evacuated

As the fighting was reported continuing seven U.S. Air Force C130 transport planes ferried 606 Americans, mostly women and children, from the war zone of Lahore in Pakistan to Tehran, Iran.

Newsmen asked Foreign Minister Swaran Singh to elaborate on India's intentions but he would say only: "It is not for the aggressor to pick the point where he wants to fight."

The Pakistanis have put up stiffer resistance than many Indians expected, which was made clear by the defense ministry's updated casualty list for the period Aug. 5 to Sept. 14.

Pakistani losses — 1,847 killed, 320 captured. 55 planes destroyed, 250 tanks destroyed and 34 captured.

Indian losses — 612 killed, with no wounded or prisoner figures listed, about 50 to 60 tanks destroyed. Losses of aircraft were not revealed. In additional New Delhi said Pakistani air raids have killed 150 Indians and injured 200.

Cites Preconditions

Singh told newsmen three Pakistani preconditions were responsible for what he called Thant's failure:

Evacuation of all forces from disputed Kashmir, stationing of an African-Asian peace force there and a plebiscite on the Himalayan state's future.

Singh said India had made clear from the start it considered Kashmir an integral part of India, "but in the interests of peace we were prepared to agree to call for a cessation of hostilities."

Morrison, LBJ Discuss Senate

. . . TALK ABOUT RACE IN '66

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

Gov. Frank Morrison said Wednesday that President Johnson and he discussed Nebraska's 1966 U.S. Senate race during their meeting at the White House Tuesday.

The Senate contest was covered during "a short discussion about Nebraska politics," the governor said.

Also participating in the political discussion was Democratic National Committeeman Marvin Werve of Omaha.

By Next Year

Morrison said he has not yet made a decision about his future plans, but expects to do so "not later than the forepart of next year."

His political future, the governor emphasized, is "a decision which must be made by myself—and the voters of Nebraska, if I should elect to be a candidate for public office in 1966.

"The decision will be made only by me and by the voters."

Not Politics

The governor declined to reveal any of President Johnson's conversation, and noted that "the purpose of my visit was not to discuss my political future nor to discuss Nebraska politics."

Morrison was at the White House at the President's invitation to witness the signing into law of the technical assistance act aimed particularly at aiding small businesses which cannot afford expensive research.

After the governor's private visit with the President, Werve joined the pair for the political discussion.

Future Plans

Morrison's future plans will presumably involve either candidacy for the U.S. Senate seat now held by Republican Carl Curtis; candidacy for a fourth consecutive gubernatorial term; appointment to a leading federal judicial or administrative post, or return to private law practice and retirement from public life.

"There are too many contingencies, too many uncertainties for me to decide now," the governor declared.

Among them, he listed "the progress of my own state administration, various state problems, implementation of laws passed by the last legislative session, reorganization of state government."

His "first official obligation," Morrison said, "is to the people" of Nebraska.

"Naturally," he noted, "one of the factors to be considered is the state of the development of these programs."

Flowers Unhappy About It

COLEMAN FACES MANSLAUGHTER

Hayneville, Ala. (AP) — A county grand jury refused Wednesday to indict a special sheriff's deputy for murder in the killing of a civil rights worker and charged him with manslaughter instead.

The jury's failure to return a first degree murder indictment against 55-year-old Thomas L. Coleman of Hayneville for the shotgun slaying of young Episcopal seminary student Jonathan Daniels of Keene, N.H., brought a quick promise of further court action from Alabama Atty. Gen. Richmond Flowers.

Steps Promised

"I am not satisfied with the indictment and will take all necessary steps to see that the accused is correctly and properly charged with first degree murder," Flowers said in a prepared statement.

However, the manslaughter case against Coleman for the Daniels slaying and another grand jury charge of assault and battery for the wounding of a Roman Catholic priest were set for trial Sept. 28.

If the defendant were tried and acquitted before the attorney general could get another indictment, no further action could be taken because an acquittal would prohibit another charge for the same offense

'Shocked, Amazed'

Flowers, who was in Decatur, Ala., on business, said he was "shocked and amazed" at the grand jury's failure to hand down a murder indictment. He said it "appears to be an abdication of grand jury responsibility."

Daniels, 27, was killed by a shotgun blast, and a fellow civil rights volunteer, the Rev. Richard Morrisroe, 26, a Catholic priest from Chicago, was wounded outside a weather-beaten Hayneville grocery store the afternoon of Aug. 20.

Coleman, a highway engineer and member of a prominent Lowndes County family, was charged with first degree murder and assault with intent to murder in warrants sworn out shortly after the killing

Part-Time Deputy

Accompanied by his two attorneys, the part-time deputy who served as a member of Sheriff Frank Ryal's auxiliary was brought into court for arraignment immediately after the grand jury completed its report.

He pleaded innocent to both indictments.

Whether the one Negro juror, Joe Miles, voted for or against the indictments against Coleman was not known since grand jury proceedings are secret.

County Solicitor Carlton Perdue said afterward that he and Circuit Solicitor Arthur E Gamble Jr. presented the evidence to the jurors and left it up to them to determine whether to return an indictment for first degree murder, second degree murder or manslaughter.

The maximum penalty under the first degree manslaughter indictment is 10 years in prison and for assault and battery, one year in jail and a $500 fine.

Werve: Enough Petition Signers To Hold Up Tax

Omaha (AP) — Marvin Werve said Wednesday enough signatures have now been obtained on petitions to prohibit the state from taking steps to implement the state income tax prior to a statewide vote on it in the 1966 general election.

Werve said petitions from 38 counties have gone over the 10% mark and thus the implementation ban will be in force when the petitions are filed with the secretary of state.

State law provides that when 10% of the vote in the last election for governor is reached in 38 counties a pending law is suspended Five per cent brings about a referendum vote.

Plucking Prickly Pears Produces Painful Pinkies

Lakeside, Calif. (AP)—If Peter Piper picked a peck of prickly pears, he'd probably wind up with a pack of painful pinkies.

Unless he had the sense to wear gloves.

It's prickly pear plucking and packing time in this rural San Diego County community, and the folks who process the bizarre but flavorsome fruit wouldn't think of making a move without long heavy gloves, a stout jacket and apron.

The prickly pear, in case you weren't aware, is a cactus Which means thorns. The egg-shaped fruit grows in rows around the edge of paddle-like blades. The pulpy flesh is bursting with pink juice that has a delicate taste between that of a watermelon and berries.

Picking Perilous

But the joys of eating can be dimmed by perils of picking and operation. The cactus plant has long sharp spines. And the pear has myriads of short hair-like spines that come off at the touch and work their way into the skin. Hence the need for gloves.

To serve: Peel the outer skin with a knife, then chill.

Perhaps understandably, commercial demand is limited. Hence there's a limited supply.

The 14-acre Maniscalco Prickly Pear Cactus Ranch is one of only two commercial operations.

Leon Maniscalco gives this account of the unusual operation:

His father began the business, trying to develop cactus as a cattle feed, but it didn't prosper until they began handling fruit as a table delicacy. Most buyers are Italian-Americans in the Los Angeles area to the north

Past Prime

Maniscalco's five pickers look for fruit of good size with a blush of red just beginning to show in the green skin. The pretty, deep red ones are past their prime

Wielding a five-inch knife, the picker cuts the fruit and drops it into a metal bucket, which later is emptied into lugs. At the plant, the pears are defuzzed. A machine with horsehair bristles knocks off the bothersome bristles and gives the fruit a luster. Then they're sorted by size for shipping.

The plants are 8 feet apart, rows 30 feet apart, and a good plant will produce for 15 years. "But some," says Maniscalco, "live for 75 to 100 years." They're watered and fertilized like orange trees.

Demand stays about steady, but Maniscalco says his operation may be doomed.

"It's increasing labor costs and higher taxes," he says. "They tax this land like a subdivision."

Testimony Secret At Pope's Hearing

. . . BY JUDICIAL DIRECTIVE

A pre-trial hearing in the Duane E. Pope bank robbery-slaying case was continued Wednesday until Sept. 28, after part of the testimony taken during the three-day hearing had been placed under secrecy wraps by judicial directive.

Pope is a 22-year-old Roxbury, Kan., farm youth who is charged with robbing a Big Springs bank and killing three employes on June 4, just four days after he graduated from McPherson (Kan.) College.

Federal District Judge Robert Van Pelt Wednesday directed newsmen and other courtroom spectators to make no public or private disclosure of testimony given by Robert V. Harman Jr., FBI special agent in Kansas City, as it pertained to two statements given by Pope after his surrender to Kansas City police June 11.

'Rights Violated'

The pre-trial hearing dealt with a defense motion to suppress the statements on the grounds that Pope's constitutional rights against self-incrimination and his right to the services of an attorney were violated at the time.

U.S. Atty. Theodore Richling asked that the ruling on the motion to suppress be continued until the court rules on a government motion to secure psychiatric examination of Pope.

"The issue of the defendant's mental condition has been raised and the government is not now prepared to offer expert testimony" concerning it, Richling said.

Pope's attorneys had called a Lincoln psychiatrist, Dr. John Baldwin, to the stand Monday to testify as to Pope's mental condition at the time he gave the statements June 11 and 12 and since then.

The censorship was invoked for the first time with Harman's appearance Wednesday.

"What you have heard here is not to be discussed outside this courtroom," Judge Van Pelt told newsmen and spectators.

Must Be Kept Private

He said any information as to the contents of the statements given by Pope must be kept private until such time as the statements may—if at all—be received as evidence during the actual trial of Pope before a jury.

Defense lawyers had contended that a public hearing would put information in the hands of prospective jurors which could prejudice Pope's case.

Judge Van Pelt over-ruled a renewed defense motion that all persons be cleared from the courtroom during cross-examination of Harman.

He also over-ruled a defense motion to bar specifically two Deuel County officials, Sheriff Floyd Stahr and County Atty. R. E. Richards.

State charges of murder have been filed in Deuel County and Pope could later be tried on these charges although the initial prosecution is being made under a federal indictment.

THANT GETS NO TRUCE . . .

3 Major Fronts Report Fighting

By The Associated Press

Fighting was reported on three major fronts of the India-Pakistani conflict Wednesday while U.N. Secretary-General U Thant left for New York without the cease-fire he sought.

A government spokesman in Rawalpindi said Pakistani forces repulsed Indian attacks in the Sialkot and Lahore sectors and maintained "constant pressure on the enemy" in the Khem sector. There were also reports of continued air action.

Thant said he thought both sides want to stop fighting. He is due in New York Thursday, and the Security Council will meet Friday to resume debate on the conflict.

In New Delhi, Prime Minister Lal Bahadur Shastri said Thant's mission had failed to bring peace to the subcontinent and that the war must be pressed against Pakistan.

While informed sources said Tuesday that Shastri was giving serious consideration to a cessation of hostilities, it was President Mohammed Ayub Khan of Pakistan who talked peace Wednesday.

Ayub told a news conference at Rawalpindi that President Johnson should be the peacemaker. (See story on Page 2.)

Asked whether Pakistan still stood by its declaration that there must be a plebiscite in Kashmir within three months, Ayub said, "It's a matter that can be negotiated." This was the first time any Pakistani official has said that the vote question could be negotiated.

Way Kept Open

In Washington, Johnson reaffirmed U.S. support for U.N. efforts, but kept the way open for an American role in ending the conflict.

A Pakistani military spokesman said the Indians have suffered heavy casualties in the Sialkot sector, southeast of Rawalpindi and roughly opposite the Indian border from Jammu, winter capital of Kashmir.

On the Lahore front, the Indians were said to have launched artillery and armor attacks against the Pakistanis, but the spokesman said these were stopped.

Lahore, West Pakistan's second city, is only 10 miles from the border and opposite Amritsar, the holy city of India's bearded Sikhs. Khem Karan, another front on which action was reported, lies about 25 miles south of Lahore.

There was no indication, however, whether India intends trying to push deeper into Pakistan in operations it said were designed to prevent an attack on India.

Americans Evacuated

As the fighting was reported continuing seven U.S. Air Force C130 transport planes ferried 606 Americans, mostly women and children, from the war zone of Lahore in Pakistan to Tehran, Iran.

Newsmen asked Foreign Minister Swaran Singh to elaborate on India's intentions but he would say only: "It is not for the aggressor to pick the point where he wants to fight."

The Pakistanis have put up stiffer resistance than many Indians expected, which was made clear by the defense ministry's updated casualty list for the period Aug. 5 to Sept. 14:

Pakistani losses — 1,847 killed, 320 captured. 55 planes destroyed, 250 tanks destroyed and 34 captured.

Indian losses — 612 killed, with no wounded or prisoner figures listed, about 50 to 60 tanks destroyed. Losses of aircraft were not revealed. In additional New Delhi said Pakistani air raids have killed 150 Indians and injured 200.

Cites Preconditions

Singh told newsmen three Pakistani preconditions were responsible for what he called Thant's failure:

Evacuation of all forces from disputed Kashmir, stationing of an African-Asian peace force there and a plebiscite on the Himalayan state's future.

Singh said India had made clear from the start it considered Kashmir an integral part of India, "but in the interests of peace we were prepared to agree to call for a cessation of hostilities."

Morrison's future plans will presumably involve either candidacy for the U.S. Senate seat now held by Republican Carl Curtis; candidacy for a fourth consecutive gubernatorial term; appointment to a leading federal judicial or administrative post, or return to private law practice and retirement from public life.

"There are too many contingencies, too many uncertainties for me to decide now," the governor declared.

Among them, he listed "the progress of my own state administration, various state problems, implementation of laws passed by the last legislative session, reorganization of state government."

His "first official obligation," Morrison said, "is to the people" of Nebraska.

Werve: Enough Petition Signers To Hold Up Tax

Omaha (AP) — Marvin Werve said Wednesday enough signatures have now been obtained on petitions to prohibit the state from taking steps to implement the state income tax prior to a statewide vote on it in the 1966 general election.

Werve said petitions from 38 counties have gone over the 10% mark and thus the implementation ban will be in force when the petitions are filed with the secretary of state.

State law provides that when 10% of the vote in the last election for governor is reached in 38 counties a pending law is suspended. Five per cent brings about a referendum vote.

Plucking Prickly Pears Produces Painful Pinkies

Lakeside, Calif. (AP)—If Peter Piper picked a peck of prickly pears, he'd probably wind up with a pack of painful pinkies.

Unless he had the sense to wear gloves.

It's prickly pear plucking and packing time in this rural San Diego County community, and the folks who process the bizarre but flavorsome fruit wouldn't think of making a move without long heavy gloves, a stout jacket and apron.

The prickly pear, in case you weren't aware, is a cactus. Which means thorns. The egg-shaped fruit grows in rows around the edge of paddle-like blades. The pulpy flesh is bursting with pink juice that has a delicate taste between that of a watermelon and berries.

Picking Perilous

But the joys of eating can be dimmed by perils of picking and operation. The cactus plant has long sharp spines. And the pear has myriads of short hair-like spines that come off at the touch and work their way into the skin. Hence the need for gloves.

To serve: Peel the outer skin with a knife, then chill.

Perhaps understandably, commercial demand is limited. Hence there's a limited supply.

The 14-acre Maniscalco Prickly Pear Cactus Ranch is one of only two commercial operations.

Leon Maniscalco gives this account of the unusual operation:

His father began the business, trying to develop cactus as a cattle feed, but it didn't prosper until they began handling fruit as a table delicacy. Most buyers are Italian-Americans in the Los Angeles area to the north.

Past Prime

Maniscalco's five pickers look for fruit of good size with a blush of red just beginning to show in the green skin. The pretty, deep red ones are past their prime.

Wielding a five-inch knife, the picker cuts the fruit and drops it into a metal bucket, which later is emptied into lugs. At the plant, the pears are defuzzed. A machine with horsehair bristles knocks off the bothersome bristles and gives the fruit a luster. Then they're sorted by size for shipping.

The plants are 8 feet apart, rows 30 feet apart, and a good plant will produce for 15 years. "But some," says Maniscalco, "live for 75 to 100 years." They're watered and fertilized like orange trees.

Demand stays about steady, but Maniscalco says his operation may be doomed.

"It's increasing labor costs and higher taxes," he says. "They tax this land like a subdivision."

Fulbright Attacks Advisers

RIPS DOMINICAN 'BAD ADVICE'

Washington (AP)—Sen. J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., ripped into U.S. policy in the Dominican crisis Wednesday as a failure and blamed it on "faulty advice" given President Johnson by his diplomats on the scene.

At first, Fulbright said, the United States as guilty of "overtimidity," choosing to do nothing. In the end, he said, came "over-action" in panic that "the revolution was Communist-dominated, or would certainly become so," and produce another Cuba.

"The danger to American lives was more a pretext than a reason for the massive United States intervention," Fulbright said, and is likely in the long run to have the effect of promoting communism in Latin America.

Needed Consent

At least, the United States should have gotten consent from its Latin American allies before intervening, he said.

The senator said the United States would have been justified in the eyes of its neighbors by landing a small force and promptly withdrawing it after evacuating all Americans.

Aiming his attack at the diplomats, Fulbright said the President "on the basis of the information and counsel he received," could hardly have acted other than he did. He added:

"It is very difficult to understand, however, why so much unsound advice was given him."

Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La., assistant Democratic leader and a member of the Foreign Relations Committee, sharply disagreed with Fulbright. So did Sen. George A. Smathers, D-Fla.

Communism Reason

Long said the President "was well advised" in sending in troops, and suggested former President Dwight D. Eisenhower would have reacted more strongly in Cuba had he known Fidel Castro would plunge that country into communism.

"What's wrong with trying to save a country from communism?" Smathers asked and said of the troops "I totally agree the number sent was not too many."

Fulbright, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, put forth his views in a lengthy statement, much of which he delivered in a Senate speech. It capped disagreement within his committee so sharp that a study of U.S. intervention in the Dominican crisis has produced no reports by the group, with none expected.

Poor Attendence

The Arkansas senator has promised to make public his views when the fight spilled onto the Senate floor on Aug. 23. Then, Sen. Thomas J. Dodd, D-Conn., charged that a background pamphlet used as the basis for the closed hearings "quoted exclusively from press sources that are critical of administration policy."

Fulbright disputed this and said he regretted that Dodd had not seen fit to attend but one of the committee's 13 hearings, where virtually all testimony was heard from administration witnesses. In that he later described as a jest "out of frustration" with criticism, Fulbright said he might consider resigning as chairman.

The White House, while having little to say about Fulbright's speech, made its displeasure unmistakably clear

Asked for comment, Press Secretary Bill D. Moyers said:

"I have talked to a number of officials in government, career and otherwise, who simply do not believe the senator's conclusions are justified."

Personal Views

Moyers said they apparently represented Fulbright's own personal views rather than those of the Foreign Relations Committee—a point Fulbright himself had made.

Sen. Joseph S. Clark, D-Pa., a member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, said he is in "complete accord" with Fulbright's views, which he termed "overdue, sound and wise."

"I hope that it (the speech) will be given great effect by the policy makers of the executive branch of our government," Clark said.

YANKS, AUSTRALIANS, NEW ZEALANDERS FAN OUT

Saigon, Viet Nam (AP)—U.S. Australian and New Zealand troops probed in the jungles near Saigon Wednesday with South Vietnamese paratroopers in an attempt to wrest control of an area long held by the Viet Cong. A U.S. spokesman reported no major contact, however.

Troops in the joint operation fanned out from the district town of Ben Cat, 30 miles north of Saigon in Binh Duong province.

The area, being cleared to establish a U.S. base, has been considered one where the Viet Cong always was waiting and ready. Rain pelted down as the troops struggled through the soggy jungle.

Sporadic Fire

The forces drew sporadic sniper and mortar fire, the spokesman said. No U.S. casualties were reported but Australian and New Zealand troops took light losses, he said.

The operation began Tuesday when 1,100 Vietnamese paratroops, accompanied by U.S. advisers, jumped in a driving rain onto a plain in the rubber plantation and jungle country.

Elements of the U.S. Army's 173 Airborne Brigade, Australian and New Zealand contingents moved in by ground convoy and helicopter lift.

One truck moving along Highway 13, a favorite Viet Cong ambush spot, struck a mine and wounded some New Zealanders.

Grenade In Cave

A patrol from the 173rd came under fire while moving on a plantation village. As the troops moved in, the Viet Cong holed up in underground bunkers and refused orders to come out. A grenade was thrown into one opening. A newsman reported women and children hiding in the network of trenches were among the casualties.

In the air war, Guam-based U.S. B52s hit a suspected Viet Cong installation in Zone D 30 miles northeast of Saigon in Bien Hoa province. It was the 24th announced B52 raid of the war. Tuesday, B52s hammered the Ben cat Area before the big paratroop drop, the first by Vietnamese troops since last year.

U.S. Air Force planes continued heavy strikes in North Viet Nam, attacking the Yen Khoai military barracks 35 miles west-northwest of Hanoi. U.S. planes hit the same target Tuesday and Sunday.

In South Viet Nam, a U.S. Navy plane on a strike crashed at sea 145 miles southwest of Saigon and the pilot was presumed dead.

167 Dead Reds Counted

In ground fighting, Vietnamese sources said a 10-day-old government operation 13 miles southwest of the big U.S. base of Da Nang has accounted for 167 dead Viet Cong. U.S. military sources, confirmed 122 dead by body count. A U.S. Army adviser was reported among the wounded in a communist mortar attack in the area.

A U.S. military spokesman said 17 Americans were killed in action during the week ended Sept. 11 and 58 others were wounded.

In the central highlands, elements of the 101st Airborne Division clearing the area around An Khe, where 5,000 troops of the U.S. 1st Cavalry (Air Mobile) Division are setting up camp, reported they wounded three Viet Cong and detained 26 suspects. No American losses were reported.

Chinese Denunciation

Communist China denounced the U.S. 1st Cavalry landing, as a "lie to the Johnson administration's professions of a desire for peace talks." The remainder of 20,000-man division is expected ashore soon.

Pleiku, a central highlands capital city of 50,000, meanwhile, was declared off limits to U.S. personnel because of feuding among Vietnamese military units. No deaths were reported but several persons were reported wounded.

In Ban Me Thuot, farther south in the highlands in the province of Darlac, a 500 semi-rebellious Montagnard tribesmen reaffirmed their loyalty to the South Vietnamese government by handing over 400 weapons including mortars, machine guns, bazookas, rifles and burp guns.

Premier Nguyen Cao Ky was present at the ceremony. The Montagnards, long at odds with the Vietnamese lowlanders, don't like the Viet Cong, either, and are said to want an autonomous nation of their own.

U.S. Peace Role Open, Still Backs U.N. Effort

Washington (AP)— President Johnson kept the way open for a U.S. role in ending the India-Pakistan conflict Wednesday while reaffirming American support for United Nations efforts.

This was the initial White House reaction to what, for U.S. policymakers, was a surprise statement by Pakistan President Ayub Khan at a Rawalpindi news conference.

Ayub said the United States could "play a very definite role by telling India and Pakistan she will not stand for this struggle." He added that Washington could have brought a solution when the Kashmir dispute was being considered in 1962

Not Heard Before

U.S. sources said the Pakistan leadership had not made this statement in private meetings with Ameican Ambassador Walter P. McConaughy

Inquries as to just what Ayub had in mind were being made of the Pakistan government

Some U.S. officials speculated that the Pakistani president was inviting the United States to step directly into the peace effort.

Others believed that Ayub was taking a poke at Washington by suggesting that America could have solved the Kashmir issue before.

U.S. diplomacy since the outbreak of the fighting has focused on U.N. Secretary-General U Thant's peace endeavors Presidential Press Secretary Bill D Moyers reasserted the U.S. position while leaving the door ajar for another course.

Support U.N.

"The U.S. position strongly and without equivocation is to support the role of the United Nations," Moyers said when asked about Ayub's statement. The White House spokesman added:

"Of course the President wants to do everything and anything he can . . . How he personally can be helpful is a judgment only the President can make."

In addition to leaving the path open for a U.S. role if that is what Ayub is proposing the White House response also allowed time for an assessment of U Thant's report.

Ayub told a news conference the United States should play a role in this part of the world "more positively."

Industrial Output Is Up Slightly

Washington (AP)—The nation's industrial production increased slightly in August, the Federal Reserve Board reported Wednesday.

Record output of commercial and industrial machinery was balanced by declines in iron and steel.

There was little change in the rate of production for automobile and other consumer goods.

Industrial production was measured at 144.4 on the Federal Reserve's scale, compared to 144.2 in July.

This meant that production of the nation's factories and mines was 44.4% higher than the 1957-59 level.

The gain was the smallest since April but it marked the 10th straight month that the index has moved upward. The last decline was caused by work stoppages in the automobile industry last October.

Trouble Plagued Couple Lose Trailer In Flames

. . . THIRD TIME BAD LUCK VISITS OTTOS

By DEAN TERRILL
Southeast Nebraska Bureau

Beatrice — Three times in three years this reporter has encountered one Walter Otto. Once a tree didn't kill the guy—quite. Once he didn't drown—quite. This time he didn't burn—quite.

"Trouble really is my middle name," quipped the 26-year-old Consumers Public Power District truck driver, his charred house trailer amplifying the words.

He didn't complain—quite.

The 1962 story had told how the therapy of sweater-knitting had helped Otto bounce back from a nearly fatal injury as a Consumers PPD lineman. Quite memorably, the interview had been interrupted to welcome home wife Lois and brand new baby.

Little Arlene was about a year old when the plagued family again came before the news lens. Things turned out happily as the stranded Ottos stepped into a rescuer's boat and away from the swollen waters threatening their trailer west of town.

Other Incidentals

Otto recounted how a "relatively small" fire ($1,200 damage) and "relatively small" accident (fall from steps, short hospital stay) transpired before the reporter again made the scene. A few nights ago came the midnight flames that wholly gutted the trailer, the family escaping when an intercom system shorted out and started crackling.

Insurance covered most of the financial loss and the family moved in with longtime Beatrice friends, the Frank Pettys, until the large trailer could be replaced. Despite the fire, things don't look as bad as during those long hospital months back in '62.

Walter's injuries pulled him off pole duty, but he still works for CPPD as a line truck operator. Lois continues at Keyes Recreation to help balance their woe-beset budget.

"As for you," chorused the twin-grinning couple, "will you please stay away from us, you and trouble both?"

Ress Urges Decision On Ak Bridge

Omaha (AP) — Omaha's City Council must decide soon whether to begin late efforts to save the Ak-Sar-Ben bridge, public works director L N. Ress said.

Ress said the Iowa Highway Commission plans to let paving contracts in December or January for the main Council Bluffs approaches to a new bridge.

Council Bluffs approaches and their ramps will render West Broadway useless, he said. The proposed paving contract calls for tearing out West Broadway at 41st Street.

Ress said completion of the paving is timed to coincide with the finish of the new bridge late next summer, and except for future connections to Interstate 29, this will complete Iowa's part of the Interstate 480 bridge.

It is expected to give Iowa an unbroken link from the Mississippi to the Missouri River.

The Omaha Council recommended in May of 1964 that the old bridge be demolished when the Interstate span is finished, but a movement developed later to preserve the Ak-Sar-Ben bridge — if not for traffic, at least for pedestrians.

"If the council's decision is not clear cut at the moment, I would recommend that it be finalized," Ress said.

He said he concurs with a recommendation by Iowa Highway Commission district engineer Robert H. Given that the Ak-Sar-Ben bridge be abandoned and removed. Given said the design makes no provision for maintaining either pedestrian or vehicular traffic to the old bridge.

Larson To Speak

Omaha (UPI) — A noted lawyer, educator and former government official will be in Omaha Oct. 14 for a lecture sponsored by the local chapter of the United Nations Association. William C. Ramsey, chapter president, said Dr. Arthur Larson, director of the rule of law research center at Duke University will deliver the special address in conjunction with the 20th anniversary of the United Nations to be formally observed Oct. 24.

Embezzlement Among Counts Filed Against Crawford Man

Chardon (AP) — Raymond Joseph Sefra, 45, Crawford, was arraigned in County Court Wednesday on charges of embezzlement and obtaining money under false pretenses.

Nebraska News

The charges involve more than $12,000 obtained from four Crawford area residents.

Sefrna, an insurance and business man, waived preliminary hearing and was bound over to District Court under bonds totalling $13,000.

The chargers were filed by County Attorney Bevin Bump after an investigation in which Lt Leo Knutson of the criminal investigation division of the State Safety Patrol took part.

Sefrna was arrested Wednesday in Crawford.

County Judge Robert Zeman met Sefrna's bond at $7,000 on the embezzlement count, bond on two counts of obtaining money under false pretenses at $2,500 each and bond on a third at $1,000.

In the complaints filed by Bump, Sefrna is charged with embezzling $6,890 from Lawrence C. Larsen; obtaining by false pretenses $2,500 from Austin J. Riddle, $2,350 from Roy D. Viele and $1,000 from Amy E. Jackman.

Sefrna has been a resident of Crawford for some time. He is married and has one child.

The complaint alleges that the embezzlement occurred while Sefrna was acting as an agent for Hamilton Management Corporation, which has a branch office in Denver.

The charges of obtaining money under false pretenses allege that he represented himself as an agent for Hamilton at a time when he was no longer employed by the firm.

Gov. Hughes' Kin Bound Over On Larceny Charge

Des Moines (AP)—Three men, one a son-in-law of Gov. Harold Hughes, have been bound over to the Polk County grand jury on charges of larceny in the night time.

Otto

The three are Dennis Richard Otto, 23; Johnnie Dean Meyer, 20 and Anthony Brugioni, 25, all of Des Moines. Otto is married to Hughes' daughter.

At a preliminary hearing. Municipal Court Judge Harry Grund reduced bond for the three from $1,000 to $500 each.

Police said Otto was driving a car seen leaving the Iowa Road Builders, Inc., plant here Aug. 27 with a quantity of wire in the truck.

The car collided with a police car during an ensuing high speed chase, officers said. Brugioni was wounded in the neck before the three men were arrested.

Craft Warns Of Potential West Delay

. . . On Interstate

North Platte (UPI)—State Sen Cecil Craft of North Platte warned western Nebraskans Wednesday of a potential delay in construction of Interstate 80 west of North Platte.

In an address to the Rotary Club, Craft said, "We better build a little backfire in western Nebraska."

The delay, the senator said, would result if Omaha interests are successful in convincing Governor Morrison and the State Highway Department to divert funds to construct a four-mile extension of the Interstate into downtown Omaha.

Omaha 'Blitz' Started

Craft said Omaha interests, chiefly the Chamber of Commerce and the Omaha City Planning Department, have started a "blitz" to get the downtown Omaha extension constructed while delaying western Nebraska building.

Craft said it can be three to four years before the Interstate is completed between North Platte and Ogallala.

He urged citizens to make known their objections to any delay of interstate work in western Nebraska. He added, "Let's not let Omaha take the money for its highway, while we continue to go bumper-to-bumper to Ogallala."

Curtis, Hruska Are Likened To Rip Van Winkle

Kearney—Democratic State Chairman John Mitchell said Wednesday that Republican Sens Carl Curtis and Roman Hruska are like Rip Van Winkle, "sleeping through and ignoring those crucial moments when the people of Nebraska need their representation most."

Mitchell noted that both Nebraska senators voted against the farm bill passed by the Senate.

"In this era of the farmer's greatest need, when the Midwest must put forth a united agricultural front to preserve and improve the farm economy of the states involved, we can find Republican senators from South Dakota, Colorado, Iowa and Kansas casting aside their party affiliations and banding together with Democrats to work for the economic well-being of their respective states," Mitchell said.

"But not Senators Curtis and Hruska."

The project will include a 2,000 square feet expansion of the work room, a 570 square feet addition to the platform and an additional 6,200 square feet of parking space. The project will also include air conditioning the building, new lighting, a new driveway and other repairs and renovations.

McCook Runway Bid Opening Set

McCook (UPI) — City Manager George Pyle announced that bids will be opened for lengthening the runway at the McCook Airport at 4 p.m. Friday, Oct. 1.

The runway will be stretched 2,000 feet to a distance of 6,000 feet.

Estimated cost of the project is $320,000, of which the federal government will pay one-half, the state one quarter, and the city one quarter.

The lengthening is necessary to accommodate the bigger convair 580 planes which Frontier Airlines plans to place into use soon.

Job Corps Yearly Cost Per Student Said About $7,000

Omaha (AP)—Officials of the Omaha Women's Job Corps Center estimated that the yearly cost per student will be between $6,000 to $7,000 a year.

They emphasized that this is an estimate and added that whatever the cost, taxpayers will save in the long run.

Education and training director Dr. Robert Bathke commented "If we can take potential welfare cases and turn them into wage earners, we have done an important job."

The officials said the job corps centers and public schools cannot fairly be compared as to cost because the centers work with students 24 hours a day and the schools do not.

Corps costs also are higher because of smaller classes and different teaching methods, the officials said.

The views were given at a meeting sponsored by the Beth El Sisterhood.

Costs at the center have been questioned by Sen. Carl Curtis of Nebraska who said he was "grossly misinformed" whem he asked at Washington about them.

He married an Omaha girl, the former Mary Louise Prichard.

Slayton now is U.S. commissioner of urban renewal.

New School For Cozad Proposed

Cozad (AP) — Oct. 5 has been set for an election on issuing $1,189,000 in school bonds to finance a new high school building.

School officials estimate the building and equipment will cost $1,489,000. The city of Cozad would furnish $300,000 for an auditorium facility which would be part of the building.

Plans call for the junior high school to move from its present quarters in the central building into the present high school, if a new high school is built.

Trouble Plagued Couple Lose Trailer In Flames

. . . THIRD TIME BAD LUCK VISITS OTTOS

By DEAN TERRILL
Southeast Nebraska Bureau

Beatrice — Three times in three years this reporter has encountered one Walter Otto. Once a tree didn't kill the guy—quite. Once he didn't drown—quite. This time he didn't burn—quite.

"Trouble really is my middle name," quipped the 26-year-old Consumers Public Power District truck driver, his charred house trailer amplifying the words.

He didn't complain—quite.

The 1962 story had told how the therapy of sweater-knitting had helped Otto bounce back from a nearly fatal injury as a Consumers PPD lineman. Quite memorably, the interview had been interrupted to welcome home wife Lois and brand new baby.

Little Arlene was about a year old when the plagued family again came before the news lens. Things turned out happily as the stranded Ottos stepped into a rescuer's boat and away from the swollen waters threatening their trailer west of town.

Other Incidentals

Otto recounted how a "relatively small" fire ($1,200 damage) and "relatively small" accident (fall from steps, short hospital stay) transpired before the reporter again made the scene. A few nights ago came the midnight flames that wholly gutted the trailer, the family escaping when an intercom system shorted out and started crackling.

Insurance covered most of the financial loss and the family moved in with longtime Beatrice friends, the Frank Pettys, until the large trailer could be replaced. Despite the fire, things don't look as bad as during those long hospital months back in '62.

Walter's injuries pulled him off pole duty, but he still works for CPPD as a line truck operator. Lois continues at Keyes Recreation to help balance their woe-beset budget.

"As for you," chorused the twin-grinning couple, "will you please stay away from us, you and trouble both?"

Ress Urges Decision On Ak Bridge

Omaha (AP) — Omaha's City Council must decide soon whether to begin late efforts to save the Ak-Sar-Ben bridge, public works director L. N. Ress said.

Ress said the Iowa Highway Commission plans to let paving contracts in December or January for the main Council Bluffs approaches to a new bridge.

Council Bluffs approaches and their ramps will render West Broadway useless, he said. The proposed paving contract calls for tearing out West Broadway at 41st Street.

Ress said completion of the paving is timed to coincide with the finish of the new bridge late next summer, and except for future connections to Interstate 29, this will complete Iowa's part of the Interstate 480 bridge.

It is expected to give Iowa an unbroken link from the Mississippi to the Missouri River.

The Omaha Council recommended in May of 1964 that the old bridge be demolished when the Interstate span is finished, but a movement developed later to preserve the Ak-Sar-Ben bridge — if not for traffic, at least for pedestrians.

"If the council's decision is not clear cut at the moment, I would recommend that it be finalized," Ress said.

He said he concurs with a recommendation by Iowa Highway Commission district engineer Robert H. Given that the Ak-Sar-Ben bridge be abandoned and removed. Given said the design makes no provision for maintaining either pedestrian or vehicular traffic to the old bridge.

Larson To Speak

Omaha (UPI) — A noted lawyer, educator and former government official will be in Omaha Oct. 14 for a lecture sponsored by the local chapter of the United Nations Association. William C. Embezzlement Among Counts Filed Against Crawford Man

Chardon (AP) — Raymond Joseph Sefra, 45, Crawford, was arraigned in County Court Wednesday on charges of embezzlement and obtaining money under false pretenses.

Nebraska News

The charges involve more than $12,000 obtained from four Crawford area residents.

Sefrna, an insurance and business man, waived preliminary hearing and was bound over to District Court under bonds totalling $13,000.

The chargers were filed by County Attorney Bevin Bump after an investigation in which Lt. Leo Knutson of the criminal investigation division of the State Safety Patrol took part.

Sefrna was arrested Wednesday in Crawford.

County Judge Robert Zeman met Sefrna's bond at $7,000 on the embezzlement count, bond on two counts of obtaining money under false pretenses at $2,500 each and bond on a third at $1,000.

In the complaints filed by Bump, Sefrna is charged with embezzling $6,890 from Lawrence C. Larsen; obtaining by false pretenses $2,500 from Austin J. Riddle, $2,350 from Roy D. Viele and $1,000 from Amy E. Jackman.

Sefrna has been a resident of Crawford for some time. He is married and has one child.

The complaint alleges that the embezzlement occurred while Sefrna was acting as an agent for Hamilton Management Corporation, which has a branch office in Denver.

The charges of obtaining money under false pretenses allege that he represented himself as an agent for Hamilton at a time when he was no longer employed by the firm.

On The Passing Scene

By WILLIAM O. DOBLER

Not a day passes in which the world around us doesn't change in some respects, sometimes greatly and sometimes slightly. A story on the front page of The Lincoln Star yesterday morning told of one such change. It was a story about Dunbar which lies about halfway between Lincoln and Nebraska City on the route of old Highway 2.

Dunbar is a little unhappy these days and understandably so. The little town hasn't had any growing pains for a long time but it has been getting along. The 1950 census listed its population at 228 and by 1960 it had grown to 232. That isn't much growth but a town that size that can even hold its own in these days of growing urbanization is doing all right. But the 1970 census may show a drop because Dunbar is no longer on Highway 2. The highway has been relocated to skirt the town a few miles to the north. This will eliminate, probably, the business the town did with passing motorists.

Four In Ten Years

The town was an occasion for a light moment with a family traveling through it. This is Dunbar, the father would say, where they make candy bars and the eyes of all the children would light up. It was a corny joke but the kind that little children have a world of fun with. Up to about 10 years of age, they believe the story and regret that there just isn't time to stop and watch the making of candy bars.

They contemplate that it must be a wonderful place in which to live, a sort of Alice in Wonderland place where you would never want for sweets. Give them their choice at that time and they would choose to live in Dunbar. And when they quit believing, they simply start enjoying the joke still played upon their younger brothers and sisters.

Seated at the breakfast table with the morning paper, note was made that Dunbar is worried that it is now bypassed by Highway 2. The concern of two youngsters was whether that meant they would quit making candy bars. Even if they can't live there, they can buy the candy bars here in Lincoln and it would be an awful thing if that were to come to an end. But the youngsters were reassured that Dunbar would go on making candy bars. The amazing thing is that they make all the candy bars in the world in Dunbar. Obviously, such an enterprise would make a thriving metropolis out of Dunbar but a six or eight-year-old never stops to think about that. They like to believe in happy things and nothing could be more pleasant to them than being in the very town where all the candy bars in the world are made.

Traveling a little shorter distance the other day, we happened along in the direction of the University of Nebraska campus. The walk brought us to the Sheldon Art Gallery and having not been in the gallery for some time, we took the time to pay it a visit. We really wish we hadn't done so. The gallery, a lovely building, it loaded with "art" that is most difficult to appreciate.

Many of the pictures look like pure accidents and bad ones at that. But the greatest disappointment of all was the north gallery room where a number of collages were on display. A "collage" is an arrangement of things along indefinite and supposedly impressionistic or suggestive lines.

There must be people who appreciate a collage and we bow to the professional claim that they are art but they are not for the common man. One young man viewing the display asked if we could explain what the various pieces meant. We replied that we could not and he went on to lament that they should erect such a magnificent building and fill it with such things. We were most inclined to agree with the young man.

It was nice to see the campus alive with young people after the summer months of relative inactivity. A visitor to Lincoln once remarked that it was so nice to see so many young people on the streets. Their presence is a pleasant thing in itself, he said, and they make an important contribution to the thinking of the community. Consciously or not, the young people tend to keep a community alert, thinking and progressive. It isn't that way in a smaller town without a college or university, he said. In such towns, there are very few people on the streets and the character of such towns shows more age than youth.

Atmosphere Of Youth

The campus showed all the other familiar signs. Cars slowly moving along in search of a parking place that wasn't there and contractors stirring up a roar as they worked away on new physical plant facilities. A new year of learning is off and running and holds, as always, promise of great rewards in the future.

Making Great Headway

One must dig hard and deep to find encouraging news in this presently troubled world. But treasures are down below if one digs for them. One such is the relieving statement by an authority on water problems, Abel Wolman, a professor at Johns Hopkins University.

Professor Wolman tells us that the United States has made fine progress in water research, and now has the knowhow to avert any water crisis in the foreseeable future. We are glad to hear that, and, with other Americans, will go back to drinking water without the feeling that it may be the last we shall ever get. And that's the way it should be. Water should be drunk for the pleasure of it without connotations of doom.

Our knowledge of filtration and water treatment is now so expansive that we can derive pure water of anything that is wet. And as proof Prof. Wolman reminds that cities with filtration plants get their water from streams into which upriver towns have dumped their sewage and into which industry has dumped its wastes. Yet the plant's product now eliminates the contaminants of water borne diseases and the water is virtually chemically pure.

Federal efforts have made great strides both in de-contaminating streams and conservation. We are learning to curb the waste of run off rain water, too.

Safeguarding our future water sources is a most undramatic topic and that alone is enough to kill it. But surprisingly enough it has had strong public support and federal programs have been unusually effective. It is estimated that it will take another $1.6 billion to rid the nation's streams of sewage and industrial contaminants, but there seems little doubt but that the public will cheerfully foot the bill and that our streams will be pristine again.

Thoughts On World Law Day

Last Monday was World Law Day and since then several hundred judges, lawyers and legal philosophers from an number of countries are meeting in a serious effort to prepare for the day when all men everywhere will live according to law.

They will probably fail, but not from their own inadequacy. They will fail because the world is not yet sufficiently civilized. But they are on a proper mission because a world under just law is like a ship on the horizon, slowly coming toward shore, bringing relief to hard pressed people. They are creating the favorable breeze that will speed the ship on its way.

President Johnson greeted World Law Day with these words

"I would call upon citizens throughout the land . . to reaffirm our abiding American goal of a world where all men live in obedience to the rule of laws that they have chosen, rather than in subjugation to the rule of men they have not chosen."

These are weighty words and it is significant that they were addressed to citizens, not to men of the law. They lay a heavy burden upon the average man, not only to live according to law, but to be ever alert to the necessity of just law.

It is dangerous to consider "law" as a sacred social word and let it go at that. An evil people even though they have been allowed to form their own laws can be a monstrous thing. At best the law can be only slightly better than the ethics of the people who devise it. All in all, it requires a highly civilized people living on an ethical plane to lend high luster to the rule of law.

But law at its worst is still better than the destructive rule of war and the greater application of its principles by men of good will is the broad road to a peaceable world.

Strange World Of Foreign Policy

President Mohammed Ayub Khan of Pakistan must have many people scratching their heads. Having played footsie for some time now with Red China, he has suddenly taken the United States to task for failing to put its foot down in connection with the Pakistan-India dispute over Kashmir.

"The United States can play a very definite role," he said, "by telling India and Pakistan she will not stand for this struggle. She could have brought it about (a solution) in 1962 and could have brought it about today. The United States should have come out more openly and taken a direct hand in this thing. This is not going to do U.S. influence any good."

It would seem to be a case of damned if you do and damned if you don't. Had the U.S. taken the kind of firm stand advocated by Khan, a great hue and cry would have gone up from all sides. Even our allies would have shaken their heads in disapproval of such strong-handed methods on the part of Uncle Sam. We would have been accused of dictatorial intervention and incurred the wrath of both India and Pakistan.

Still, President Khan has made a point that should not be lost with U.S. foreign policy experts. He may be politically motivated in saying what he did but he still struck at one weakness in U.S. policy. This weakness is the frequent failure of this nation to act decisively, to take a firm position before the world on international affairs.

Too often we tempt the communists to try something or encourage such nations as India and Pakistan to settle their differences through war. We do this by leaving ourselves in an uncertain position. This permits us a flexibility that has some value but it doesn't reflect the leadership role we occupy on the world scene. We acted firmly in the Dominican Republic and were criticized for it but we avoided the threat of a communist victory there by acting as we did.

Red China Ready To Send 50,000

(Editor's Note: Drew Pearson is on a news-gathering tour of Africa. In his absence the column will be written by his associate, Jack Anderson.)

WASHINGTON — Ominous reports have reached the United States that the Red Chinese are preparing to infiltrate 50,000 Vietnamese-speaking guerrillas into South Viet Nam as a "first step" towards participation in the war.

The recruiting drive is centered in Kwangsi province across the border from Viet Nam. The people of southern Kwangsi are familiar enough with the Vietnamese language and customs that a guerrilla force should be able to cross into Viet Nam without it appearing to be a Chinese invasion.

Significantly, these preparations are tied to the defection of Li Tsung-jen, a former nationalist vice president who recently slipped behind the Bamboo Curtain after 16 years in the United States. This column pointed out after his defection that Li was a hero to the people of Kwangsi province.

Evidence that the Chinese communists are now using Li to help form a guerrilla force is contained in a confidential report to the Army from Johns Hopkins University's operations research office. This office does much of the Army's intelligence analysis.

Speaking of the Chinese preparation to send guerrillas to Viet Nam, the report declares, "A total of 50,000 Vietnamese-speaking Kwangsi people will be conscripted as a first step. . . . .

"According to intelligence reports," the report continues, "Li Tsung-jen, together with Chinese military leaders Lin Piao and Lo Juiching . . . called a high-level conference in Kwangsi province to launch a movement for the Yao minority group to participate in the war.

"Fifty thousand volunteers of both sexes who can speak Vietnamese will be organized into military service. The reserve army will also be composed of 50,000.

"Within a short time, they will be dispatched from Hanoi to the battlefield in South Viet Nam to assist the Viet Cong guerrillas in resisting American troops and the troops of South Viet Nam."

Life In 1990 To Be A Far Cry From What We Know Today

NEW YORK—I have just been reading a prediction of what life will be like 25 years from now.

It inspired me, with shudders, to compose this variation on a child's verse:

"There was a science writer
Who had a grim foresighter
Right in the middle of his cranium:
And when it was good, it was very, very good
But when it was bad, it was insanium."

The writer with the foresighter is a science reporter, Isaac Asimov, and his awful ideas on the world of 1990 A.D. are enough to give claustrophobia to a submarine commander . . .

Many of the world's peoples, particularly the citizens of the advanced nation known as the U.S.A., will live and work below the earth's surface, he predicts. Whole cities will necessarily be built underground, since there will no longer be surface room to move around in, and the aerial pathways will be laden with transportation.

The advantages: underground temperature changes are minor, creating less problems of cooling in summer or warming in the winter. Underground transportation would never be upset by rain or snow. Round-the-clock workshifts would be easy to set up, because the difference between day and night would go unnoticed.

The ground above these sub-cities would be devoted in part to park land for recreation and in part to farming or grazing.

We will be put in an ironic position of living and working in close confinement, sans nature—and bestowing the fresh air and sunshine and grass upon cattle and kids.

For vacation? If we are wealthy (or if we were smart enough in 1965 to buy land in mountains or by the seashore), we can visit the mountains or seashore and get a whiff of fresh air. The jungles of the world, having lost most of their large predators, will be resort areas. The antarctic and the arctic coastlines will be available; granted, the weather isn't perfect, but perhaps we can find a few square feet of privacy.

And there decidedly will be underwater hotels and homes, for people who like aquatic sports and fish for breakfast.

Asimov foresees the dangers of air pollution possibly reduced by a ban on smoking in the open air (if one can get up to the open air), and the introduction of "smokatoriums" for communal cigarettes smoking.

The only possible pleasant prediction in the entire picture of life a quarter-century hence is the news that men may wear small motors, mounted on their backs, to lift them clear of the ground, speed them to nearby appointments. We may play "air polo" with our motors and helium-inflated plastic balls.

But, Asimov warns, watch out for engine failures. Local city ordinances may confine flying people to sidewalk areas to avoid having them [illegible]

What a future. Makes you want to crawl under a rock?

Go ahead. Do it. You'll be ahead of your time.

JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M. D.

To Your Good Health

Dear Dr. Molner: Is the lack of fats and butter in the diet responsible for both dry skin and scalp? How would one correct this? All my life (62 years) I have avoided butter and fats as much as possible.—Miss M.K.

Molner

Low fat intake can cause such dryness, but it doesn't often do so in our part of the world. There are differing reasons for dry skin and scalp. Dietary (lack of fats); glandular, and in this case the thyroid gland is very important; the skin structure itself, and there isn't much we can do about that; excessive bathing (because the soap and water wash away some of the oils that lubricate the skin); and age, because as we get on in years the oily glands of our skin become less active.

So let's, for the moment, discuss fat in the diet. There are many places in the world in which fats are scarce. In a good many of these areas, people aren't concerned over dry skin and hair. They are concerned with getting enough to eat. Fats are high in calories.

In our part of the hemisphere, where we have lots of animal meat, lots of butter and other dairy products, plenty of vegetable fats, where fried foods are common instead of rare, we can avoid fats in our diet to advantage. (Think of all the people who are concerned about their cholesterol levels!)

We eat, on the average, perhaps twice as much fat as do others. We eat two or three times as much as would fulfill our needs. If we don't eat butter, we eat margarine. Frankly, we "live off the fat of the land."

Thus I am suspicious about cases of "lack of fat." No doubt there are people with this problem in this area, but they are rather rare. The ones who avoid fats and butter usually get other kinds of fat: Olives, olive oil, corn oil or other vegetable oils for their fried foods and salad dressing and bacon and nuts and so forth.

A low fat diet can cause dry skin and hair, but it also can cause a deficiency of Vitamin A, since fats are a major source of it.

I don't say it can't happen, but I want to take a second look, and maybe a third or fourth, before I decide that anyone in our part of the world is suffering from lack of fats.

It can happen. It does. But the other three principal causes of dryness are better ones to examine.

I suggest this: Increase your fat intake and see if it helps. I doubt if it will, but go ahead, try it. After all, you may be one of the exceptions, and may really have lived for half a century or so on a truly low-fat diet. If you are extremely thin, that's an added clue. But if you aren't, I'd suspect one of the other likely causes.

Dear Dr. Molner: Can eating too much lettuce be harmful? I eat almost a head a day. What is there in lettuce that makes me crave it?—Mrs. M.H.

I can't imagine how this could be harmful to you. I'm delighted to hear of another appetite quirk that I don't have to oppose. Don't ask me why you like that much of it. Please, you tell me why you do. If only a lot of others had such a craving for lettuce (or carrots, celery, cucumber, or other vegetables) I wouldn't have so many people asking me for easy ways to lose weight.

Dear Dr. Molner: My son has been told that his thyroid gland is too active and that he should have surgery. How serious is this operation? Is it any kin to Hodgkin's Disease?—MRS. P.M.A.

It has nothing to do with Hodgkin's Disease (which atacks lymph glands all over the body). Surgery for a strongly overactive thyroid is not unusual at all, and while it requires hospitalization, it is not a perilous thing.

Removal of part of the gland reduces the amount of hormone produced by the gland, and halts jitters, "nerves," and other symptoms.

Naturally it is not a remedy for all types of nervous tension, but is very useful in such cases as are caused by overactive thyroid.

Note to C.D.E.: I agree with you that food is important, and a balanced diet is one rule of good health. But I disagree that anything is to be gained by such intricate diets as you urge. And the phrase about "you are what you eat" is much overdone. If you kept 12 birds, of 12 kinds, different sizes and colors, and fed them all the same birdfood, they'd all stay the same color and size.

Dear Dr. Molner: I would like some information on removing moles on my face and arm. Many are not large but they do bother me, especially one above my upper lip. What type of doctor specializes in this and what process is used? Is it expensive? Afterward is there any scar? —K.H.

Your doctor doubtless has removed considerable numbers of moles from places that don't show much, and has done it either by simple surgery or electro-coagulation.

On the face, you are very much concerned with having a minimum of scarring, so go (a) to a dermatologist (skin specialist), or (b) in special circumstances, to a plastic surgeon.

Your next question, at this point, will be, "Which do I go to, and where will I find him?" The answer, to both questions, is to ask your regular physician to refer you to the right specialist. Cost, in general, is moderate. Only occasionally will a mole be so located so as to make its removal exceptionally difficult.

Dr. Molner welcomes all reader mail, but regrets that due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Flag On Display

Roca, Neb.

Preceding the Thursday night grandstand show at the Nebraska State Fair, a beautiful version of "The "Star Spangled Banner" was played. But the American flag was not visible.

I am 21 and not old-fashioned. Whatever one's feelings are toward the present government, the flag remains an honorable patriotic symbol. The new fair manager had many details to learn and is not to blame for this oversight. However, I have written him suggesting that next year, it be someone's specific duty to display Old Glory when our national anthem is presented.

A Correction

Lincoln, Neb.

This refers to the article, "Moslem Students In Lincoln Have Conflicting Loyalties In Fighting," on Page 15 of the September 9 Star. I would like the following correction made regarding my part of the statement — the last sentence of the article.

The sentence: "But he added, 'America is indirectly trying to help India by giving advice,' " should have read: "Even if America tries to give advice, it would be an indirect help to India."

I believe this incorrect wording came because of some difficulty in communication on the telephone.

Medicare

Lincoln, Neb.

When someone plans to pull the rug out from under you and someone gets wise to the plot, it's only cricket to broadcast.

The September 3 issue of Life Magazine has quite a shocking portrayal of Medicare. Everyone should read it, then keep up his insurance policy payments.

In July, 1966, when Medicare comes into being, the millions who have waited with anticipation of getting something for nothing are due for a low blow. There will be a cruel gap between what one needs and now can afford, also what he can get. The state of medical facilities is heading into the dreadful inadequacies of the hospital room, impossible demands on doctors, hospitals and rest homes. Their attendants will be unable to properly handle the extra inflow.

The country needs 20,000 more doctors. The nurse situation is even worse. Many nursing homes are unqualified. Congress has set their problem aside until January 1, 1967, before benefits can be received. All medical personnel are fearful of the troubles they are facing.

Medicare provides two kinds of benefits: (1) hospital and nursing home care, and (2) doctor's care. One pays nothing to the government for the first time, needing only to produce a card. He enrolls in a voluntary plan, authorizing the government to deduct $3 a month from Social Security or railroad retirement checks. If he doesn't sign up, eligibility will expire after three years and can't be renewed. One also must pay the first $40 along with other requirements too numerous to mention.

The pictures aren't as they are painted. Thousands of buildings are being tossed together, many unqualified, for nursing homes by builders who are gathering in quick dollars for this new project.

Oh, yes. We are so short of money that taxes must go up.

A MOTHER

OFF THE RECORD By Ed. Reed

"Don't worry, Mr. Grilby—his father is a doctor."

On The Passing Scene

By WILLIAM O. DOBLER

Not a day passes in which the world around us doesn't change in some respects, sometimes greatly and sometimes slightly. A story on the front page of The Lincoln Star yesterday morning told of one such change. It was a story about Dunbar which lies about halfway between Lincoln and Nebraska City on the route of old Highway 2.

Dunbar is a little unhappy these days and understandably so. The little town hasn't had any growing pains for a long time but it has been getting along. The 1950 census listed its population at 228 and by 1960 it had grown to 232. That isn't much growth but a town that size that can even hold its own in these days of growing urbanization is doing all right. But the 1970 census may show a drop because Dunbar is no longer on Highway 2. The highway has been relocated to skirt the town a few miles to the north. This will eliminate, probably, the business the town did with passing motorists.

Four In Ten Years

The town was an occasion for a light moment with a family traveling through it. This is Dunbar, the father would say, where they make candy bars and the eyes of all the children would light up. It was a corny joke but the kind that little children have a world of fun with. Up to about 10 years of age, they believe the story and regret that there just isn't time to stop and watch the making of candy bars.

They contemplate that it must be a wonderful place in which to live, a sort of Alice in Wonderland place where you would never want for sweets. Give them their choice at that time and they would choose to live in Dunbar. And when they quit believing, they simply start enjoying the joke still played upon their younger brothers and sisters.

Seated at the breakfast table with the morning paper, note was made that Dunbar is worried that it is now bypassed by Highway 2. The concern of two youngsters was whether that meant they would quit making candy bars. Even if they can't live there, they can buy the candy bars here in Lincoln and it would be an awful thing if that were to come to an end. But the youngsters were reassured that Dunbar would go on making candy bars. The amazing thing is that they make all the candy bars in the world in Dunbar. Obviously, such an enterprise would make a thriving metropolis out of Dunbar but a six or eight-year-old never stops to think about that. They like to believe in happy things and nothing could be more pleasant to them than being in the very town where all the candy bars in the world are made.

Traveling a little shorter distance the other day, we happened along in the direction of the University of Nebraska campus. The walk brought us to the Sheldon Art Gallery and having not been in the gallery for some time, we took the time to pay it a visit. We really wish we hadn't done so. Thus I am suspicious about cases of "lack of fat." No doubt there are people with this problem in this area, but they are rather rare. The ones who avoid fats and butter usually get other kinds of fat: Olives, olive oil, corn oil or other vegetable oils for their fried foods and salad dressing and bacon and nuts and so forth.

A low fat diet can cause dry skin and hair, but it also can cause a deficiency of Vitamin A, since fats are a major source of it.

I don't say it can't happen, but I want to take a second look, and maybe a third or fourth, before I decide that anyone in our part of the world is suffering from lack of fats.

It can happen. It does. But the other three principal causes of dryness are better ones to examine.

I suggest this: Increase your fat intake and see if it helps. I doubt if it will, but go ahead, try it. After all, you may be one of the exceptions, and may really have lived for half a century or so on a truly low-fat diet. If you are extremely thin, that's an added clue. But if you aren't, I'd suspect one of the other likely causes.

Dear Dr. Molner: Can eating too much lettuce be harmful? I eat almost a head a day. What is there in lettuce that makes me crave it?—Mrs. M.H.

I can't imagine how this could be harmful to you. I'm delighted to hear of another appetite quirk that I don't have to oppose. Don't ask me why you like that much of it. Please, you tell me why you do. If only a lot of others had such a craving for lettuce (or carrots, celery, cucumber, or other vegetables) I wouldn't have so many people asking me for easy ways to lose weight.

Dear Dr. Molner: My son has been told that his thyroid gland is too active and that he should have surgery. How serious is this operation? Is it any kin to Hodgkin's Disease?—MRS. P.M.A.

It has nothing to do with Hodgkin's Disease (which atacks lymph glands all over the body). Surgery for a strongly overactive thyroid is not unusual at all, and while it requires hospitalization, it is not a perilous thing.

Removal of part of the gland reduces the amount of hormone produced by the gland, and halts jitters, "nerves," and other symptoms.

Naturally it is not a remedy for all types of nervous tension, but is very useful for such cases as are caused by overactive thyroid.

☆ ☆ ☆

Note to C.D.E.: I agree with you that food is important, and a balanced diet is one rule of good health. But I disagree that anything is to be gained by such intricate diets as you urge. And the phrase about "you are what you eat" is much overdone. If you kept 12 birds, of 12 kinds, different sizes and colors, and fed them all the same birdfood, they'd all stay the same color and size.

☆ ☆ ☆

Dear Dr. Molner: I would like some information on removing moles on my face and arm. Many are not large but they do bother me, especially one above my upper lip. What type of doctor specializes in this and what process is used? Is it expensive? Afterward is there any scar? —K.H.

Your doctor doubtless has removed considerable numbers of moles from places that don't show much, and has done it either by simple surgery or electro-coagulation.

On the face, you are very much concerned with having a minimum of scarring, so go (a) to a dermatologist (skin specialist), or (b) in special circumstances, to a plastic surgeon.

Your next question, at this point, will be, "Which do I go to, and where will I find him?" The answer, to both questions, is to ask your regular physician to refer you to the right specialist. Cost, in general, is moderate. Only occasionally will a mole be so located so as to make its removal exceptionally difficult.

Dr. Molner welcomes all reader mail, but regrets that due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Making Great Headway

One must dig hard and deep to find encouraging news in this presently troubled world. But treasures are down below if one digs for them. One such is the relieving statement by an authority on water problems, Abel Wolman, a professor at Johns Hopkins University.

Professor Wolman tells us that the United States has made fine progress in water research, and now has the knowhow to avert any water crisis in the foreseeable future. We are glad to hear that, and, with other Americans, will go back to drinking water without the feeling that it may be the last we shall ever get. And that's the way it should be. Water should be drunk for the pleasure of it without connotations of doom.

Our knowledge of filtration and water treatment is now so expansive that we can derive pure water of anything that is wet. And as proof Prof. Wolman reminds that cities with filtration plants get their water from streams into which upriver towns have dumped their sewage and into which industry has dumped its wastes. Yet the plant's product now eliminates the contaminants of water borne diseases and the water is virtually chemically pure.

Federal efforts have made great strides both in de-contaminating streams and conservation. We are learning to curb the waste of run off rain water, too.

Safeguarding our future water sources is a most undramatic topic and that alone is enough to kill it. But surprisingly enough it has had strong public support and federal programs have been unusually effective. It is estimated that it will take another $1.6 billion to rid the nation's streams of sewage and industrial contaminants, but there seems little doubt but that the public will cheerfully foot the bill and that our streams will be pristine again.

Thoughts On World Law Day

Last Monday was World Law Day and since then several hundred judges, lawyers and legal philosophers from an number of countries are meeting in a serious effort to prepare for the day when all men everywhere will live according to law.

They will probably fail, but not from their own inadequacy. They will fail because the world is not yet sufficiently civilized. But they are on a proper mission because a world under just law is like a ship on the horizon, slowly coming toward shore, bringing relief to hard pressed people. They are creating the favorable breeze that will speed the ship on its way.

President Johnson greeted World Law Day with these words:

"I would call upon citizens throughout the land . . . to reaffirm our abiding American goal of a world where all men live in obedience to the rule of laws that they have chosen, rather than in subjugation to the rule of men they have not chosen."

These are weighty words and it is significant that they were addressed to citizens, not to men of the law. They lay a heavy burden upon the average man, not only to live according to law, but to be ever alert to the necessity of just law.

It is dangerous to consider "law" as a sacred social word and let it go at that. An evil people even though they have been allowed to form their own laws can be a monstrous thing. At best the law can be only slightly better than the ethics of the people who devise it. All in all, it requires a highly civilized people living on an ethical plane to lend high luster to the rule of law.

But law at its worst is still better than the destructive rule of war and the greater application of its principles by men of good will is the broad road to a peaceable world.

Strange World Of Foreign Policy

President Mohammed Ayub Khan of Pakistan must have many people scratching their heads. Having played footsie for some time now with Red China, he has suddenly taken the United States to task for failing to put its foot down in connection with the Pakistan-India dispute over Kashmir.

"The United States can play a very definite role," he said, "by telling India and Pakistan she will not stand for this struggle. She could have brought it about (a solution) in 1962 and could have brought it about today. The United States should have come out more openly and taken a direct hand in this thing. This is not going to do U.S. influence any good."

It would seem to be a case of damned if you do and damned if you don't. Had the U.S. taken the kind of firm stand advoated by Khan, a great hue and cry would have gone up from all sides. Even our allies would have shaken their heads in disapproval of such strong-handed methods on the part of Uncle Sam. We would have been accused of dictatorial intervention and incurred the wrath of both India and Pakistan.

Still, President Khan has made a point that should not be lost with U.S. foreign policy experts. He may be politically motivated in saying what he did but he still struck at one weakness in U.S. policy. This weakness is the frequent failure of this nation to act decisively, to take a firm position before the world on international affairs.

Too often we tempt the communists to try something or encourage such nations as India and Pakistan to settle their differences through war. We do this by leaving ourselves in an uncertain position. This permits us a flexibility that has some value but it doesn't reflect the leadership role we occupy on the world scene. We acted firmly in the Dominican Republic and were criticized for it but we avoided the threat of a communist victory there by acting as we did.

Life In 1990 To Be A Far Cry From What We Know Today

NEW YORK—I have just been reading a prediction of what life will be like 25 years from now.

It inspired me, with shudders, to compose this variation on a child's verse:

"There was a science writer
Who had a grim foresighter
Right in the middle of his cranium:
And when it was good, it was very, very good
But when it was bad, it was insanium."

The writer with the foresighter is a science reporter, Isaac Asimov, and his awful ideas on the world of 1990 A.D. are enough to give claustrophobia to a submarine commander . . .

Many of the world's peoples, particularly the citizens of the advanced nation known as the U.S.A., will live and work below the earth's surface, he predicts. Whole cities will necessarily be built underground, since there will no longer be surface room to move around in, and the aerial pathways will be laden with transportation.

The advantages: underground temperature changes are minor, creating less problems of cooling in summer or warming in the winter. Underground transportation would never be upset by rain or snow. Round-the-clock workshifts would be easy to set up, because the difference between day and night would go unnoticed.

The ground above these sub-cities would be devoted in part to park land for recreation and in part to farming or grazing.

We will be put in an ironic position of living and working in close confinement, sans nature—and bestowing the fresh air and sunshine and grass upon cattle and kids.

For vacation? If we are wealthy (or if we were smart enough in 1965 to buy land in mountains or by the seashore), we can visit the mountains or seashore and get a whiff of fresh air. The jungles of the world, having lost most of their large predators, will be resort areas. The antarctic and the arctic coastlines will be available; granted, the weather isn't perfect, but perhaps we can find a few square feet of privacy.

And there decidedly will be underwater hotels and homes, for people who like aquatic sports and fish for breakfast.

Asimov foresees the dangers of air pollution possibly reduced by a ban on smoking in the open air (if one can get up to the open air), and the introduction of "smokatoriums" for communal ciggarettes smoking.

The only possible pleasant prediction in the entire picture of life a quarter-century hence is the news that men may wear small motors, mounted on their backs, to lift them clear of the ground, speed them to nearby appointments. We may play "air polo" with our motors and helium-inflated plastic balls.

But, Asimov warns, watch out for engine failures. Local city ordinances may confine flying people to sidewalk areas to avoid having them tumble in front of cars. . .

What a future. Makes you want to crawl under a rock?

Go ahead. Do it. You'll be ahead of your time.

Flag On Display

Roca, Neb.

Preceding the Thursday night grandstand show at the Nebraska State Fair, a beautiful version of "The "Star Spangled Banner" was played. But the American flag was not visible.

I am 21 and not old-fashioned. Whatever one's feelings are toward the present government, the flag remains an honorable patriotic symbol. The new fair manager had many details to learn and is not to blame for this oversight. However, I have written him suggesting that next year, it be someone's specific duty to display Old Glory when our national anthem is presented.

A Correction

Lincoln, Neb.

This refers to the article, "Moslem Students In Lincoln Have Conflicting Loyalties In Fighting," on Page 15 of the September 9 Star. I would like the following correction made regarding my part of the statement — the last sentence of the article.

The sentence: "But he added, 'America is indirectly trying to help India by giving advice,' " should have read: "Even if America tries to give advice, it would be an indirect help to India."

I believe this incorrect wording came because of some difficulty in communication on the telephone.

Medicare

Lincoln, Neb.

When someone plans to pull the rug out from under you and someone gets wise to the plot, it's only cricket to broadcast.

The September 3 issue of Life Magazine has quite a shocking portrayal of Medicare. Everyone should read it, then keep up his insurance policy payments.

In July, 1966, when Medicare comes into being, the millions who have waited with anticipation of getting something for nothing are due for a low blow. There will be a cruel gap between what one needs and now can afford, also what he can get. The state of medical facilities is heading into the dreadful inadequacies of the hospital room, impossible demands on doctors, hospitals and rest homes. Their attendants will be unable to properly handle the extra inflow.

The country needs 20,000 more doctors. The nurse situation is even worse. Many nursing homes are unqualified. Congress has set their problem aside until January 1, 1967, before benefits can be received. All medical personnel are fearful of the troubles they are facing.

Medicare provides two kinds of benefits: (1) hospital and nursing home care, and (2) doctor's care. One pays nothing to the government for the first time, needing only to produce a card. He enrolls in a voluntary plan, authorizing the government to deduct $3 a month from Social Security or railroad retirement checks. If he doesn't sign up, eligibility will expire after three years and can't be renewed. One also must pay the first $40 along with other requirements too numerous to mention.

The pictures aren't as they are painted. Thousands of buildings are being tossed together, many unqualified, for nursing homes by builders who are gathering in quick dollars for this new project.

Home On The Mall

Lincoln, Neb.

I sure hope the City Council votes unanimously for the new city mall. It would be a shame if they all did not get the credit. Lincoln then would be almost the first city to have one of these things.

I wouldn't call it a mall—rather, a hobo retreat, or a skunk and rodent rendezvous. Maybe a few "ki-otes" might even come in to see us.

Oh, yes. We are so short of money that taxes must go up.

The mayor for all of the people is not getting paid enough for all the work he has to do, so they are going to try to get him a raise. Being underpaid and overworked causes a person to go to sleep at the wheel sometimes.

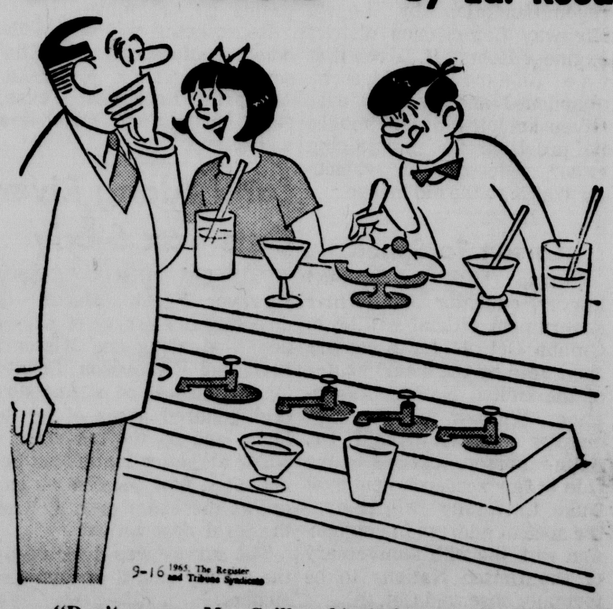
Forgotten

Lincoln, Neb.

I say, with real meaning, that not only do they forget Havelock with the stop-and-go lights for our school youngsters but they have done away with the stop signs that were put out during the arriving and dismissal times.

A MOTHER

OFF THE RECORD By Ed. Reed



"Don't worry, Mr. Grilby—his father is a doctor."

4th Largest Crop Total Predicted

. . . 13% Over '64

Crop conditions in Nebraska as of Sept. 1 indicate total production this year will top last year by 13% and rank as the fourth largest on record, the State-Federal Division of Agricultural Statistics reported Wednesday.

Indicated volume was down slightly from a month earlier because of a decline in prospects for sorghum grain, soybeans, sugar beets and beans.

Corn is estimated to be yielding a record high 66 bushels per acre for a total corn production for grain of 247 million bushels. That's 33 million over last year's 214 million bushels but 56 million under the 1959-63 average of 303 million bushels.

The grain sorghum crop is expected to set a new record high of 148 million bushels, up 46 million from the 1963 record of 102 million bushels. The acreage for grain is the largest of record and the yield per acre is the second highest.

The total tonnage of feed grains produced this year is expected to be 11.6 million, up 2.6 million tons from last year and also well above the 10-year average of 10.1 million tons.

The predicted soybean crop of 17,325,000 bushels would set a record, being nearly six million bushels above last year.

Dry bean production of 1,140,000 bags is only slightly above the 1964 production of 1,116,000 bags.

Sugar beet production is expected to total 1,020,000 tons, substantially below the 1,407,000 tons produced last year. Yield per acre is estimated at 15 tons, compared with 16.3 last year.

Late summer potato production is estimated at 561,000 hundredweight, compared with 528,000 last year. The fall crop is estimated at 1,533,000 hundredweight, compared with 1,463,000 last year.

The estimated production of 7,040,000 tons of all hay this year tops last year by 16% and ranks 8% above average.

Salt-Wahoo Dissolution Vote Nixed

Salt-Wahoo Watershed board members unanimously rejected a request of some 27 landholders in the Branched Oak Dam area asking for a vote on dissolution of the board on the grounds that "Salt-Wahoo is gradually shifting into the recreation business."

Attorney Lawrence Murphy, retained by Mrs. Pearl Lybyer of 1502 South St. to represent landholders in the Branched Oak Dam area, said that the request had asked the board to submit to an election of Salt-Wahoo voters the question of dissolution.

Some 20 of the 27 petitioners attended the Salt-Wahoo board meeting Wednesday.

Further Action Undecided

Mrs. Lybyer reported that any further action on the matter after the proposal was rejected had not yet been decided.

Board members rejected the request on the advice of Robert C. Guenzel of the legal firm which represents Salt-Wahoo. He told the directors that the group has a number of debts and obligations outstanding which would legally prevent Salt-Wahoo from being dissolved.

Murphy argued that the primary purpose of the Salt-Wahoo Watershed—that of flood control — had been accomplished. Now, he said, the group is "gradually shifting into the recreation area."

"People are vociferously opposed to having their farms taken for recreation," he declared.

'Pork-Barrel'

Labeling the Branched Oak dam as a "pork-barrel project," Murphy said after the meeting that the 1963 flood took place on North Oak Creek, "a completely different part of the county than where the Branched Oak Dam is being constructed.

"They are not building the dam where the flood was, but where it is nicer for recreation according to State Game Commission director Mel Steen," Murphy contended.

After the federal government buys the land or the Army Corps of Engineers condemns it "for flood control, they will turn right around and sell it to the state for recreation," he added.

Hearing Will Be Set Soon On Consumers Hallam Boiler Plans

A hearing will be set soon before the State Power Review Board on an application by Consumers Public Power District to construct an additional $6.9 million boiler facility at its Hallam site.

Review Board Chairman William Norton said all power agencies in the state affected by the proposal will be notified.

Madame Chiang To Speak At Wesleyan Convocation

Madame Chiang Kai-shek has accepted an invitation to speak at a Nebraska Wesleyan University convocation and will be given an honorary degree from the Lincoln school during her visit, President Vance Rogers announced Wednesday.

The wife of Generallisimo Chiang Kai-shek accepted the invitation to speak here on her United States tour before she left Taiwan, Dr. Rogers said.

"We are still negotiating for a date," Dr. Rogers added. 'It may be several months before she comes, since she will be in this country five or six months."

Madame Chiang is a 1917 graduate of Wellesley College, Wellesley, Mass., where she was a classmate of Mrs. Thomas C. Woods Sr.

Lincolnite Impressed By Queen At Salvation Army's Gathering

By LUCILLE HUTCHINSON
Star Staff Writer

"Queen Elizabeth, gracing the centenary celebrations of the Salvation Army with her presence," highlighted international ceremonies in London this summer for Major Charles R. Duskin, commanding officer of the Lincoln citadel.

"Her greetings indicated that she was familiar with the workings of the Army around the world," the Nebraska and Dakotas representative on the United States delegation explained. "She gave a very intimate touch that made you feel like she understood the broad scope of Army work."

Some 2,500 official delegates and thousands of other persons attended the six-day centennial sessions.

Duskin was one of the representatives selected from the central states to march in the "colorful and massive pageant" featuring the delegations and their flags.

'Inspirational'

"The plan was of celebration and rededication," the Lincoln commander explained. "The meetings were very inspirational, although informality seemed to be the keynote throughout the ceremonies."

"There were no long speeches," he said, adding that music was featured in every program and event by numerous Salvation Army bands and song groups. The "Century of Salvation Song" pageant was performed by a group of 1,000.

Duskin was honored to meet two retired Salvation Army generals, Albert W. T. Orsborn and Wilfred Kitching." He also spent a memorable evening at dinner with the retired principal of his training college in Chicago, Commander Gordon Simpson.

Simpson's father was an early officer in the Salvation Army and was close to the founder, William Booth, in his work, and the former principal related to Duskin "many personal glimpses of Booth and his ideas."

Toured Holy Land

Major Duskin followed the Centenary Celebrations with a two-week tour of the Holy Land with 65 other Salvation Army officers. On the pilgrimage through Jordan and Israel, the tour "viewed and visited the places where Christ ministered."

Sunday morning services in the Garden of Gethsemane "where it was outstanding to realize this was the area where Christ ministered" especially impressed the commander.

Duskin acquired some 400 slides which he is showing, a few at a time, at the Lincoln post's Sunday night services. Besides relating the story of the Centenary Celebrations in his chapel, Major Duskin has consented to several speaking engagements throughout the city.

$50,000 Sought In 1964 Mishap

Rolf Shasteen, through his mother, Marguerite R. Shasteen, filed a $50,000 damage suit in Lancaster District Court Wednesday against Rupert Young and his son, James, in connection with a Dec. 11, 1964, car-pedestrian accident.

The plaintiffs allege negligence on the part of the defendants when the car, owned by Rupert Young, and driven by his son, James, struck the plaintiff to the pavement and dragged him 35 feet on So. 21st between C and D.

Report On Population Of Elders Examined

By ROBERT PETERSON

The other day President Johnson wanted to emphasize the problems stemming from our increasing elder population and stated, "One and a half million Americans reach 65 each year."

Many who heard him erroneously concluded that our population of elders is actually increasing at the rate of a million and a half annually.

We've got more and more elders all right, but the net gain is far less than the figure cited. A new fact sheet put out by the U.S. Dept. of Health, Education and Welfare says:

"On an average day, about 3,760 Americans celebrate their 65th birthday, and about 2,960 of these pass away. This leaves a net increase of about 800 additional folks past 65 added to the elder population daily."

The report went on to say that of those 2,960 elders who die daily, about 2,000 are victims of a heart or blood vessel condition, and about 420 succumb to some form of cancer.

Currently, there are 18 million Americans past 65, and with an annual net increase of about 300,000, an additional million elders are added to this total each three and a half years.

The report adds that 9.4% of the population is past 65, and that the states with the largest percentage of elders are: Iowa, Florida, Missouri, Nebraska, Kansas, Maine, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, and Vermont. Iowa leads the nation, with 12.4 percent of its population 65 or over.

In leafing through Harvest Years, a magazine for elders, I found an article about Mrs. Ora Dettmer, 80, of Los Angeles, Calif. When asked to what she attributed her enthusiasm for numerous good works in which she engaged, she replied, "It's not magic, it's just good common sense found in two slogans I live by. My father taught us children that we could always 'find a way,' and a former employer always told me, 'do it now.' So whenever I have a problem, I know I shall find a way to solve it and will do it now."

The "do it now" admonition reminded me of a funny story I once heard about a bank president. Eager to stimulate personnel to greater efforts, he devised a campaign using the slogan, "Do it now." He had signs posted everywhere in the office bearing this urgent declaration.

But he had to abandon the campaign after a few weeks when his secretary eloped with a teller, a dozen employes quit to take better jobs elsewhere, and the cashier fled south of the border with a sackful of bank funds.

Cabot Warns Chinese Against Intervention

Warsaw, Poland (AP)—U. S. Ambassador John Moors Cabot met with the Chinese Communist envoy for his last time Wednesday and indicated he had warned against Peking intervening in the India-Pakistan war.

Ordinarily, Cabot is noncommittal when he emerges from the periodic meetings with Ambassador Wang Kuo-chuan of Red China.

But when reporters asked him if he had repeated Secretary of State Dean Rusk's warning to Peking Monday, he replied: "It might be a good assumption."

Troubled Waters

Rusk told the Senate Foreign Relations Committee: "There are those who feel the Communist Chinese are trying to fish in troubled waters our own advice is that they stay out."

Cabot has held 21 meetings with Wang. The day's meeting lasted for two hours and 45 minutes. The two agreed to another meeting Dec. 15. But by that time Cabot will be gone from Warsaw. He is being succeeded as ambassador to Warsaw next month by John A. Gronousky, former postmaster general.

For 3½ years, Cabot has conducted the Warsaw talks, the only diplomatic link between Peking and Washington. The meetings began in 1955 at Geneva and this was the 129th.

Briefly reviewing his 21 sessions with the Chinese, Cabot said: "I believe the talks serve a useful purpose in providing a ready channel of communications but I regret that during this time there has been little progress toward the achievement of reduction of tension in the Far East.

To Continue Efforts

"I am sure that my successor will continue our efforts to achieve a solution to the grave problems confronting Asia."

When reporters asked Cabot to confirm that the India-Pakistan war was discussed, he said, "You could guess," then reminded them of the U.S.-Chinese agreement to maintain secrecy.

When Wang emerged last from the session, a newsman asked him: "Did you like Ambassador Cabot?"

He smilingly raised both hands into the air, as if too fend off the question, then declared:

"We do not attach much importance to the changing of American representatives at the Chinese-American talks. What is important is American policy and its action in pursuing that policy."

Indonesia Aid To Pakistan Is Hostile Act

New Delhi, India (AP)—India has officially informed Indonesia that any military or other help rendered Pakistan will be considered a hostile act to India, Foreign Minister Swaran Singh told parliament Wednesday.

He was replying in a debate raised by members on repeated violent demonstrations against Indian establishments in Jakarta. The Indian embassy has been attacked and the Air India office ransacked.

Singh said, "It is a very serious failure by the Indonesian government to prevent wanton vandalism" and added Jakarta was unable to give "any satisfactory explanation." He rejected demands that diplomatic relations with Indonesia be severed.

Indian-Pakistani Fighting Council Debate Subject

United Nations, N.Y. (AP) — Diplomats said Wednesday the Security Council would meet Friday to resume debate on the India-Pakistan fighting.

They said the council would meet in the aftternoon to consider recommending the Maldive Islands and Singapore for U.N. membership.

Secretary-General U Thant is due Thursday from Pakistan and India, where he tried in vain for a cease-fire. A U.N spokesman said he would submit a report to the council.

NASON ON EDUCATION:

Concept Of Teaching As Learning Tool Moves Into Limelight

By DR. LESLIE J. NASON

"I learned more teaching the subject than I did taking it!"

Over the years, this statement has been made by hundreds of young teachers.

Until recently, educators had overlooked the possibility of using teaching as a learning tool. Now, programs in which college students act as tutors for underprivileged children have brought the idea into the limelight.

As schools get more crowded and classes are larger, there is increasing need for experience of this type.

Those student teachers get the necessary practice in formulating precise thoughts in order to communicate ideas to a younger student. The pupil, in turn, has an opportunity to respond immediately to every idea presented—not just to take his turn among 30 others.

Unless they are forced to express new ideas to another individual in their own words, students are prone to be satisfied with an incomplete grasp or even a fuzzy notion of what they are reading.

Unfortunately, the knowledge does not become theirs unless they think it out in their own words!

To teach another, a student must be able to think out the ideas—and express them—in his own words. The student should not have a purely selfish motive in mind, however. The joy of helping another and the training it gives for citizenship is as valuable as the learning that takes place.

In addition, helping another gives a feeling of being needed. That is something that is often missed in our automated households.

Paralleling changes in home life, there have been similar changes in school life.

In the one-room school, some pupils were always in the process of helping other pupils. It was the only procedure through which eight grades could be taught by a single teacher.

As schools became larger and pupils were separated into rooms by grades, there was less opportunity for one student to help another. Not only did pupils lose some of the feeling of being part of the program, but there was less learning through teaching.

The new programs, both national and local, are not the only sources of opportunity for learning through teaching. Students and even adults needing help in the learning processes are in abundant supply.

Teachers and parents should encourage and help students to search out opportunities to help others and thus to learn through teaching. This would have a bonus effect. As more students find satisfaction in these endeavors they will be attracted to teaching as a life work.

Our future supply of teachers can thus be assured.

Diploma Important—Eitel

Nebraska Labor Commissioner Lambert Eitel Wednesday appealed to Nebraska youngsters to return to school this fall to improve their potential earning capacity.

"High school graduates earn up to 30% more money in their peak earning years than those who don't finish school," Eitel said. "A high school diploma can help you get a good job faster and move up quicker."

He said young people can do a better job of discovering their own abilities by staying in school and gaining a good educational background.

The commissioner said that a high school diploma can mean as much as $1,500 a year more in earnings, or as much as $78,000 during an individual's career.

He predicted that during the next decade, only five per cent of the total Nebraska working force will be unskilled.

World's 7th Highest Dam Going Up In Quebec Wilds

Manicouagan, Que. (AP)—In remote wilderness the world's seventh highest dam is rising as fast as 3,000 men can put it up.

It is part of a $1.5-billion project, the most costly ever undertaken in Canada.

The dam here is the fifth in a series for a power project on the Manicouagan and Outardes Rivers, both flowing south into the St. Lawrence. The dam will be 703 feet high and 4,200 feet across.

Hydro-Quebec, an agency of the Quebec government, is in charge of the project. Quebec already supplies 43% of Canada's power.

Hydro-Quebec's surveys in 1955 showed the rivers' runoff could supply 33 billion kilowatt hours of power a year.

Communities were set up in the wilderness so construction could start. Five hundred families live in one trailer camp. They have movies three nights a week—and plenty of hunting and fishing on days off.

This sort of life will go on for five years to finish the project.

The Ascot authorities have agreed to let promotoer John L. Kennedy, 28, use a large room beneath the grandstand in the silver rinng for once-weekly bingo sessions starting Oct. 1.

Valuations Differ On Chancellor's New Home

Lancaster County Assessor Arhtur M. Davis said Wednesday he would stand on his $79,580 appraisal of the exclusive Knolls residential property acquired for the University of Nebraska chancellor's residence.

"Sale price is only one factor in an appraisal," Davis said. "The property was appraised according to our assessing manual for a luxury-type home and the six factors to be considered under state law."

Davis declined to comment on State Tax Commissioner George Dworak's announcement he has ordered a study made of real estate valuations in The Knolls, a residential district just south of the city.

Dworak's action came after different values were placed on the residence, now occupied by Paul Schorr Jr. and his family.

The University Foundation valued the home at $99,500, but Schorr has said it was worth $175,000.

The Lancaster County Assessor's office lists its value for tax purposes at $79,580.

the University's Board of Regents agreed earlier this week to a lease-purchase agreement whereby the University will pay $475 per month for the next 35 years for the spacious home with the option of purchase for the lease price plus $1,000.

Dworak said he ordered the study because "we want to find out the true value of these properties, that's all."

He noted that the State Board of Equalization last month ordered property valuations raised in Lancaster County. He said the different values on the Schorr property supports this action.

Lancaster County has filed a Supreme Court appeal from the action of the state board.

Dworak also said the disparity in valuations indicates the need for reappraisal for Lancaster County.

The county completed a county-wide reappraisal in 1954 and must start a mandatory reappraisal under a 1963 state law by Jan. 1, 1968.

The Knolls is currently developed by approximately 20 homes and is outside the city and Lincoln School District.

Davis said the Schorr residence was "assessed by the manual" just like any other high-quality type home in Lincoln "less a 10 to 15% reduction factor for rural location."

Davis said the assessing manual uses basic construction costs for various type residences, but an appraisal can't compute "the extras or special quality features that may be built in."

"I understand the home has a very expensive lighting system built into it with other automatic electrical features," Davis added. (Schorr heads a large electrical contracting firm.)

The assessor also said an owner "may put more money into a home than he can get back out on the average market, particularly in a luxury-type home."

Davis said "Lancaster County valuations are equalized between individual and classes or property."

He said one reported sale price "doesn't upset" equalization of assessments.

Fire Station In Operation For Belmont

Lincoln's 10th fire station went into operation Wednesday at 1440 Adams in Belmont.

The new facility, which cost in the neighborhood of $60,000, will accommodate two trucks, 10 men, and has a combination recreation-training room.

One of the recently purchased Mack pumper trucks will be on duty at the red and white brick station.

The Belmont station is headed by Capt. August R. Kolb, 2140 No. 25th, who was formerly rig captain at the 23rd and O station. Kolb has 22 years experience in fire-fightinng.

Morrison Favors More Appointed Posts

Gov. Frank Morrison says he would favor a change under which most state officials presently elected would instead be appointed by the governor.

He referred to the attorney general, secretary of state, state treasurer, state auditor and the five members of the state railway commission.

If these officers were dropped from the ballot, the state ticket would be left with only the governor and lieutenant governor as elected officials.

Dislikes Long Ballots

Gov. Morrison said he dislikes long ballots and said the present system "diffuses responsibility."

In an interview Tuesday night on KOLN-TV, Lincoln, and KGIN-TV, Grand Island, Morrison said the average citizen has his hands full acquainting himself with candidates for "the important offices" — governor, Congress and the U.S. Senate.

Having the other offices filled by appointment instead of by public election would improve the quality of the office holders and centralize responsibility, he suggested.

In reference to an appointed attorney general, Gov. Morrison described the present attorney general, Clarence A. H. Meyer, as "one of the finest attorney generals in the United States."

"He's a very competent man, with whom I've worked very closely," said Morrison, a Democrat, of Meyer, a Republican.

'Two-Headed Committee' Plan Hit

The Nebraska Centennial Commission Wednesday balked temporarily at designating the governor's Keep Nebraska Beautiful Council as the official centennial betterment committee.

"I've never seen a two-headed committee do well," said Commission Member A. James Ebel of Lincoln.

Commission Director Donald Shriner had proposed the designation, noting that the governor's council is an ambitious group without funds and the centennial commission has a $2,000 surplus in its betterment fund which could be given to the council.

Not Under Control

Several commission members feared the council would be receiving commission funds but would not be under the commission's control.

Shriner was instructed to meet with council members and Gov. Frank Morrison to determine if the council could be made directly responsible to the Centennial Commission.

In other action, the commission authorized the taking of bids for the production of 116,500 commemorative centennial medals, with the retail prices ranging from $1 to $30 per medal.

Shriner said the commission could realize a total profit of $127,000 from the sale of the medals, which would begin next summer.

The commission also:

Centennial Gun

—Designated a Winchester rifle as the official centennial gun, with 2,500 to be produced, each bearing a centennial medalion. The commission will receive $5 for each $100 rifle sold, only through Nebraska distributors.

—Discussed the possibility of purchasing giant fiberglass cowboy figures to place on the major roads entering Nebraska as a welcome sign to tourists.

Stuckey, Wolf Named To Platte Power Positions

Gov. Frank Morrison Wednesday appointed Dewayne Wolf of Kearney and Lyman Stuckey of Lexington to fill vacancies on the Platte Valley Public Power and Irrigation District Board of Directors. Lloyd Kain of Lexington and A. E. Payne of Kearney recently resigned from the Platte board to accept directorships with the newly created Nebraska Power Grid System.

Wolf's term on the Platte board will end in January, 1971, and Stuckey's term will expire in January, 1967.

Nine Penitentiary Inmates Granted Paroles

The State Board of Pardons Wednesday granted paroles to nine inmates at the Nebraska State Penitentiary.

The sentences of two Benkelman youths were commuted and they were discharged. Marlin Turman, 21, and Benny Turpin, 22, were convicted of rape in the District Court of Dundy County.

Each was sentenced to six years in January, 1963, on the convictions.

Other cases heard, giving name, age, home, crime, county in which convicted, term (in years), date sentenced and board action:

Donald E. Harmon, 41, Omaha; robbery, Douglas, eight, Oct. 8, 1961, commuted to a detainer.

Arvid W. Holmquist, 45, Omaha; two counts of robbery, Douglas and Lancaster, nine and 11, May 25, 1961, and Sept. 12, 1961, deferred 30 days.

James L. Maruschak, 23, Pennsylvania; forgery, Washington, two, July 1, 1964, commuted to a detainer.

Raymond McKeown, 32, Denver, Colo.; breaking and robbery, Dixon and Dawson, five, Dec. 12, 1962, paroled.

Robert C. Lipscomb, 38, none; possession of forged instrument, Dodge, seven, March 27, 1962, paroled.

M. W. Fleming 43, Omaha; no account checks, Douglas, three, May 19, 1964, paroled.

Lowell C. Crain, 30, Greenleaf, Kan.; shooting to kill, wound or maim, Gage, two, Sept. 24, 1964, paroled.

Gary L. Bohl, 26, Holdrege; possession of forged check, Gosper, one to two, Sept. 25, 1964.

James H. Johnson, 25, Grand Island; breaking and entering, Hall, five, June 30, 1963, paroled effective Dec. 1.

Donald B. Chapman, 36, Niobrara; larceny from person, auto theft and robbery, Knox, five, Dec. 17, 1962, paroled.

Anthony D. Hodgins, 41, no home; burglary, Lancaster, two and one half, May 30, 1964, paroled.

Jay Shoop, 33, Gordon; forgery, Sheridan, 30 months, May 22, 1964, paroled.

Church Property Appeal Undecided

The Lancaster County Board of Equalization has not made a decision as to whether it will appeal Lancaster District Judge Elmer Scheele's Tuesday ruling to take some 20 properties owned by the Catholic Church off the tax rolls.

Board Chairman William Grossman said Wednesday that he hadn't had an opportunity to discuss a possible appeal with the other board members.

He noted that exempting certain properties from taxation "is a legal decision on which we had no fight, and we'll certainly abide by the decision of the court."

Statewide Implications

However, he said, since the court's decision has statewide implications, it may be appealed.

Deputy County Atty. Floyd Sterns, who handles tax matters for the county, said the cases might be appealed by either side.

Regarding the effect the ruling might have on other parsonages and church property placed on the tax rolls last year, Sterns said, "There is no way to tell how other properties may be affected by this ruling."

County Assessor Arthur Davis said he had no comment on the ruling at this time.

The Board of Equalization last year recommended that a majority of some 90 church parsonages be on the tax rolls on the basis of an opinion by the state attorney general.

The opinion stated that if the primary and predominant use of the parsonage is that of a dwelling, it would probably be taxable, but if the primary and dominant use of the property is for church activities to the extent that it virtually becomes a part of the operation of the church, it would be exempt.

22 Appeals Pending

In addition to the 20 Catholic cases on which Judge Scheele ruled, there are 22 similar appeals pending in Lancaster District Court.

Included are: five Lutheran Church properties; nine Seventh-day Adventist Church connected properties; one Methodist; one Congregational; three Episcopal; one Evangelical, and the Benedictine Convent of Madonna Home and a farm left in trust for the Orthopedic Hospital.

Food Stamp Participation Up In County

By the Associated Press

Total participation in Lancaster County's food stamp project increased eight per cent durig July, according to Dennis M. Doyle, director of the U.S. Department of Agriculture's food distribution Midwest area office in Chicago.

Doyle said 1,109 participants spent $13,158 for food stamp coupons worth $19,265 in the Nebraska county, receiving bonus coupons of $6,107. This was an average of $5.51 in bonus coupons per person.

In an 11-state Midwest area, 273,795 persons took part duriing July, compared with 270,598 in June. They purchased $3,434,322 worth of coupons and were issued $1,658,741 in bonus coupons.

The program is a federally supported food assistance project, designed to increase the food buying power of low-income families and those persons receiving some type of public or general welfare. A person buys an amount in food coupons equal to what he would normally spend each month for food, and is then issued bonus coupons permitting him to buy additional foods at local retail food stores.

Two Speech Writers Leave LBJ

Washington (AP) — Two of President Johnson's key assistants are resigning, leaving a big hole in his speech-writing staff. The departing aides are Richard N. Goodwin and Horace Busby.

The White House announced Wednesday that Johnson accepted the resignation "reluctantly and regretfully."

Goodwin, regarded as something of the "resident intellectual" in Johnson's inner circle, will depart Sept. 20. Busby, who has worked for Johnson on and off for nearly 18 years, leaves Oct. 1.

Neither of the $28,500-a-year jobs has been filled. However, Press Secretary Bill D. Moyers said presidential assistant Harry McPherson Jr., a Texas-born newcomer to the staff, will take over many of Goodwin's chores outside the speech-writing department.

Goodwin will join the staff of the center for advanced studies at Wesleyan University, Middletown, Conn., to do research and writing. There had been rumors for some time that the resignation of this 34-year-old former top aide to President John F. Kennedy, was imminent.

Busby, 41, will become a management consultant in Washington. Before joining the White House staff, he published a Washington newsletter for businessmen. His resignation came as something of a surprise but the White House said he never had planned to stay indefinitely.

Goodwin generally is credited with having done much of the work on many of Johnson's most important public speeches and statements—notably in the areas of civil rights and social welfare legislation.

He is believed to have played a major role, along with British economist Barbara Ward, in persuading Johnson to adopt the "Great Society" label for the administration's domestic goals.

Bundy Aide

Busby has served as secretary to the Cabinet and as a deputy to McGeorge Bundy, Johnson's assistant for national security affairs. He also helped in the writing of presidential statements and speeches.

Goodwin, in a letter to Johnson, said "compelling personal reasons make it necessary for me to leave." He said he will continue to support administration policies and, "perhaps, in some small way, I can continue to be of service."

Busby

Goodwin

Busby wrote Johnson that he had reluctantly concluded he should resign and said, "I can resign my desk but not my devotion."

Moyers said McPherson will take over Goodwin's responsibilities for fashioning and promoting administration programs in the areas of urban affairs, civil rights, the arts and humanities and social and economic problems.

McPherson, 36, has been associated with Johnson off and on since graduation from the University of Texas law school in 1956. He joined the staff a few months ago after serving as assistant secretary of state for educational and cultural affairs.

U.S. May Close Indonesian Consulates Unless Protected

Washington (UPI) — The two U.S. consulates in Indonesia, both targets of rioters this week, may be closed down unless the Indonesian government gives assurances that they will be better protected, U.S. officials said Wednesday.

The United States believes that attacks on American property in Indonesia are being tolerated if not outright ordered by President Sukarno's government.

The warning that the consulates, at Medan and Suribaya, might be closed was understood to have been given to the Indonesians this week by Secretary of State Dean Rusk and Marshall Green, the U.S. ambassador in Jakarta. Both protested the latest in a long series of attacks and harrassments against U.S. property.

Last Friday Rusk called in Indonesian Ambassador Lambertus N. Palar and protested a riotous 24-hour demonstration against the consulate in Suribaya. Tuesday rioters again harassed the Suribaya and Medan consulates. They were protesting U.S. policy in Viet Nam as well as America's alleged backing of India against Pakistan.

Attorney For Nursing Home Association Documenting Rules Administration Claims

By JOHN ARMSTRONG
Associated Press Writer

An attorney for the Nebraska Nursing Home Association said Wednesday he is compiling "well documented" information supporting the association's contention that the State Health Department is not properly administering rules and regulations for nursing homes.

He said the information, accompanied by affidavits and photographs, will be sent to Gov. Frank Morrison within a month.

"The information will contain about 12 to 15 separate charges," said William M. Homan, an Omaha attorney, "and each charge will be fully supported by evidence."

Sounded Complaints

The association, which represents 125 of Nebraska's 330 licensed nursing homes, first sounded the complaints at a special public hearing before Gov. Morrison in May. The governor insisted that the accusations be put in writing.

Homan said the information to be sent to Morrison will include some charges not discussed at the May hearing.

In addition, he said, the association will recommend creation of a separate division of nursing homes under the Department of Health and a nursing homes advisory council patterned after the present Hospital Advisory Council.

Licensing System

He said the group will also suggest that a licensing system be established to cover all nursing homes in the state.

"There are many substandard homes which are not inspected because they are not licensed," Homan said. "These homes should be subject to the same rules as are licensed homes and should be forced to improve their standards or close down."

Verne A. Pangborn, head of the division of hospital and medical facilities, currently administers the State Health Department's nursing home program. He has denied the association's charges.

No Ax To Grind

"We have no particular ax to grind with Mr. Pangborn personally," Homan said, "but when there's no logic or consistency to enforcement of rules and regulations, you go to the top to find the cause."

Homan claimed the association has submitted lists of substandard homes to Pangborn but "nothing is done about it."

Pangborn, on the other hand, claims he has investigated every nursing home complaint ever submitted to him.

Will Be Discussed

State Health Director E. A. Rogers said the State Board of Health will discuss the association's complaints at the board's regular meeting Monday.

The association decided to make its charges public after the State Health Department announced its intentions to substantially increase the standards for licensure of nursing homes.

The health board is scheduled to hold an October public hearing on the proposed new standards.

In addition, he said, the association will recommend creation of a separate division of nursing homes under the Department of Health and a nursing homes advisory council patterned after the present Hospital Advisory Council.

Licensing System

He said the group will also suggest that a licensing system be established to cover all nursing homes in the state.

"There are many substandard homes which are not inspected because they are not licensed," Homan said. "These homes should be subject to the same rules as are licensed homes and should be forced to improve their standards or close down."

Verne A. Pangborn, head of the division of hospital and medical facilities, currently administers the State Health Department's nursing home program. He has denied the association's charges.

No Ax To Grind

"We have no particular ax to grind with Mr. Pangborn personally," Homan said, "but when there's no logic or consistency to enforcement of rules and regulations, you go to the top to find the cause."

Homan claimed the association has submitted lists of substandard homes to Pangborn but "nothing is done about it."

Pangborn, on the other hand, claims he has investigated every nursing home complaint ever submitted to him.

Will Be Discussed

State Health Director E. A. Rogers said the State Board of Health will discuss the association's complaints at the board's regular meeting Monday.

The association decided to make its charges public after the State Health Department announced its intentions to substantially increase the standards for licensure of nursing homes.

The health board is scheduled to hold an October public hearing on the proposed new standards.

U.S. May Close Indonesian Consulates Unless Protected

Washington (UPI) — The two U.S. consulates in Indonesia, both targets of rioters this week, may be closed down unless the Indonesian government gives assurances that they will be better protected, U.S. officials said Wednesday.

The United States believes that attacks on American property in Indonesia are being tolerated if not outright ordered by President Sukarno's government.

The warning that the consulates, at Medan and Suribaya, might be closed was understood to have been given to the Indonesians this week by Secretary of State Dean Rusk and Marshall Green, the U.S. ambassador in Jakarta. Both protested the latest in a long series of attacks and harrassments against U.S. property.

Last Friday Rusk called in Indonesian Ambassador Lambertus N. Palar and protested a riotous 24-hour demonstration against the consulate in Suribaya. Tuesday rioters again harassed the Suribaya and Medan consulates. They were protesting U.S. policy in Viet Nam as well as America's alleged backing of India against Pakistan.

POSTCARD by Stan Hagle

Down to the airport to meet incoming friends this brisk day. (Autumn seems to have come overnight. How did that happen?)

The planes were moored alongside the passenger docks, all gleaming in the morning sun. Baggage disappeared into the open interiors. And gourmet luncheons, encased in canisters, were joisted in to be eaten half-way to New York.

Stewardesses arrived in pairs, scarfs tied over the uniform hats. (To keep their hair from blowing out of place. Ask questions, dear boy, or you'll never get the answers.)

☆ ☆ ☆

If you've been keeping up with Congress lately, you should know that stewardesses are being phased out at age 32.

One day these chicks are 31 and desirable.

Next day, 32 and a has-been.

Stewardesses getting near that 32 mark are considerably upset. And a congressional committee is looking into this airline policy to see what can be done.

☆ ☆ ☆

A couple of dozen stewardesses went to the committee meeting. They quoted an airline executive on his reasons:

"It's the sex thing." He said if you put an older stewardess on a run, "20 businessmen are sore for a month."

Since jets run about 100 passengers a load, this is a 20% sore factor. Understandably, airlines don't want anybody sore at them. And certainly not 20% of the commuting brief case trade.

The stewardesses, it seemed to me, made a mighty poor argument. They said it was unfair.

Pleas for fairness get scant attention, life being a pretty chancy thing anyway.

Where these girls made the mistake was telling their ages in the first place. A lady by long custom is allowed to lie about her age. And the time to do it is when you're signing on.

What these girls need is some good public relations counsel. Get the idea going that you don't want some childish chick pouring coffee, tea or milk in your lap.

This can be done by interviewing the Ten Best Dressed Men of the Year. (Men who get in that league will say anything.)

Interview men movie stars — no star is going to put the knock on a lady for being any age.

It will soon be discovered (by the 20 sore businessmen) that 32 is just the right age.

Each one will think he discovered it himself. And the line with 32-year-old stewardesses will have to put on extra flights to keep up with the rush.

☆ ☆ ☆

Watching the sleek, scarfed stewardesses head for the sleek, gleaming planes, it occurs to me that 32 is an excellent age.

A lady at 32 is just beginning to get the hang of how to make a dry martini.

A doll at 32 is — well, a doll. That's what.

Said the congressman on the committee: "Airlines need to be educated to the fact that they are not operating flying Bunny clubs."

☆ ☆ ☆

During a good deal of flying, I interviewed many stewardesses. I learned a lot about company policies.

How many miles they walked. Why all stewardesses must wear girdles whether they need them or not. (Ask questions, dear boy, or you'll never get the story.)

It seemed to me that they didn't know the answers until they reached 32. Not the right answers anyway.

AFL-CIO Will Be Asked To Oppose Income Tax

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

A resolution has been prepared for submission to the State AFL-CIO convention in Lincoln this month asking it to go on record in opposition to the state income tax law.

The resolution — first of what could be several proposed policy statements on the subject—will be presented to the convention's resolutions committee for its consideration, State President Richard Nisley of Omaha said Wednesday.

The convention itself will be the final voice in determining whether the 70,000-member labor organization should endorse or oppose the tax law, or take no position at all.

Declined

Nisley declined to state his own personal opinion on the law, although he said he will offer a personal judgment to the resolutions committee if so requested.

"I am not against a broadened tax base," he pointed out.

"I certainly think we need additional tax money."

Certain Problems

But, Nisley noted, the Duis Amendment (which would force the state out of the property tax field once a sales or income tax becomes effective) presents "certain problems" in adopting a fair and equitable tax base.

Nebraska voters next year will consider a proposed constitutional amendment which would alter the Duis proviso to permit the state to continue to finance capital construction projects with property tax revenue after a sales or income tax took effect.

The amendment would also require Nebraska to initiate a program of state aid to education once the tax base were broadened, channeling at least 20% of such revenue into the common schools.

Other Resolutions

Resolutions regarding the Duis issue will also be considered at the convention, Nisley said.

The State AFL-CIO executive board will hear arguments on both sides of the income tax issue prior to the convention's formal opening.

Invited to appear before the board are John Klosterman of David City, chairman of the pro-income tax "Nebraskans for Fair Taxation," and Dr. Allen Burkhardt of Norfolk, executive secretary of the Association of Nebraska Taxpayers.

Entire Issue

The entire tax issue will probably generate "some discussion" at the convention, Nisley said.

The AFL-CIO will meet in Lincoln Sept. 27-29.

Among speakers listed on the tentative schedule are Gov. Frank Morrison and Rep. Clair Callan.

Featured banquet speaker will be Sen. Gale McGee of Wyoming, a former Nebraskan. Former Gov. Robert Crosby will serve as master-of-ceremonies at the banquet.

Nisley will be a candidate for re-election as state president.

Some 400 delegates are expected to participate in the convention.

Richest Kuwait Boycotts Arabs' Common Market

Damascus, Syria (AP) — The seventh regular conference of the Arab Economic Unity Council opened in Damascus Wednesday without its richest member Kuwait.

Attending are 40 representatives of the United Arab Republic, Syria, Iraq and Jordan, the founding members of the council and the Arab common market. The 12-day conference is to lower customs barriers and speed up freedom of personnel movement among member states.

The Kuwait parliament recently voted against joining the common market.

Three Awarded Rotary Grants

Three Lincoln high school graduates were awarded $150 scholarships through the Lincoln Rotary Community Service Fund Tuesday.

The students, their school and the college they will attend: Miss Connie Beck, College View Academy, Union College; Bruce Edward Raymer, Lincoln High School, University of Nebraska; Diane Beilby, Lincoln Southeast High School, Nebraska Wesleyan University.

Little Girl Trapped In Legal Battle Over Custody Of Her

Petoskey, Mich. (AP) — Little Gerri Lynn Ernst should have joined other 5-year-olds in kindergarten this week, but instead she is under guard in a hospital, caught in a bitter 3-year-old custody battle being waged by her father and maternal grandparents.

The latest step in the legal tug-of-war came at midnight when the child, described by at least one doctor as "extremely emotionally upset," was transferred from another hospital under a court order.

Emmet County Circuit Judge Charles L. Brown ordered the child transferred over the objections of her physician.

"I consider the transfer necessary in order to remove all possible disturbing influences which might slow the child's recovery," Brown said.

'Terrible Thing'

"I don't know what they are thinking of but it sure isn't the welfare of that child," said Dr. John Conti, chief of staff at Petoskey's Lockwood - McDonald Hospital. "It's a terrible thing that her mental and physical health are not being considered."

The court order to transfer the child to nearby Little Traverse Bay Hospital was presented at midnight by Sheriff Richard Zink.

The bitter legal battle, involving Gerri Lynn's father, Jack Ernst, a thrice-married salesman, and the child's maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Martin Flynn, has dragged on for three years from Emmet County courts in northern Lower Michigan to the Michigan Supreme Court.

Brown said Ernst petitioned for the transfer and also asked, and was granted, permission to place the child under care of Dr. Jack Postle.

Brown said the sheriff reported that Gerri laughed, joked and played with him after the grandparents left "as any child would do under the most normal circumstances."

Ernst Guardian

The courts have ruled "unquestionably" that Ernst is the legal guardian of the child, Brown said. He added a guard would be placed on Gerri Lynn's room 24 hours a day and that only hospital personnel or persons specified by the court would be allowed to see the child.

Brown said Sheriff Zink was ordered to turn Gerri Lynn over to her father when she is released from the hospital.

The Flynns placed Gerri Lynn under Dr. Conti's care last week after Brown ordered them to turn her over to her father.

Gerri Lynn's mother died in 1960. She has been living with her grandparents on the Flynn's 40-acre farm near Petoskey since she was five months old.

During the long legal proceedings, the Flynns charged Ernst was "unfit" and had abandoned Gerri Lynn. He charged the Flynns with "poisoning" his daughter's mind against him.

Union Membership Increase Behind Non-Farm Workers

Washington (UPI) — Union membership in the United States edged up in 1964 but did not keep pace with increases in the non-farm labor force, the Labor Department reported Wednesday.

It said American Union membership rose about 255,000 to 16,841,000 during the two-year period from 1962 to 1964.

If Canadian members of unions with headquarters in this country are included, the total is 17,976,000. This over-all figure increased 346,000 since 1962.

But the Labor Department figures indicate the percentage of union members in nonfarm establishments dropped from 29.2 to 28.9. This compares to 33.4% in 1956.

If the entire labor force is measured, the percentage of union members is even less—21.9% last year compared to 24.8% in 1956.

Officials said the membership fluctuations appeared to be related to general economic conditions.

AFL-CIO affiliates reported 15,150,000 members in 1964, compared with 14,830,000 two years earlier.

The Teamsters Union, out of the AFL-CIO, still has the biggest membership — 1,506,769. This was a gain of nearly 50,000 over its 1962 total.

The largest AFL-CIO union is the United Auto Workers, headed by Walter P. Reuther, with a 1964 membership of 1,168,067. An increase of about 95,000.

Earl Of Snowdon Gets Towed Car

London (AP)—Police found a sporty Aston Martin parked in a no-parking area in London's Westminster district Wednesday. They hauled it across the Thames to the police pound.

The Earl of Snowdon, husband of Princess Margaret, the queen's sister, paid two pounds ($5.60) to release the car which belonged to him.

House For Governor Poverty Veto

Washington (AP)—The House balked Wednesday at a provision removing the governor's veto power over anti-poverty projects and sent a $1.78 billion authorization bill back to the Senate.

By a vote of 208 to 179 the House adopted a motion by Rep. William H. Ayres, R-Ohio, calling on the House conferees to insist that a mild form of veto approved earlier by the House be retained in the final bill.

The House version would have given governors the veto power over community action and work-training projects in their states, but authorized the director of the program to override such vetos.

Veto Stripped

The Senate stripped all veto power over the two types of projects from its bill and in a joint House-Senate conference the Senate view prevailed.

Republicans attacked the House conferees for yielding on the issue, however, and forced a roll call vote on the motion calling for the conference to be resumed.

The House action cannot bind the Senate to yield, however, and the prospect is for a long tie-up in conference.

The bill would authorize $1.78 billion for carrying on the administration's "war on poverty" for another year, nearly double the present spending level.

Republicans voted solidly for Ayres' amendment, casting 126 votes, without a single defection. Eighty-two Democrats joined them to produce the setback to the leadership.

A provision for removal of the veto was originally put into the House bill by the Education and Labor Committee but a compromise was worked out after many governors complained.

The version approved by the House would authorize the director of OEO to override a veto when he felt the plan involved met the standards of the legislation. The intent of sponsors of the provision was to prevent governors from vetoing projects on racial, or other grounds not directly related to the project itself.

The veto power has been used sparingly in the year the program has been in existence. The governors of Texas, Alabama and Montana have exercised it. In each case, critics charged either race or politics was the motivation, but the governors' denied it.

Giant Pumps Thrown In; Teller Starts CD ROW

New Orleans (AP)—Two giant pumps were thrown into a battle Wednesday to drive Hurricane Betsy's flood waters out of eastern New Orleans where thousands of persons were driven from their homes five days ago.

City police roped off a 300-block area in the flooded section as a health menace. A nauseating stench permeated the area which was cluttered with mud, green scum, debris and hundreds of carcasses of dead animals.

While the clean-up campaign expanded, controversy flared over the civil defense agency's role in warning of the impending billion-dollar disaster.

Attacks Civil Defense

Dr. Edward Teller, famed nuclear physicist, said in an interview with the New Orleans States-Item that if the Civil Defense organization here "had been on its toes," the people who died in the flood would have been evacuated earlier from the potential flood areas.

SEARCH . . . for sunken chlorine barge goes on as diver hits water.

"It is incredible," Teller told a reporter, "that people had only 20 minutes between the time they first knew water was rising and the time it reached a height over their heads to get out. Then it's too late."

Louisiana counted 62 hurricane deaths, most of them as the result of tides driven over eastern New Orleans and adjoining St. Bernard Parish.

Teller, here to address a meeting, said the death toll and property destruction caused by the hurricane would have been considerably less if the city's Civil Defense structure had been adequately prepared.

Mayor Angered

Mayor Victor Schiro angrily denounced Teller's statement and said New Orleans "has the best there is" in Civil Defense.

"That God we had it," he said.

City Civil Defense Director Charles W. Erdmann denied Teller's charge about inadequate perparedness.

"We were prepared, even two days before," Erdmann said. "The people did have adequate warning."

"I am afraid that he (teller) is not in possession of all the facts," added State Civil Defense Director Marshall Cappel. "I know that warning was issued at the earliest possible moment."

The Army Corps of Engineers, meanwhile, hauled in two large diesel-driven pumps to remove flood water from an area hardest hit by flood waters.

Below Sea Level

Much of New Orleans lies below sea level behind an intricate system of levees and seawalls. Giant pumping stations work day and night to carry off the city's drainage. They have a capacity of 19 billion gallons a day.

City officials also expected to return to operation within a couple of days a regular pumping station knocked out by Betsy's fury.

Life was returning to normal in other parts of the Crescent City. Electric power was restored to 70% of the homes along with 86% of the telephone service.

Thirteen-thousand persons in the flooded area were given anti-dipththeria shots.

Efforts were being made to reopen the Mississippi, closed at Baton Rouge since Sunday while a 300-man force searched for a barge loaded with 600 tons of chlorine sealed in four tanks. Officials feared that a river vessel might strike the barge and rupture the tanks.

High School Boys Petition To Save Haircut Freedom

Denver (UPI)—Some 300 Denver area high school boys, fearful of a decree which might send them to the barbers, announced they intended to petition the Denver school board for freedom of expression—of haircuts.

Don Canveny, a spokesman for the group and a senior at North High, said the group would present the petition asking that boys be allowed to determine their own kinds of haircuts.

The 300 represent every school in the area, he said.

Army Change May Need Congress OK

Washington (AP)—Senate and House conferees agreed in a $46.7 billion defense appropriation bill Wednesday to accept strong Senate language barring a realignment of Army reserve units without express approval of Congress.

The administration had proposed earlier this year a consolidation of National Guard and reserve components.

The original House version of the bill avoided the controversy but fixed personnel strength of the reserves and the guard.

The conferees also agreed to drop from the bill a Senate provision that would have required at least 35% of Navy ship repair, alteration and conversion to be contracted for with privately-owned shipyards.

The compromise agreement, announced by Chairman George H. Mahon, D-Tex., of the House Appropriations Committee, is scheduled for a House vote Friday.

The compromise retained an extra $1.7 billion appropriation added by the Senate to help finance U.S. military operations in Viet Nam.

As the bill passed the House in June, it appropriated $45,188,244,000. The Senate voted $46,877,063,000, including the additional funds for the Viet Nam program.

The Pentagon had been lobbying to soften the Senate language on reserves. Although blocked by a series of congressional actions from carrying out the original plan to merge all Army reserve units into the National Guard, defense officials still had hopes for a more limited merger.

Their idea, sources said, was to develop and train three divisions, six brigades and supporting units from reserve components—that is, the reserves and the Guard—and put them under the National Guard.

Deputy Secretary of Defense Cyrus R. Vance said these super-high priority units were needed in case reserves were called up in the Viet Nam crisis.

But some opponents of the merger argued that the units could be trained and strengthened without a realignment and that the Pentagon plan was only a big first step toward the merger.

'First Phase' LAFB Report Due Sept. 22

Mayor Dean Petersen said Wednesday that the "phase one" report on a New York consulting firm's study of possible uses for Lincoln Air Force Base facilities will be made public Sept. 22.

The mayor said that representatives of Frederic Harris and Associates will present the report at a 10 a.m. meeting of the Lincoln Opportunity Team at the Chamber of Commerce building.

The firm, hired by the team's advisory committee, started in early June to determine the economic impact of the base's deactivation on the community and to suggest after study possible uses of base facilities for other purposes.

The city, Lincoln Airport Authority and the chamber's industrial development committee have agreed to split the cost of the study and have authorized expenditures up to $20,000.

HIM MAKES THE ROUNDS

President Johnson's beagle, Him, makes the rounds Wednesday in the White House Cabinet Room. He is inspecting a group of government career workers assigned temporarily to congressional committees to learn how they operate.

Way Sought To Keep 'Head Start'

Finding a non-profit incorporated agency to continue the program started by Project Head Start is the new responsibility of the summer project's advisory committee, according to its chairman, the Rev. Lawrence L. Stanton.

Although the continuation program would not go under the name Project Head Start, it would have a similar purpose of providing enrichment for culturally deprived children, he said.

The advisory committee is "very interested in continuing the project in one or more centers," Rev. Stanton declared.

Not As Many

According to the committee chairman, the anticipated program must be "community-wide, although it probably won't be able to handle as many children as were in the summer project."

The public schools and social agencies have been suggested as possible sponsoring groups, Rev. Stanton said. He added that a separate agency, formed for this specific purpose, also could apply for the responsibility.

The applicant agency must be approved by a community action group according to procedures outlined in the Economic Opportunity Act, the Lincoln minister pointed out.

Operating Soon

The Lincoln Community Council is still in the process of forming a community action group. But Rev. Stanton predicted that group would be operating 'within a month or two."

The former advisory committee is counting on federal funds to continue the Head Start program, but has not yet been able to discover how much money is available or the requirements to qualify.

Five-State YMCA Conference Ends

. . . CATHOLIC PARTICIPATION DISCUSSED

By LUCILLE HUTCHINSON
Star Staff Writer

YMCA secretaries from a five-state area concluded their fall clinic here Wednesday with a discussion of recent changes in the Social Security law. The discussion was led by Forrest Wharry of New York City, head of the Association of Secretaries retirement fund.

Three women and nearly 100 men attended the leadership training sessions and orientation meetings for junior secretaries during the past four days, according to John Johnson, general secretary of the Lincoln YMCA.

YMCA secretaries, Johnson explained, are the professional staff hired by laymen to direct YMCA programs. Secretaries must serve from three to five years before they can be promoted from junior to certified secretary.

Resource Experts

The West Central area association, including Nebraska, Kansas, Colorado, Wyoming and Missouri, brought to Lincoln several resource experts in the national YMCA organization to lead the training sessions:

Dr. Clifford Carey and Sunderland Miller, both of New York City, led skill training groups in management skills; Bill Cumler of Cleveland, Ohio, led groups in physical fitness testing; and Glen E. Allen of Los Angeles, Calif., headed groups in organization and programming of youth clubs.

Father Raymond Hain, director of the Catholic student Center at the University of Nebraska, addressed the YMCA leaders on their relationship with the Catholic church, suggesting interaction between the YMCA, YWCA and Catholic Youth Organizations.

Noting several instances where bishops have removed all restrictions on Catholic participation in Y activities, Fr. Hain pointed out that top Y officials had indicated that "some attitudes and practices" needed to be modified.

He told the YMCA secretaries that there still is need for dialogue between the Y and the Catholic Church on several matters: conversion; control of the Y—particularly in Catholic nations where 90% of Y membership is Catholic or in India where 90% of Y membership is Hindu.

Moral Counseling

Efforts should be made, he said, to give "religious and moral counseling by a clergyman of the faith held by the individual whenever possible" as well as making available literature of all religious groups in Y centers.

Outlining the position of the Lincoln diocese, Father Hain explained that there is "no objection to Catholic membership in the YMCA. The Catholic community is ready and willing to cooperate with the Y in every way in its programs.

"Local control of the Y has always been most considerate of Catholic feelings in the City of Lincoln and has demonstrated willingness to respect the religious convictions of all young people involved in Y programs."

Fr. Hain added that he hoped "greater efforts will be made to get more Catholics involved in Y programs and that Catholics will give more active support."

Tomato Prices Higher

San Francisco (UPI)—Mexican farm workers started picking Caifornia's huge tomato crop Monday and a growers' spokesman warned housewives that the price of canned tomatoes will be higher owing to the difficulties in getting the workers.

Dobson Bros. Construction Co. is the apparent low bidder on the O St. resurfacing project, 16th to 25th.

Dobson bid $52,236.50, compared to the Pioneer Paving Co. bid of $53,904.

City Engineer Richard Erixon said that the resurfacing would begin "somewhere near the end of the month."

The Dobson firm was also low bidder for paving various streets in Midway Addition, near Cornhusker Highway, bidding $48,572.10. Pioneer bid $49,098.95.

Other bids received by the city Wednesday:

—Paving district: 47th, from Holdrege to Dudley, Starr, from 46th to 47th and Dudley, from 47th to 48th; Pioneer Paving, $23,510.20; Dobson Bros., $23,905.20.

—Paving district: Colfax Ave., 65th to 66th; Dobson Bros., $6,321.90; Pioneer Paving, $6,377.90.

—Extension of 96 inch tunnel liners at the 51st St. pumping station: Western Plains Construction Co., $4,639; H. R. Bookstrom Co., $5,900 and N. L. Cole Co., $6,687.

NEWS of the suburban areas

The first day of fall is rapidly approaching, according to the calendar, but in our book fall already has begun. Who hasn't seen at least a dozen leaves fall from the trees and worse yet, who hasn't had to get out the rake and basket to gather up those fallen leaves.

But, fallen leaves are not the only sign telling us that fall is here, there is the cool weather, the approaching football season, and the busy party scene—if we need more convincing evidence.

Park Manor residents report recent vacations this morning. There also are plans to go to out-of-town football games, as well as party schedules, all of which adds up to an interesting social life in Suburbia.

PARK MANOR

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Matzke and daughters, Linda and Debra, returned recently from a three-week vacation trip that took them to the east coast and to Canada. The foursome made its first official visit in Long Island, N.Y. where they were the house guests of relatives. After taking a look at the World's Fair the Matzke family headed for Canada. On their way back home, Mr. and Mrs. Matzke made a stop in Detroit, Mich. to attend the Amateur Firestone Golf Tournament.

We made mention earlier of out-of-town travels to football games. So, now we would like to tell you that Mr. and Mrs. Matzke plan to leave Friday, Sept. 24, for Colorado Springs, Colo. where they will attend the Nebraska-Air Force academy football game.

For news of a recent party we might refer you to the home of Mrs. Gary Scott and the farewell party for which she and Mrs. Lonnie Charlson were hostesses last Wednesday. Honored that afternoon was Mrs. George Hassing who left the neighborhood last weekend—Mr. and Mrs. Hassing and their four children Toni, Jeanne, Jimmy and Tommy now are residing in Omaha. But, back to last Wednesday's party—We should add that 12 guests were present for the event which was a dessert bridge.

A Saturday returnee to Lincoln was Mrs. Myrlen Moon. Mrs. Moon tells us she spent a week in Union, Iowa, as a guest of her mother, Mrs. Evalena Miller.

Of special interest to residents on South Bermuda Drive is the news of a new family on the street. We are speaking of Mr. and Mrs. Dale Radcliff who moved their belongings all the way from St. Louis, Mo. to their new home in Lincoln earlier in the week. Let us not forget to mention the couple's two children—Kelly, who is three years old, and Richard who is two years old.

Also new to the Park Manor area and to Skyline Drive are Mr. and Mrs. August Niemeyer. Mr. and Mrs. Niemeyer made their short move from 2045 So. 49th St. last week.

NEWS of the suburban areas

The first day of fall is rapidly approaching, according to the calendar, but in our book fall already has begun. Who hasn't seen at least a dozen leaves fall from the trees and worse yet, who hasn't had to get out the rake and basket to gather up those fallen leaves.

But, fallen leaves are not the only sign telling us that fall is here, there is the cool weather, the approaching football season, and the busy party scene—if we need more convincing evidence.

Park Manor residents report recent vacations this morning. There also are plans to go to out-of-town football games, as well as party schedules, all of which adds up to an interesting social life in Suburbia.

TALK
of the town

This morning we began roll call on the vacation set, and found that a number of summer-home dwellers have returned to Lincoln—in ample time for Saturday's game.

Had a glimpse of Mrs. Charles T. Stuart and found that she and Mr. Stuart returned late last week from their summer home at Hackensack, Minn.

* * *

And home from Madeline Island last week was Mrs. W. H. Ferguson who, as almost everyone knows, devotes most of each summer to the Island and her summer home there.

* * *

Also back in town is Mrs. Thomas C. Woods who arrived yesterday from Madeline Island—And returning from Madeline on the same day was Mrs. Arthur Raymond who, as did Mrs. Woods, spent the summer at the Island.

* * *

But all of the morning news isn't of homecomers. We heard, for instance, that Richard Garlinghouse arrived last Sunday from Portola, Calif., and is spending the current week as the guest of his parents, Dr. and Mrs. Richard Garlinghouse.

Next Sunday Mr. Garlinghouse and his sister, Miss Gretchen Garlinghouse will leave for California—each to a different school. Miss Garlinghouse will go to Oakland where she will be a freshman at Mills College this year. Mr. Garlinghouse will end his journey at Palo Alto, Calif., and Stanford University where he will begin work on his Master's degree.

* * *

Speaking of the away-at-school set—we hear that Miss Susan Ayres, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. Joyce Ayres, is back at Syracuse University this year—but not as an undergraduate. Miss Ayres, who was graduated from the University of Nebraska, is doing graduate work at Syracuse.

The young lady, we hear, has one large worry—the Nebraska-Syracuse football game. She is quite aware that cheering for her alma mater will be the quickest way to lose friends and alienate people—So, what to do?

PARTY

An October bride-elect was the guest of honor on Tuesday evening when Mrs. Ellsworth Palmer entertained a group of guests at her home. The honored guest, who was presented a personal shower during the informal party, was Miss Jeanette Bouc of Lincoln, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Bouc of Colon.

Miss Bouc has chosen Saturday, Oct. 16, as the date for her marriage to Don Savoie of Lincoln, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ashton Savoie of Sunset, La. The service will be solemnized at St. Wenceslaus Church in Wahoo.

Seated (from the left) are Miss Judy VanDervort of Omaha, who will be a member of Miss Bouc's wedding party; Mrs. Palmer, whose daughter, Mrs. Tim Flaherty, will attend the bride-elect as matron of honor; Miss Bouc; and her mother, Mrs. Edward Bouc of Colon.

The women students at the University of Nebraska will be guests on Friday at the annual dean's tea, to be held in the Pan American Room of the Student Union, between the hours of 3:30 o'clock and 5:30 o'clock.

Greeting the guests will be Miss Helen A. Snyder, associate dean of student affairs; Miss Madeline Girard, Panhellenic director; Mrs. Margaret Wenke, Mrs. Betty Cooper, Miss Mary Frances Holman and Mrs. Pearl Hathaway, residence hall directors.

Assisting as hostesses will be members of Panhellenic, members of Mortar Board honor society for senior women, presidents of campus organizations, and presidents of sororities.

Presiding at the tea table will be Miss Jan Whitney, president of Associated Women Students; Miss Kathleen Costello, president of Alpha Lambda Delta honor society; Miss Sandra Stork, president of the Home Economics Club; and Miss Irma Winterer vice president of Panhellenic.

Included among campus social activities this weekend at the University of Nebraska will be a tea Sunday afternoon honoring new housemothers.

ABBY

no protection for the foolish

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: In 1958 I started going around with a well-to-do married man who told me he had nothing in common with his wife any more. He said he loved me and if I would wait we would be married someday. I was married at the time and had a seven-year-old son. I gave up my husband and son to be available whenever this man wanted to see me.

All this time he told me we had to be careful not to be seen together because if his wife ever found out she could take him for every dime he had. I would cook dinner for him in my apartment and we never went any place.

Suddenly he quit coming around. I just learned that he is NOT married and never was. Tell me, Abby, what protection does a working woman, who can't afford to hire private detectives, have against a snake like this?

BETRAYED

DEAR BETRAYED: None—and the next time you're tempted to "go around" with a married man, find out if he's married—and then forget it.

DEAR ABBY: A few girls in the office in which I work, including myself, would like your opinion of the following.

Do you think it is right for an employer to expect an employee to lie for him? When he does not wish to be disturbed, or talk to someone or see someone, he asks us to say that he is "out."

Is there anything we can do about this? Naturally, an employee must follow orders, but this doesn't seem right.

GUILTY CONSCIENCE

DEAR GUILTY: Don't nitpick the boss's orders. He has his reasons for being "out" and they should be good enough for you.

The bidding:

East	South	West	North
1 ♥	2 ♠	3 ♥	3 ♠
Pass	4 ♠

Opening lead — three of hearts.

A play may be wrong in principle and yet be right in practice. Here is a striking example of a departure from normal defensive play which resulted in South's defeat.

West led a heart against four spades and East won it with the king. If East had played another heart at this point, which is what most players would do, South would have made the contract. After drawing two rounds of trumps, he would have forced out the A-K of clubs and then discarded three diamonds on the established clubs.

But East was a very careful defender and avoided this trap. He realized, first of all, that West was almost sure to have four hearts for his raise and that South, consequently, had only a singleton.

He realized further that if South had the ace of clubs the contract could not possibly be defeated, and he therefore had no real choice but to credit his partner with that card.

Accordingly, East made the unusual play at trick two of a low diamond from the K-9-4 in the hope that West also had the jack of diamonds, in which case there would be a reasonable chance of defeating the contract.

This play right into dummy's Q-10-5 struck oil after West's eight had forced the ten. Declarer took two rounds of trumps and played a low club towards dummy, but West rose to the occasion by going up with the ace and returning the jack of diamonds.

As a result of this sparkling defense, South went down one. He lost a heart, a diamond and two clubs.

The hand highlights an important principle of play which is usually addressed to declarer but which applies equally to a defender, namely: always plan your play. That is exactly what East did at trick two, and it was good enough to bring home the bacon.

LIVE and LEARN

A divorcee who disliked the empty feeling on her ring finger decided to do something about it. Instead of filling the need by becoming engaged or remarried, she designed a ring to be worn only by divorced men and women. Her "Ex-Band," to her knowledge, is the first such marital status symbol.

The lady, who is an instructor at San Diego Military Academy, Del Mar, Calif., already is wearing the ring. She says it saves much embarassment and explanation among friends who know about it. "It is much more than a cute gimmick," she maintains. "Divorce is a fact of life, a marital status which needs recognition along with engagement and marriage."

Her "Ex-Band" design is a wide gold band with a row of small "x's" cut into it. The "x", she feels, is symbolic of the expiration of an unsuccessful marriage. She has had so many requests for duplicates that she now is in the process of marketing it through jewelry and department stores.

For the homemaker who wants everything in one single gadget, the new "Can-Do" has the answer. This electric apparatus is a can opener, mixer, whipper, masher, and sharpener. It can do anything kitchen-wise.

There is also something else new for the kitchen. Teflon has been covering pots and pans for a year, but the new invention will save frustration as well as hours. The new item with the Teflon touch is the electric iron.

Tarnished hardware, fixtures and accessories are no longer a problem to the housewife who likes plenty of sparkle in her home, thanks to a new trio of products. Th new Duro-Plastic Plating Enamels are designed for use with copper, brass and chrome. They are ideal for door knobs, switch plates, bathroom fixtures, drawer pulls and door hinges, and even larger items like chafing dishes. Fast-drying and simple to apply, the new plating enamel produces a bright, attractive, waterproof and rust-resistant finish. They tell us that it flows on easily with its own cap-contained brush.

Furniture refinishing becomes quite a bit less complicated with the introduction of a plastic woodfiller which does not require special solvents and is the only non-toxic, non-flammable product on the market. MATCHWOOD, can be spread as easily as peanut-butter on both horizontal and vertical wood surfaces and sets slowly enough to enable the least experienced craftsman to work with it. The ideal filler for furniture nicks and scratches, it is also wonderful for repairing gouges and nail holes in any type of wooden object. When dry and hard, MATCHWOOD, which is completely waterproof, may be painted, stained, sanded or even oil-stained. It will also hold screws and nails without splitting.

ABBY

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: In 1958 I started going around with a well-to-do married man who told me he had nothing in common with his wife any more. He said he loved me and if I would wait we would be married someday. I was married at the time and had a seven-year-old son. I gave up my husband and son to be available whenever this man wanted to see me.

All this time he told me we had to be careful not to be seen together because if his wife ever found out she could take him for every dime he had. I would cook dinner for him in my apartment and we never went any place.

Suddenly he quit coming around. I just learned that he is NOT married and never was. Tell me, Abby, what protection does a working woman, who can't afford to hire private detectives, have against a snake like this?

BETRAYED

DEAR BETRAYED: None—and the next time you're tempted to "go around" with a married man, find out if he's married—and then forget it.

DEAR ABBY: A few girls in the office in which I work, including myself, would like your opinion of the following.

Do you think it is right for an employer to expect an employee to lie for him? When he does not wish to be disturbed, or talk to someone or see someone, he asks us to say that he is "out."

Is there anything we can do about this? Naturally, an employee must follow orders, but this doesn't seem right.

GUILTY CONSCIENCE

DEAR GUILTY: Don't nitpick the boss's orders. He has his reasons for being "out" and they should be good enough for you.

The bidding:

East	South	West	North
1♥	2♠	3♥	3♠
Pass	4♠

Opening lead — three of hearts.

A play may be wrong in principle and yet be right in practice. Here is a striking example of a departure from normal defensive play which resulted in South's defeat.

West led a heart against four spades and East won it with the king. If East had played another heart at this point, which is what most players would do, South would have made the contract. After drawing two rounds of trumps, he would have forced out the A-K of clubs and then discarded three diamonds on the established clubs.

But East was a very careful defender and avoided this trap. He realized, first of all, that West was almost sure to have four hearts for his raise and that South, consequently, had only a singleton.

He realized further that if South had the ace of clubs the contract could not possibly be defeated, and he therefore had no real choice but to credit his partner with that card.

Accordingly, East made the unusual play at trick two of a low diamond from the K-9-4 in the hope that West also had the jack of diamonds, in which case there would be a reasonable chance of defeating the contract.

This play right into dummy's Q-10-5 struck oil after West's eight had forced the ten. Declarer took two rounds of trumps and played a low club towards dummy, but West rose to the occasion by going up with the ace and returning the jack of diamonds.

As a result of this sparkling defense, South went down one. He lost a heart, a diamond and two clubs.

The hand highlights an important principle of play which is usually addressed to declarer but which applies equally to a defender, namely: always plan your play. That is exactly what East did at trick two, and it was good enough to bring home the bacon.

LIVE and LEARN

A divorcee who disliked the empty feeling on her ring finger decided to do something about it. Instead of filling the need by becoming engaged or remarried, she designed a ring to be worn only by divorced men and women. Her "Ex-Band," to her knowledge, is the first such marital status symbol.

The lady, who is an instructor at San Diego Military Academy, Del Mar, Calif., already is wearing the ring. She says it saves much embarassment and explanation among friends who know about it. "It is much more than a cute gimmick," she maintains. "Divorce is a fact of life, a marital status which needs recognition along with engagement and marriage."

Her "Ex-Band" design is a wide gold band with a row of small "x's" cut into it. The "x", she feels, is symbolic of the expiration of an unsuccessful marriage. She has had so many requests for duplicates that she now is in the process of marketing it through jewelry and department stores.

For the homemaker who wants everything in one single gadget, the new "Can-Do" has the answer. This electric apparatus is a can opener, mixer, whipper, masher, and sharpener. It can do anything kitchen-wise.

There is also something else new for the kitchen. Teflon has been covering pots and pans for a year, but the new invention will save frustration as well as hours. The new item with the Teflon touch is the electric iron.

Tarnished hardware, fixtures and accessories are no longer a problem to the housewife who likes plenty of sparkle in her home, thanks to a new trio of products. Th new Duro-Plastic Plating Enamels are designed for use with copper, brass and chrome. They are ideal for door knobs, switch plates, bathroom fixtures, drawer pulls and door hinges, and even larger items like chafing dishes. Fast-drying and simple to apply, the new plating enamel produces a bright, attractive, waterproof and rust-resistant finish. They tell us that it flows on easily with its own cap-contained brush.

Furniture refinishing becomes quite a bit less complicated with the introduction of a plastic woodfiller which does not require special solvents and is the only nontoxic, non-flammable product on the market. MATCHWOOD, can be spread as easily as peanut-butter on both horizontal and vertical wood surfaces and sets slowly enough to enable the least experienced craftsman to work with it. The ideal filler for furniture nicks and scratches, it is also wonderful for repairing gouges and nail holes in any type of wooden object. When dry and hard, MATCHWOOD, which is completely waterproof, may be painted, stained, sanded or even oil-stained. It will also hold screws and nails without splitting.

Recipes From Here And There

Here are a handful of recipes from here, there and everywhere — and among them may be just the one you are looking for—Garlic Italian Bread, maybe? Or perhaps you have wanted something special for trout —or for chicken—or for ham. You'll find it below.

BROOK TROUT SUPREME

Sprinkle cleaned and dressed brook trout inside and out with lemon juice, salt and pepper. Dip in egg beaten with 2 tablespoons milk, then in fine dry bread crumbs. Melt enough butter or margarine in skillet to just cover the bottom. Add fish and saute until golden brown on both sides, about 3 or 4 minutes, or until fish flakes easily when tested with fork. Remove to hot platter and serve with mushroom-butter sauce (recipe below). Garnish, if desired, with toast cornucopias.

MUSHROOM-BUTTERED SAUCE

- ¼ cup (½ stick) butter
- 1 (2-oz.) can sliced mushrooms, drained
- 1 tablespoon lemon juice
- ½ teaspoon salt

Melt butter. Add mushrooms, lemon juice and salt. Serve hot with trout. Makes enough for 3 to 4 small trout.

TOAST CORNUCOPIAS

Remove crusts from thin-sliced bread. Spread each slice on both sides with softened butter, sprinkle with garlic salt. Roll to form cornucopias and fasten each with toothpick. Stuff cents with crusts so that cornucopias will retain rounded shape. Toast at 350 degrees (moderate oven) 20 to 25 minutes or until golden. Remove crusts in cornucopias and fill centers with parsley sprigs.

GOLDEN BROILED CHICKEN

- 2½ pound broiler-fryer, halved
- ½ cup Italian dressing

1. Preheat broiler. Place chicken on broiler rack. Brush with some of the Italian dressing.

2. Broil about 50 minutes, or until tender, browned and crisp, turning chicken frequently and brushing with remaining dressing. Makes 4 servings.

HAM, INDIES

(4 Servings)

Ham steaks for 4

- 1 (8-oz.) can tomato sauce
- 1 ripe banana, mashed
- 2 tablesp. pineapple juice
- 1 tablesp. peanut butter

Broil ham steaks. Combine and stir until smooth. Serve remaining ingredients, heat sauce over ham.

GARLIC ITALIAN BREAD

- 1 loaf Italian bread or 6 seeded rolls
- ½ cup soft sweet butter
- ½ teaspoon instant garlic powder
- 3 tablespoons grated Parmesan cheese

Cut loaf or rolls in diagonal slices, 1-inch apart, making sure not to cut through bottom crust. Combine remaining ingredients; mix until well blended. Spread all mixture between slices. Place bread on an ungreased cooky sheet. Bake in a preheated moderate oven (350 degrees F.) 10 minutes or until butter is melted and bread is hot. Serve immediately.

YIELD: 6 servings

A Sandwich That's More Than A Sandwich

OPEN STEAK STRIPS SANDWICH STROGANOFF

6 sandwiches

- ⅔ cup beer
- ⅓ cup salad oil
- 1 teaspoon salt
- ½ teaspoon garlic powder
- ¼ teaspoon pepper
- 1 beef flank steak (about 1¼ lb.), scored
- 12 slices enriched bread, toasted
- 2 tablespoons butter
- 4 cups sliced onions (5 medium onions)
- ½ teaspoon paprika
- 1 cup dairy sour cream
- Paprika
- Watercress

On day before serving, in deep glass dish combine beer, oil, salt, garlic powder and pepper. Place meat in mixture; marinate overnight. When ready to prepare sandwiches, set out broiler pan and preheat broiler. Trim crusts from 6 toast diagonally in half and place 1 triangle at each side of trimmed slice. Place meat on broiler pan. Broil 3 inches from heat, 7 minutes on on each side, or until well browned. Meanwhile in saucepan melt butter. Saute onions with ½ teaspoon paprika until onions are transparent. Cut meat diagonally across grain into 24 thin slices. Place 4 slices on each sandwich and cover with ¼ cup onions. Top with about 2½ tablespoons sour cream. Sprinkle lightly with paprika. Serve hot, with watercress.

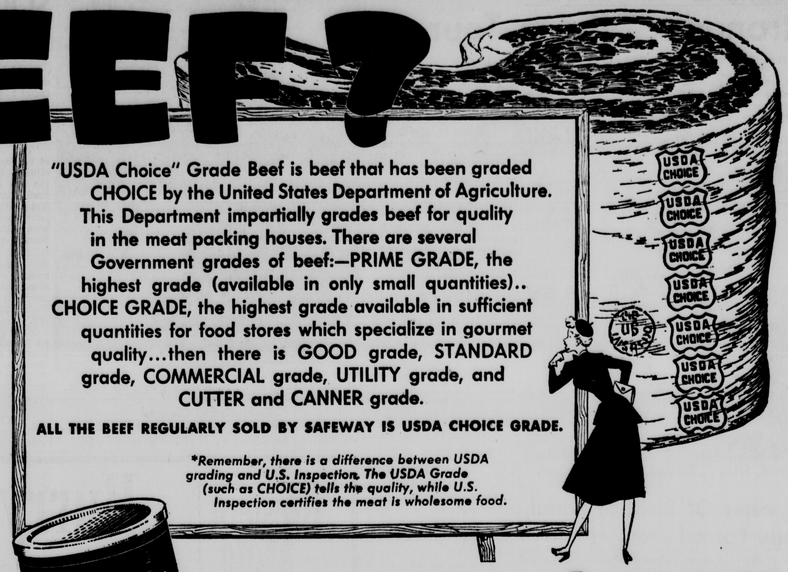
WHAT IS USDA CHOICE BEEF?



"USDA Choice" Grade Beef is beef that has been graded CHOICE by the United States Department of Agriculture. This Department impartially grades beef for quality in the meat packing houses. There are several Government grades of beef:—PRIME GRADE, the highest grade (available in only small quantities).. CHOICE GRADE, the highest grade available in sufficient quantities for food stores which specialize in gourmet quality...then there is GOOD grade, STANDARD grade, COMMERCIAL grade, UTILITY grade, and CUTTER and CANNER grade.

ALL THE BEEF REGULARLY SOLD BY SAFEWAY IS USDA CHOICE GRADE.

Astronauts Off On Tour

Washington (AP) — Astronauts L. Gordon Cooper Jr. and Charles Conrad Jr. flew off to the Middle East and Africa Wednesday night as ambassadors of peace and good will.

Accompanied by their wives, Cooper's two daughters, Camala, 16, and Janita, 15, and 18 associates, they took off in one of the presidential jets, Air Force 2, for Athens, Greece, by way of the Azores.

Before takeoff they were guests — along with ambassadors from the countries they plan to visit — of Undersecretary of State and Mrs. George W. Ball at a reception and luncheon in the State Department dining room.

COOPER, left . . . Conrad, families depart.

Sailors Of Infinity

In a toast to "these navigators of infinity," Ball said the two men represent a new school of philosophers.

"These two men who had a God's eye view of the earth, and sustained this view over a week's time, represent a philosophy of dedication to the restoration of the peace in this small section of the cosmos that we inhabit," Ball said.

Ball added that their 12-day, six-nation tour is in the spirit of U.S. efforts to extend man's knowledge and establish a firmer basis for international cooperation to reinforce world peace.

Alexander A. Matsas, Greek ambassador, responded with assurance that the astronauts and their families would be received in Athens with great enthusiasm.

Looks Peaceful

Cooper, replying to Ball's toast, said that as an astronaut sits at a great height and looks down at the world, he sees nothing of combat, fighting or bickering — "it looks like a very peaceful place."

"It makes one wonder where and why you have this fighting when each country is so small and so insignificant compared to this big universe that we are a part of," Cooper said.

Conrad presented James E. Webb, administrator of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, with a small American flag carried by the astronauts throughout their eight-day orbital mission in Gemini 5.

The luncheon guests also included the ambassadors of Turkey, Ethiopia, Malagasy Republic, Kenya and Nigeria, nations on the astronauts' tour.

Supporter Of Biracial Panel, Family Forced From Home

Atlanta (UPI) — A county attorney who once proposed that a biracial committee be established in Americus to help settle racial troubles, left his home in the southwest Georgia town because of harassment, it was learned Wednesday.

Warren C. Fortson, his wife and their five children, have moved into an apartment in Atlanta. Fortson is Sumter (Americus) County attorney.

"It just wasn't worth it anymore," Mrs. Fortson told a reporter for the Atlanta Journal. She said she referred to threatening telephone calls, a cold shoulder at their church and being ignored in public by longtime friends in the city.

Fortson had been at odds with Americus leaders since he proposed that the biracial group be set up in an effort to avoid bloodshed and help solve some of the city's desegregation problems during difficulties recently.

Fortson is brother of Georgia's Secretary of State Ben F. Fortson Jr.

The Fortsons came here about a week ago. Fortson remained in Americus this week to straighten out affairs.

"I got a call the night before I was to come to Atlanta to look for an apartment," said Mrs. Fortson. "The woman said 'Betty, I am your friend.' Then she paused and said 'leave. Leave in the morning for your own safety.'"

Mrs. Fortson said, "We had some friends on the other side. Sometimes they would call up and warn us. They would say they had heard talk that it would be 'white man against white man tonight.'" She said the family twice spent the night out of town.

"The most pitiful thing of all," she said, "this person and that person would speak to you each in private, but in front of each other they were afraid of what the other one might think."

Earlier this month Fortson was not re-elected to his Sunday school teaching post at First Methodist Church where Negroes and whites were turned away during the racial difficulties.

Child, 2, Injured In Fall At Home

Randy Lee Shepard, 2, of 600 No. 24th was in satisfactory condition at Lincoln General Hospital after being injured in a fall at his home Wednesday.

Police said the child apparently fell from a shelf in the kitchen and struck his head on the kitchen floor. He was taken to the hospital for observation.

SOUTHERN GOVERNORS AVOID RACE ISSUE AT CONFERENCE

Sea Island, Ga. (AP)—Southern governors broke with the racial past Wednesday, pushing the subject aside completely in their annual meeting for the first time in recent years.

"This reflects a new look at the issue," said Gov. J. Millard Tawes of Maryland, the new chairman, after the final gavel sounded at the 31st Southern Governors Conference—and "race" had not been mentioned in the discussions.

Tawes, who at 71 is one of the oldest governors in the nation, said the absence of dispute over racial problems indicated clearly that the South has moved into a new era.

Other governors agree. Even the selection of Tawes instead of a less moderate governor to succeed Gov. John B. Connally of Texas as chairman of the 17-state conference reportedly was tied to the new outlook.

Changing South

"We needed someone who would represent a changing South—a South we hope is putting racism behind it," said one of the governors on the nominating committee who asked that his name be withheld.

Tawes has followed a course of moderation in his seven years as Maryland's chief executive. The nation's youngest governor, 40-year-old Carl E. Sanders of Georgia, was elected vice chairman.

It was Sanders who had said on the opening day of the conference Sunday that racial issues were passe in Southern politics.

In their final session, the governors adopted resolutions urging an increase of $1 billion a year in the funding of the federal Interstate highway system to complete it by 1972, development of a U.S. nuclear shipping fleet and an agreement for the Southern states to mount a united drive for location of a huge nuclear energy facility in their region.

But what the governors did not say this year appeared to be the most significant development. Unlike previous sessions, there were no attempts to condemn the federal courts, agencies or laws. The only controversy was an airing of the proposed merger of the National Guard and the Army reserve.

Gov. Albertis S. Harrison of Virginia told his colleagues that the role of the states is increasing in importance. The only other reference to federal interference Wednesday was humerous.

Gov. Frank G. Clement of Tennessee said he wanted to commend the federal government for its help in building roads. He said he had at times been critical of the federal government.

Gov. Paul B. Johnson Jr. of Mississipi agreed with the commendatory part of Clement's remarks. But Johnson added wryly, "Although I never criticize the federal government."

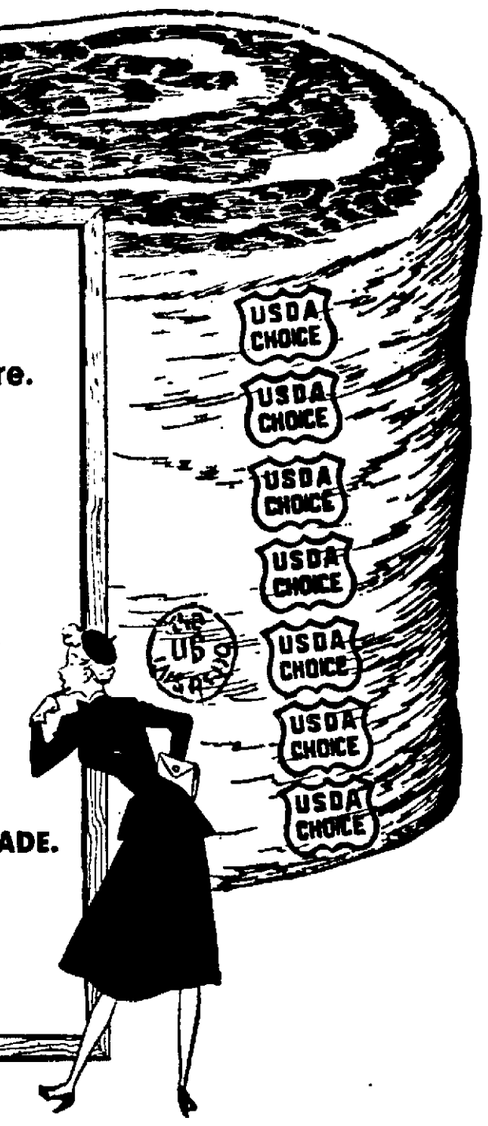
USDA CHOICE BEEF!



All the Beef regularly stocked by Safeway is USDA Choice Grade

"USDA Choice" Grade Beef is beef that has been graded CHOICE by the United States Department of Agriculture. This Department impartially grades beef for quality in the meat packing houses. There are several Government grades of beef:—PRIME GRADE, the highest grade (available in only small quantities).. CHOICE GRADE, the highest grade available in sufficient quantities for food stores which specialize in gourmet quality...then there is GOOD grade, STANDARD grade, COMMERCIAL grade, UTILITY grade, and CUTTER and CANNER grade.

ALL THE BEEF REGULARLY SOLD BY SAFEWAY IS USDA CHOICE GRADE.

Kennedy Now Top N.Y. Dem

New York (AP) — He's just lived here long enough to vote, but Sen. Robert F. Kennedy found himself top Democrat in New York state Wednesday.

Mayor Robert F.Wagner, a native son, apparently lost the spot in Tuesday's primary election. His choice for a successor as mayor, Paul R. Screvane, was soundly defeated by Abraham D. Beame, backed by most of the anti-Wagner leaders in the city.

Kennedy didn't raise a hand in Wagner's demise, and wouldn't even say who got his vote—the first he cast as a New Yorker.

The freshman senator has never criticized Wagner, and got Wagner's reluctant endorsement before he came into New York state politics.

No More Power

Kennedy aides say Beame's primary victory doesn't increase the senator's power in city politics.

But it did decrease Wagner's.

It probably means Wagner can't get next year's nomination to oppose Republican Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller.

Kennedy will have a hand in that choice, and it could be Queens Dist. Atty. Frank D. O'Connor, 55, who led the Beame ticket as candidate for city council president.

O'Connor tried for the governor nomination in 1962, but Wagner was instrumental in giving it to Robert Morgenthau, who was routed by Rockefeller.

Wagner Men

The primary also probably means Wagner's hand-picked leaders in the legislature can't stay on. They were elected early this year with Republican help.

The Democratic opposition was a city-upstate coalition friendly to Kennedy, and it probably will name new leaders if the Democrats retain control.

Kennedy called for the Democrats to unite behind Beame against the Republican-liberal candidate John V. Lindsay.

He said he thought Lindsay can be defeated if Beame runs the right kind of campaign. And he said he thinks Wagner will have an important role.

Lincolnite Robert A. Krall Seeks GOP Congress Nod

Robert A. Krall, 26, of Lincoln Wednesday announced he will seek the Republican nomination for Congress from the First District.

R. A. Krall

Krall said he would complete his filing "within the next two weeks" for the 1966 primary election.

A 1961 University of Nebraska graduate with majors in political science and journalism, he has been employed by The Lincoln Journal and the Associated Press.

He said he is seeking the congressional post now held by Clair Callan, a Democrat from Odell, because, "I feel it's important that the two major parties be more equally represented in both houses of Congress."

Krall said he is interested in state, national and international affairs and would like "the opportunity to serve the people of Nebraska."

Krall is a member of the Lincoln Jaycees, International Christian Leadership, Baptist Church, Toastmasters Club and Sigma Delta Chi, professional journalism society.

Last Birthday Party

Milwaukee, Wis. (AP) — There wasn't room for 97 candles on the cake, but Andrew Bejma blew out all there were at a family party for his 97th birthday.

Then, as a daughter began to cut the cake, he slumped over in his chair. At Johnston Municipal Hospital, he was pronounced dead of a heart attack.

Astronauts Off On Tour

Washington (AP) — Astronauts L. Gordon Cooper Jr. and Charles Conrad Jr. flew off to the Middle East and Africa Wednesday night as ambassadors of peace and good will.

Accompanied by their wives, Cooper's two daughters, Camala, 16, and Janita, 15, and 18 associates, they took off in one of the presidential jets, Air Force 2, for Athens, Greece, by way of the Azores.

Before takeoff they were guests — along with ambassadors from the countries they plan to visit — of Undersecretary of State and Mrs. George W. Ball at a reception and luncheon in the State Department dining room.

Sailors Of Infinity

In a toast to "these navigators of infinity," Ball said the two men represent a new school of philosophers.

"These two men who had a God's eye view of the earth, and sustained this view over a week's time, represent a philosophy of dedication to the restoration of the peace in this small section of the cosmos that we inhabit," Ball said.

Ball added that their 12-day, six-nation tour is in the spirit of U.S. efforts to extend man's knowledge and establish a firmer basis for international cooperation to reinforce world peace.

Alexander A. Matsas, Greek ambassador, responded with assurance that the astronauts and their families would be received in Athens with great enthusiasm.

Looks Peaceful

Cooper replying to Ball's toast, said that as an astronaut sits at a great height and looks down at the world, he sees nothing of combat, fighting or bickering — "it looks like a very peaceful place."

"It makes one wonder where and why you have this fighting when each country is so small and so insignificant compared to this big universe that we are a part of," Cooper said.

Conrad presented James E. Webb, administrator of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, with a small American flag carried by the astronauts throughout their eight-day orbital mission in Gemini 5.

The luncheon guests also included the ambassadors of Turkey, Ethiopia, Malagasy Republic, Kenya and Nigeria, nations on the astronauts' tour.

COOPER, left . . . Conrad, families depart.

Supporter Of Biracial Panel, Family Forced From Home

Atlanta (UPI) — A county attorney who once proposed that a biracial committee be established in Americus to help settle racial troubles, left his home in the southwest Georgia town because of harassment, it was learned Wednesday.

Warren C. Fortson, his wife and their five children, have moved into an apartment in Atlanta. Fortson is Sumter (Americus) County attorney.

"It just wasn't worth it anymore," Mrs. Fortson told a reporter for the Atlanta Journal. She said she referred to threatening telephone calls, a cold shoulder at their church and being ignored in public by longtime friends in the city.

Fortson had been at odds with Americus leaders since he proposed that the biracial group be set up in an effort to avoid bloodshed and help solve some of the city's desegregation problems during difficulties recently.

Fortson is brother of Georgia's Secretary of State Ben F. Fortson Jr.

The Fortsons came here about a week ago. Fortson remained in Americus this week to straighten out affairs.

"I got a call the night before I was to come to Atlanta to look for an apartment," said Mrs. Fortson. "The woman said 'Betty, I am your friend.' Then she paused and said 'leave. Leave in the morning for your own safety.'"

Mrs. Fortson said, "We had some friends on the other side. Sometimes they would call up and warn us. They would say they had heard talk that it would be 'white man against white man tonight.'" She said the family twice spent the night out of town.

"The most pitiful thing of all," she said, "this person and that person would speak to you each in private, but in front of each other they were afraid of what the other one might think."

Earlier this month Fortson was not re-elected to his Sunday school teaching post at First Methodist Church where Negroes and whites were turned away during the racial difficulties.

Child, 2, Injured In Fall At Home

Randy Lee Shepard, 2, of 600 No. 24th was in satisfactory condition at Lincoln General Hospital after being injured in a fall at his home Wednesday.

Police said the child apparently fell from a shelf in the kitchen and struck his head on the kitchen floor. He was taken to the hospital for observation.

SOUTHERN GOVERNORS AVOID RACE ISSUE AT CONFERENCE

Sea Island, Ga. (AP)—Southern governors broke with the racial past Wednesday, pushing the subject aside completely in their annual meeting for the first time in recent years.

"This reflects a new look at the issue," said Gov. J. Millard Tawes of Maryland, the new chairman, after the final gavel sounded at the 31st Southern Governors Conference—and "race" had not been mentioned in the discussions.

Tawes, who at 71 is one of the oldest governors in the nation, said the absence of dispute over racial problems indicated clearly that the South has moved into a new era.

Other governors agree. Even the selection of Tawes instead of a less moderate governor to succeed Gov. John B. Connally of Texas as chairman of the 17-state conference reportedly was tied to the new outlook.

Changing South

"We needed someone who would represent a changing South—a South we hope is putting racism behind it," said one of the governors on the nominating committee who asked that his name be withheld.

Tawes has followed a course of moderation in his seven years as Maryland's chief executive. The nation's youngest governor, 40-year-old Carl E. Sanders of Georgia, was elected vice chairman.

It was Sanders who had said on the opening day of the conference Sunday that racial issues were passe in Southern politics.

In their final session, the governors adopted resolutions urging an increase of $1 billion a year in the funding of the federal Interstate highway system to complete it by 1972, development of a U.S. nuclear shipping fleet and an agreement for the Southern states to mount a united drive for location of a huge nuclear energy facility in their region.

But what the governors did not say this year appeared to be the most significant development. Unlike previous sessions, there were no attempts to condemn the federal courts, agencies or laws. The only controversy was an airing of the proposed merger of the National Guard and the Army reserve.

Gov. Albertis S. Harrison of Virginia told his colleagues that the role of the states is increasing in importance. The only other reference to federal interference Wednesday was humerous.

Gov. Frank G. Clement of Tennessee said he wanted to commend the federal government for its help in building roads. He said he had at times been critical of the federal government.

Gov. Paul B. Johnson Jr. of Mississipi agreed with the commendatory part of Clement's remarks. But Johnson added wryly, "Although I never criticize the federal government."

Mail Carrier Appointment Fight Carried To Morrison

A controversy over the appointment of a Wahoo postal clerk as a rural mail carrier for parts of Dodge and Douglas Counties was carried to Gov. Frank Morrison Wednesday.

A delegation of 17 residents of Fremont and Valley, headed by State Sen. Richard Proud of Omaha, complained to the governor that the appointment was unfair and made only for political reasons.

The delegation, carrying petitions signed by 800 persons, said the Wahoo man, Donald Swanson, was selected over four or five Valley residents who were qualified.

The governor telephoned Congressman Clair Callan (D-Neb.) who had recommended Swanson for the post, and Callan promised that the appointment would be cancelled if Swanson did not move to Valley immediately.

"That doesn't satisfy us," said Sen. Proud. "We don't want him at all. He's a foreigner."

The delegation told Morrison four or five residents of Valley, where the rural route originates, showed interest in the post but were not even given the opportunity to take Civil Service examinations.

Swanson, contacted in Wahoo, said he's not so sure he will accept the appointment.

"I don't want to live in a hornet's nest,' he said.

Kennedy Now Top N.Y. Dem

New York (AP) — He's just lived here long enough to vote, but Sen. Robert F. Kennedy found himself top Democrat in New York state Wednesday.

Mayor Robert F. Wagner, a native son, apparently lost the spot in Tuesday's primary election. His choice for a successor as mayor, Paul R. Screvane, was soundly defeated by Abraham D. Beame, backed by most of the anti-Wagner leaders in the city.

Kennedy didn't raise a hand in Wagner's demise, and wouldn't even say who got his vote—the first he cast as a New Yorker.

The freshman senator has never criticized Wagner, and got Wagner's reluctant endorsement before he came into New York state politics.

No More Power

Kennedy aides say Beame's primary victory doesn't increase the senator's power in city politics.

But it did decrease Wagner's.

It probably means Wagner can't get next year's nomination to oppose Republican Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller.

Kennedy will have a hand in that choice, and it could be Queens Dist. Atty. Frank D. O'Connor, 55, who led the Beame ticket as candidate for city council president.

O'Connor tried for the governor nomination in 1962, but Wagner was instrumental in giving it to Robert Morgenthau, who was routed by Rockefeller.

Wagner Men

The primary also probably means Wagner's hand-picked leaders in the legislature can't stay on. They were elected early this year with Republican help.

The Democratic opposition was a city-upstate coalition friendly to Kennedy, and it probably will name new leaders if the Democrats retain control.

Kennedy called for the Democrats to unite behind Beame against the Republican-liberal candidate John V. Lindsay.

He said he thought Lindsay can be defeated if Beame runs the right kind of campaign. And he said he thinks Wagner will have an important role.

Lincolnite Robert A. Krall Seeks GOP Congress Nod

Robert A. Krall, 26, of Lincoln Wednesday announced he will seek the Republican nomination for Congress from the First District.

R. A. Krall

Krall said he would complete his filing "within the next two weeks" for the 1966 primary election.

A 1961 University of Nebraska graduate with majors in political science and journalism, he has been employed by The Lincoln Journal and the Associated Press.

He said he is seeking the congressional post now held by Clair Callan, a Democrat from Odell, because, "I feel it's important that the two major parties be more equally represented in both houses of Congress."

Krall said he is interested in state, national and international affairs and would like "the opportunity to serve the people of Nebraska."

Krall is a member of the Lincoln Jaycees, International Christian Leadership, Baptist Church, Toastmasters Club and Sigma Delta Chi, professional journalism society.

Then, as a daughter began to cut the cake, he slumped over in his chair. At Johnston Municipal Hospital, he was pronounced dead of a heart attack.

WHAT WILL LAW BE IN OUTER SPACE?

Athens, Greece (AP)—In the day when manned flight to the moon and planets becomes a reality, what law will apply in outer space?

Legal experts from around the world debated this question Wednesday in a special session of the 16th International Astronautical Congress here. They figured it was not too soon to find the answer.

But in seeking the answer, they were generally raising more questions.

Law-Minded Beings

One expert posed the question whether earthmen had the right to extend their jurisdiction beyond the moon. He suggested there might be some other legally minded beings in the universe.

Some other questions:

--Will industrialists be able to set up plants ignoring the patents of earthbound inventors?

—What nationality will be given to work—legally the achievement of science, literature, arts, photography—born in space?

—Who will investigate charges of espionage or war provocation by one nation against another as a result of satellite or other space activity?

Janos Kiss of Hungary proposed a "moon charter" for international consideration.

Sovereignty Barred

His draft provides that earth's international law be applied to the moon, with all states barred from claiming national sovereignty over the moon. However, individual nations could set up stations on the moon. Spaceships and lunar stations would be subject to the law of the nation under whose flag they operate. War on the moon would be outlawed.

The principles could be extended to Mars and other planets, other lawyers said.

Another Hungarian, Imre Mora, raised the problem of copyright and patents for works created and objects invented in space. He said he felt "the law of the flag" followed by ships at sea would apply.

Communications

William A. Hyman of New York City raised these questions concerning global communications satellite systems:

"Can a communications satellite be used to spread political propaganda? If so, can this be considered a war provocation? Can such a satellite be a means of espionage? If so, who would bring charges, and who would rectify the situation?"

Another American, John R. Tamm of Daytona Beach, Fla., suggested that earth laws could be legally applied only to those objects within its "sphere of influence" — the moon and any planetoids that might eventually go into orbit around the earth.

Tamm said each major planet would have legal jurisdiction over its satellites.

If there are intelligent beings on the planet, he said, they would exercise control over their own "sphere of influence."

Under Earth Law

If there were none, he added, "exploration and exploitation of the major planet" then could be undertaken under principles of earth international law.

He didn't say whose law would apply if both earthmen and intelligent beings from another planet claim the same "sphere of influence" over an inferior planet.

One lawyer commented: "It would be the law of the space jungle."

Mail Carrier Appointment Fight Carried To Morrison

A controversy over the appointment of a Wahoo postal clerk as a rural mail carrier for parts of Dodge and Douglas Counties was carried to Gov Frank Morrison Wednesday

A delegation of 17 residents of Fremont and Valley, headed by State Sen Richard Proud of Omaha, complained to the governor that the appointment was unfair and made only for political reasons.

The delegation carrying petitions signed by 800 persons, said the Wahoo man, Donald Swanson was selected over four or five Valley residents who were qualified

The governor telegramed Congressman Clair Callan (D-Neb) who had recommended Swanson for the post, and Callan promised that the appointment would be cancelled if Swanson did not move to Valley immediately

"That doesn't satisfy us," said Sen. Proud. "We don't want him at all. He's a foreigner."

The delegation told Morrison four or five residents of Valley, where the rural route originates, showed interest in the post but were not even given the opportunity to take Civil Service examinations

Swanson, contacted in Wahoo said he's not so sure he will accept the appointment.

"I don't want to live in a hornet's nest," he said

WHAT WILL LAW BE IN OUTER SPACE?

Athens, Greece (AP)—In the day when manned flight to the moon and planets becomes a reality, what law will apply in outer space?

Legal experts from around the world debated this question Wednesday in a special session of the 16th International Astronautical Congress here. They figured it was not too soon to find the answer.

But in seeking the answer, they were generally raising more questions.

Law-Minded Beings

One expert posed the question whether earthmen had the right to extend their jurisdiction beyond the moon. He suggested there might be some other legally minded beings in the universe.

Some other questions:

—Who will investigate charges of espionage or war provocation by one nation against another as a result of satellite or other space activity?

Janos Kiss of Hungary proposed a "moon charter" for international consideration.

Sovereignty Barred

His draft provides that earth's international law be applied to the moon, with all states barred from claiming national sovereignty over the moon. However, individual nations could set up stations on the moon. Spaceships and lunar stations would be subject to the law of the nation under whose flag they operate. War on the moon would be outlawed.

The principles could be extended to Mars and other planets, other lawyers said.

HUSKERS PICKED AGAIN

...Sports Illustrated Joins Bandwagon

BOB DEVANEY

Nebraska, already picked as the No. 1 football team in the nation by Look Magazine and the Associated Press was named No. 1 Wednesday by Sports Illustrated which uses 162-pound fullback Frank Solich for its cover picture.

"The College Guns Go Vroom!" starts the headline on Sports Illustrated's football section. ". . . And Nebraska Has The Guns."

"The language and the rules both change this season, but the Cornhuskers will be strong again and should finally "gore' the others to win the mythical national title," the headlines continue.

After explaining the trends in college football, author Dan Jenkins, who also covered the Nebraska-Arkansas Cotton Bowl game last winter, writes, "Perhaps the easiest thing of all for the trend conscious follower this year will be knowing which are the superb teams.

"All he has to do lately is memorize Texas, Alabama, Nebraska, USC and Arkansas. These are the teams that stay at the top. Each seems to benefit from spectacular coaching."

The magazine also pushes the NCAA to start a national football tournament to determine a true football champion as they do in other collegiate sports, including fencing.

Under the Sports Illustrated plan, 16 teams would be thrown in the tournament as conference winners or deserving independents.

Sports Illustrated pits the Big Eight (Nebraska) against Missouri Valley (Tulsa) in the first round with Nebraska winning, 10-0.

The next game would be against Wyoming, a 21-7 winner over Idaho. The magazine picks the Huskers by 26-10 in this one, moving them against Texas in the semifinals.

After a 15-14 win over Texas, Sports Illustrated would move the Cornhuskers against Alabama for the national championship with Nebraska the 21-18 winner.

In its section on the Midwest, Sports Illustrated says, "There are few coaches who win as often as Nebraska's Devaney, a man with an ineffable knack for accumulating large, capable football players by the cattle-car lot.

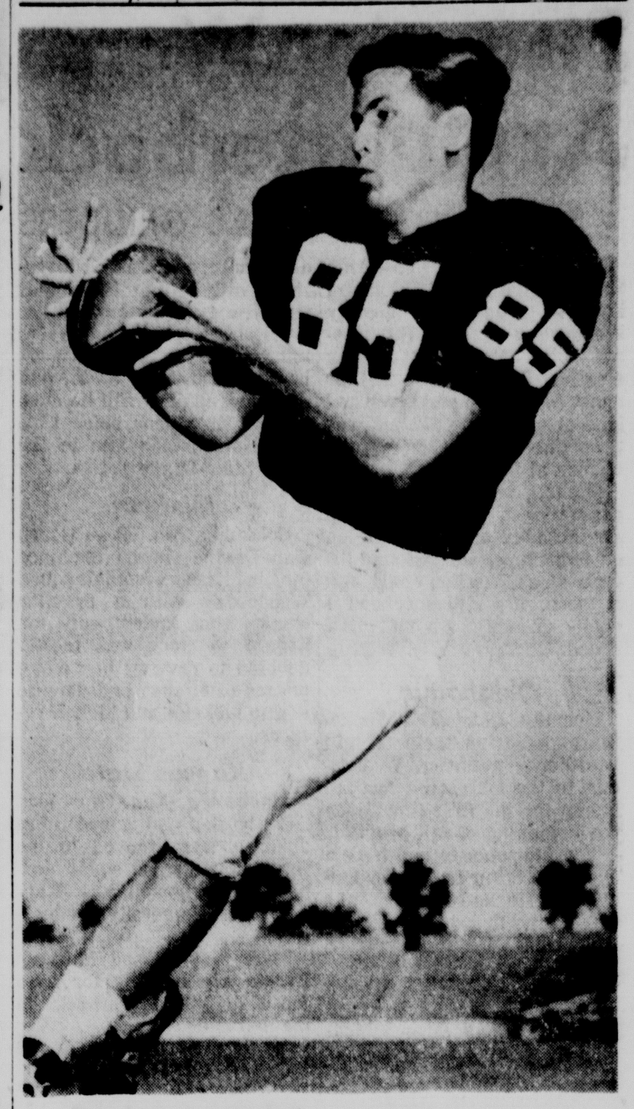
"In three seasons his teams have built a 28-5 record and won the Big Eight title twice. This year the Huskers could move up that one final notch to a national championship.

"Even Devaney admits Nebraska will be good—'better than last year,' he says—but he shies away from complete iconoclasm by qualifying his optimism. 'We have less backfield depth than at any other time since I've been here,' Devaney complains.

"Translated, this means that Devaney, who in the past often resembled the little old lady in the shoe, can now count all his players. The count still runs high . . .

". . . The most impressive thing about the Huskers, however, is their defense . . . Anyone who gets through this crew will have to earn his way.

"With so much talent, Nebraska's one fear should be of getting bushwhacked through overconfidence. The test will come against Missouri on October 30 in Columbia."



SONNY CAMPBELL . . . TCU tight-end.

Thunderbolts, Links, Rockets Picked In Prep Grid Games

. . . ALSO AS TOP CHALLENGERS

By DON FORSYTHE
Prep Sports Writer

The revival of sputtering offensive machines is the goal of most of the Nebraska high school football clubs this week as the preps move into their second week of play.

Opening week contests were characterized by low scores with the early success going to those teams which made the fewest offensive mistakes.

At stake this weekend will be spots in the initial 1965 Nebraska Prep Ratings in classes A, B, C and D and eight-man ranks.

Creighton Prep, the 1964 Class A pacesetter, goes against Bellevue this week after opening with a 31-0 whitewashing of Omaha South.

Early challengers for the top spot according to opening week action will be Boys Town, Tech, Benson and Westside from the Omaha ranks and Northeast, Pius X and Lincoln High from the Capital City.

A revised look is promised in Class B where 1964 leader Gothenburg was jolted by Ord in its opener. Among those displaying top ten potential last week were York, Holdrege, Ord, Cozad, Laurel and West Point Central Catholic.

Wisner, the 1964 Class C champion, cleared a major hurdle in edging Wakefield, 7-6, in its opener last week. Wakefield was No. 2 last year, losing only to Wisner, and both figure to be active in the chase this year.

Wisner gets a crack at Class B Wayne this week as it bids for a No. 1 berth at the outset of the 1965 season.

Silver Creek, 1964's Class D leader, stumbled against Clarks as it opened defense of its title and 1964's second-ranked Polk also tripped to pave the way for newcomers at the top of the 1965 Class D chart.

A new eight-man leader is assured since 1964 king Norris has stepped up to 11-man play.

Familiar names on the long end of lopsided scores last week included Chadron Assumption and Beaver Crossing, both working on long winning strings.

Forsythe's Choices

Northeast v. Southeast at Seacrest Field—Rockets get call in first of the city series.

Holdrege at Ord—Each recorded a big win last week. Holdrege will benefit from more experience here.

Norris at Ceresco—This one could decide Atlas Conference crown. Slight edge to Ceresco.

Wayne at Wisner—Wisner takes another step toward possible repeat honors in Class C.

Alvo-Eagle at Cedar Bluffs—Early season headliner in eight-man ranks with Cedar Bluffs getting edge on depth.

The Woods Park tennis courts at 33rd and J will remain open from 1-6 p.m. on Sundays, weather permitting, superintendent of recreation Robert M. Dula said Wednesday.

Persons or groups may also make special appointments through the supervisor Glenn Gibson or through the City Recreation Department, Dula said.

Vickers, Grant Grab Golf Lead

Tulsa, Okla. (AP) — Oilman Jim Vickers of Wichita, Kan., and collegian Jimmy Grant of Wethersfield, Conn., sneaked in with two-under-par 69s before the winds blew and the greens got chopped with spike marks Wednesday for the first round lead in the new-style National Amateur Golf Championship.

Defending titleholder Bill Campbell, a late starter, salvaged a creditable 73, but key men of both the U.S. and British Walker Cup teams floundered in the intense near-100 degree heat of the Southern Hills Country Club.

The biggest disappointment was Joe Carr, the three-time British Amateur king from Dublin, who skyrocketed to a 77 although he almost holed out from an adjoining fairway for a double eagle on the 16th hole.

Joining him among Walker Cup men who will have to struggle to make Thursday's cutdown to the low 60 were Peter Townsend, 79, Rodney Foster, 79, and Clive Clark, 78, of the British forces and American Cup members Downing Gray of Pensacola, Fla., 81; Dave Eichelberger of Waco, Tex., 77, Mark Hopkins of Texas City, Tex. Ed Tutwiler of Indianapolis, Ind., and Dr. Ed Updegraff of Tucson, Ariz., all 76.

Tutwiler, 46-year-old automobile dealer, was runner-up last year to Campbell in the last match play tournament. The Amateur went modern this year, turning to a 72-hole stroke competition.

Only one-half dozen players were able to beat the 71 par of the sprawling 6,917-yard course

Reds Grab 2nd In NL Struggle

. . . GIANTS WIN 13TH

By Associated Press

Cincinnati moved into sole possession of second place in the National League pennant race Wednesday night but remained 3½ games back of first place San Francisco which won its 13th straight.

The Reds nipped New York 2-1 on Jim Maloney's four-hitter while the Giants slipped past Houston 3-2 as Willie McCovey singled home the winning run in the ninth inning.

Los Angeles dropped 4½ games behind, losing its second straight to Chicago 8-6. Milwaukee remained six games behind, defeating Philadelphia 4-2 and St. Louis thumped Pittsburgh 7-3.

Four straight singles and a Met error in the second inning produced both Cincinnati runs. Ed Kranepool homered for New York and Vada Pinson's circus catch left the tying and winning runs stranded in the ninth. Pinson slipped going back for John Stephenson's fly ball and caught it flat on his back.

McCovey's hit delivered Willie Mays with the winning run. Mays had reached second when his grounder went through Walt Bond's legs.

Billy Williams, whose homer beat Sandy Koufax Tuesday, blasted another one as the Cubs beat Don Drysdale.

Drysdale was struck on the right ankle by an Ernie Banks' line drive and had to leave the game.

Bobby Wine's throwing error led to three unearned runs for the Braves as Milwaukee whipped Philadelphia. Tony Cloninger won his 22nd as the Braves snapped a three-game losing string.

Curt Flood drove in five runs with a double and three singles, powering the Cardinals past Pittsburgh. It was St. Louis' 16th straight victory in Forbes Field.

In the American League, first place Minnesota reeled off its seventh straight victory and reduced its magic number for clinching the pennant to six with a 7-5 victory over Kansas City.

Rookie Ted Uhlaender's pinch single delivered the winning run in the eighth inning.

Elsewhere, Mel Stottlemyre won his 18th game as New York defeated Washington 5-3, Boog Powell walloped his 17th homer giving Baltimore a 3-2 decision over Detroit and Danny Cater slapped three hits leading Chicago to an 8-1 victory over California in the first game of a doubleheader.

In the nightcap, the Angels and White Sox were tied 1-1 after six innings.

Abernathy Sets NL Relief Record

Chicago (AP) — Ted Abernathy, Chicago Cub right-hander, set a National League record for most appearances by a pitcher Wednesday when he worked in his 76th game on relief.

The all-time mark was 75 games by William White of Cincinnati in 1879 and the modern day league record was 74 by Jim Konstanty of Philadelphia in 1950.

John Wyatt of Kansas City holds the major league record of 81 games, set in 1964.

Bears Strengthen Linebacking Staff

Chicago (AP)—The Chicago Bears were bolstered Wednesday at their strongest position, linebacking, with the belated appearance of veteran Larry Morris.

Morris, 31, becomes the Bears' seventh linebacker.

Bear President George Halas, Jr., said the club now has 40 players, matching the National Football League limit effective Tuesday.

Arkansas QB Picked

Fayetteville, Ark. (AP)—Coach Frank Broyles said Wednesday that Jon Brittenum would be the starting quarterback when the Razorbacks open their season against Oklahoma State Saturday night at Little Rock.

Carl Poling In Seniors Golf Lead

Fremont—Carl (Snick) Poling of Beatrice took the first round lead in the Nebraska Seniors Golf Tournament here Wednesday with a one-over-par 72 over the Fremont Country Club course.

Poling played the 2,903-yard front nine in even par 35, but went one over with a 37 on the 3,085-yard back side.

Poling's 72 was one stroke better than Omaha's Walt Smola turned in, but Smola is in the junior-senior (under 55) division and is not yet eligible for the main prize.

Ed Printz of Omaha had the third best score of the day with a 75. Smola came back with a one-under-par 35 on the back side after going three over par with a 38 on the first nine holes.

The golfers will play 18 more holes both today and Friday to decide the championship in the first annual tournament. The tourney was split from the State Amateur Tournament for the first time this year.

First-round leaders:

Carl Poling, Beatrice	35-37—72

Texas Youngster Dies From Football Injuries

Houston, Tex. (AP)—Bobby Thorp, 15, sophomore high school football player who was injured in practice last Monday, died Wednesday in a local hospital.

The youth, who attended Spring Branch High School, was injured when he made a tackle during a practice session, sophomore Coach Charles Dinhoble said.

Extra Preparation Not Always Good

. . . SAYS COACH DEVANEY

By HAL BROWN
Star Sports Editor

Extra time isn't always the key to being prepared for a football game and Nebraska coach Bob Devaney is well aware of that fact.

"We have had more time to prepare for Texas Christian than we will have for any of our other games," Devaney noted Wednesday, "but this isn't always an advantage because in the opening game you don't always know what you are preparing for."

Of course, Texas Christian coach Abe Martin is in the same predicament. The two schools have traded movies of their spring games plus two late season games from a year ago.

"Either team could have made changes in its offense or defense or both since last spring," Devaney advised. "This makes the game very unpredictable as far as what type of game it could be.

"It will depend a lot on how well either team can adjust with something new."

Texas Christian runs its offense similar to Nebraska, Devaney pointed out. "They are well balanced between running and passing," he noted. "Under ordinary conditions, Texas Christian is not predominately a grind 'em out type team, nor are they a team that just goes out and throws the ball."

Texas Christian quarterback Kent Nix completed 11 of 20 passes in the last TCU scrimmage session and the 6-2, 185-pounder is also a capable runner.

Devaney compares Nix's running ability with that of Husker quarterback Fred Duda.

"Texas Christian runs a lot of sprint out run-pass options and Nix has run effectively from that," the NU coach mentioned. "He's no 10-second man, but he runs well."

One of Nix's leading pass targets is Sonny Campbell, a 6-2, 194-pound junior who grabbed 35 passes for 502 yards a year ago. Only All-American Larry Elkins of Baylor surpassed this in the Southwest Conference.

Devaney also opined Wednesday that Texas Christian's experienced defensive secondary wasn't likely to alter the Husker game plans.

"Any time you're throwing against experienced defenders, it makes it tougher," he noted. "But we're not going to stop throwing just because of that.

"You've got to play your regular patterns because if you try to concentrate on running and give up throwing or vice versa, you're going to come up short some place."

Diet, Weights Add Brawn To Wayne State Gridders

Wayne (AP) — That brawn on Wayne State guard Bob Kruse and tackle Dick Mintken was acquired the hard way.

Kruse, of Franklin Park, Ill., and Mintken of Hooper, Neb., room together off campus and train year around. Like some of their teammates at Wayne, they are weight lifters.

Their diet, with some variations, includes sizable chunks of meat, usually steak, three times a day; a dozen whipped eggs, drunk raw; quantities of fruit and vegetable juice extracted from fresh products, and other things heavy in protein and vitamins.

The product of this kind of living is a weight gain from last year from 230 pounds to 250 for Kruse and from 218 to 250 for Mintken.

Here is a practical little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add three. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures gives you. Situation Worse At Quarterback

. . . FOR KANSAS GRIDDERS

Lawrence, Kan. (AP)—The Kansas quarterback situation became even more gloomy Wednesday as little Bill Fenton, the No. 2 man, was treated at the hospital for chest congestion and fever and first stringer Bob Skahan was pronounced doubtful for the opener at Texas Tech.

Skahan, who pulled a thigh muscle last week, suited up Wedneseday and tried his leg on two plays. Skahan said "it feels weak like you could pull it loose. It's still sore and I could go only about half speed."

Oklahoma

Norman, Okla (AP) — Sophomore defensive tackle Phil Weatherby returned Wednesday to the Oklahoma football lineup for the first time since the beginning of fall practice.

The 216-pounder had been out recovering from mononucleosis. He had worked his way to the first team prior to his illness. He took part in Wednesday's contact work.

The Sooners worked 90 minutes on passes and situation scrimmage and other phases offense and defense.

Oklahoma State

Stillwater, Okla. (AP) — Oklahoma State football players went back to night practice Wednesday because of the heat and began tapering off for the opener with Arkansas Saturday night in Little Rock.

There was limited contact work Monday and Tuesday and head coach Phil Cutchin called it satisfactory.

Cutchin announced senior fullback Walt Garrison and senior guard Hugh McCrabb would be co-captains for the Arkansas game.

Iowa State

Ames, Iowa (AP)—Iowa State football coach Clay Stapleton warned his squad Wednesday that the winner of its Saturday game at Drake University "will be the team that wants to play the hardest."

Stapleton told his players that Drake is always at its best against Iowa State, and that the Bulldogs will be even tougher this year since the game marks the last in the Iowa State-Drake series.

Missouri

Columbia, Mo. (AP) — Coach Dan Devine slowed the pace for his Missouri football squad Wednesday with a practice session that lasted only an hour. The work was mostly devoted to reviews of some phases of offense and defense and to kickoffs and kickoff returns.

Kansas State

Manhattan, Kan. (AP) — End Art Strozier and guard Jim Johnson were moved to the first team offense squad during football practice at Kansas State University Wednesday.

Mike Murray and Mitch Borota are battling for the job of defensive halfback on the left side.

Ham Richardson Advances In 2nd Round Of Colonial

Fort Worth, Tex. (AP)—U.S. Davis Cup veteran Ham Richardson cut down Costa Rica's Luis Rojas and led the charge Wednesday into the second round of the Colonial National Invitation Tennis Tournament.

The 32-year-old Dallas, Tex., stock broker never dropped service in eliminating Costa Rica's No. 2 player 6-1, 6-2.

Richardson thus earned a shot at defending champion Rafael Osuna, Mexico's top-ranked performer who drew a bye along with the seven other seeded contestants.

Hospital Gets Check From Pro Exhibition

Omaha—Childrens Memorial Hospital was presented Wednesday with a check for $10,004.46 from Saturday's National Football League exhibition game here between the Minnesota Vikings and the New York Giants.

Richard Walker, chairman of the hospital board of trustees, accepted the check from L. W. (Bud) Gregg, general manager of Falstaff, which has sponsored the exhibition contests since 1962.

HUSKERS PICKED AGAIN

BOB DEVANEY

...Sports Illustrated Joins Bandwagon

Nebraska, already picked as the No. 1 football team in the nation by Look Magazine and the Associated Press was named No. 1 Wednesday by Sports Illustrated which uses 162-pound fullback Frank Solich for its cover picture.

"The College Guns Go Vroom!" starts the headline on Sports Illustrated's football section. ". . . And Nebraska Has The Guns."

"The language and the rules both change this season, but the Cornhuskers will be strong again and should finally "gore' the others to win the mythical national title," the headlines continue.

After explaining the trends in college football, author Dan Jenkins, who also covered the Nebraska-Arkansas Cotton Bowl game last winter, writes, "Perhaps the easiest thing of all for the trend conscious follower this year will be knowing which are the superb teams.

"All he has to do lately is memorize Texas, Alabama, Nebraska, USC and Arkansas. These are the teams that stay at the top. Each seems to benefit from spectacular coaching."

The magazine also pushes the NCAA to start a national football tournament to determine a true football champion as they do in other collegiate sports, including fencing.

Under the Sports Illustrated plan, 16 teams would be thrown in the tournament as conference winners or deserving independents.

Sports Illustrated pits the Big Eight (Nebraska) against Missouri Valley (Tulsa) in the first round with Nebraska winning, 10-0.

The next game would be against Wyoming, a 21-7 winner over Idaho. The magazine picks the Huskers by 26-10 in this one, moving them against Texas in the semifinals.

After a 15-14 win over Texas, Sports Illustrated would move the Cornhuskers against Alabama for the national championship with Nebraska the 21-18 winner.

In its section on the Midwest, Sports Illustrated says, "There are few coaches who win as often as Nebraska's Devaney, a man with an ineffable knack for accumulating large, capable football players by the cattle-car lot.

"In three seasons his teams have built a 28-5 record and won the Big Eight title twice. This year the Huskers could move up that one final notch to a national championship.

"Even Devaney admits Nebraska will be good—'better than last year," he says—but he shies away from complete iconoclasm by qualifying his optimism. 'We have less backfield depth than at any other time since I've been here,' Devaney complains.

"Translated, this means that Devaney, who in the past often resembled the little old lady in the shoe, can now count all his players. The count still runs high . . .

". . . The most impressive thing about the Huskers, however, is their defense . . . Anyone who gets through this crew will have to earn his way.

"With so much talent, Nebraska's one fear should be of getting bushwhacked through overconfidence. The test will come against Missouri on October 30 in Columbia."

Thunderbolts, Links, Rockets Picked In Prep Grid Games

. . . ALSO AS TOP CHALLENGERS

By DON FORSYTHE
Prep Sports Writer

The revival of sputtering offensive machines is the goal of most of the Nebraska high school football clubs this week as the preps move into their second week of play.

Opening week contests were characterized by low scores with the early success going to those teams which made the fewest offensive mistakes.

At stake this weekend will be spots in the initial 1965 Nebraska Prep Ratings in classes A, B, C and D and eight-man ranks.

Creighton Prep, the 1964 Class A pacesetter, goes against Bellevue this week after opening with a 31-0 whitewashing of Omaha South.

Early challengers for the top spot according to opening week action will be Boys Town, Tech, Benson and Westside from the Omaha ranks and Northeast, Pius X and Lincoln High from the Capital City.

A revised look is promised in Class B where 1964 leader Gothenburg was jolted by Ord in its opener. Among those displaying top ten potential last week were York, Holdrege, Ord, Cozad, Laurel and West Point Central Catholic.

Wisner, the 1964 Class C champion, cleared a major hurdle in edging Wakefield, 7-6, in its opener last week. Wakefield was No. 2 last year, losing only to Wisner, and both figure to be active in the chase this year.

Wisner gets a crack at Class B Wayne this week as it bids for a No. 1 berth at the outset of the 1965 season.

Silver Creek, 1964's Class D leader, stumbled against Clarks as it opened defense of its title and 1964's second-ranked Polk also tripped to pave the way for newcomers at the top of the 1965 Class D chart.

A new eight-man leader is assured since 1964 king Norris has stepped up to 11-man play.

Familiar names on the long end of lopsided scores last week included Chadron Assumption and Beaver Crossing, both working on long winning strings.

Vickers, Grant Grab Golf Lead

Tulsa, Okla. (AP) — Oilman Jim Vickers of Wichita, Kan., and collegian Jimmy Grant of Wethersfield, Conn., sneaked in with two-under-par 69s before the winds blew and the greens got chopped with spike marks Wednesday for the first round lead in the new-style National Amateur Golf Championship.

Defending titleholder Bill Campbell, a late starter, salvaged a creditable 73, but key men of both the U.S. and British Walker Cup teams floundered in the intense near-100 degree heat of the Southern Hills Country Club.

The biggest disappointment was Joe Carr, the three-time British Amateur king from Dublin, who skyrocketed to a 77 although he almost holed out from an adjoining fairway for a double eagle on the 16th hole.

Joining him among Walker Cup men who will have to struggle to make Thursday's cutdown to the low 60 were Peter Townsend, 79, Rodney Foster, 79, and Clive Clark, 78, of the British forces and American Cup members Downing Gray of Pensacola, Fla., 81; Dave Eichelberger of Waco, Tex., 77, Mark Hopkins of Texas City, Tex. Ed Tutwiler of Indianapolis, Ind., and Dr. Ed Updegraff of Tucson, Ariz., all 76.

Tutwiler, 46-year-old automobile dealer, was runner-up last year to Campbell in the last match play tournament. The Amateur went modern this year, turning to a 72-hole stroke competition.

Only one-half dozen players were able to beat the 71 par of the sprawling 6,917-yard course

Reds Grab 2nd In NL Struggle

. . . GIANTS WIN 13TH

By Associated Press

Cincinnati moved into sole possession of second place in the National League pennant race Wednesday night but remained 3½ games back of first place San Francisco which won its 13th straight.

The Reds nipped New York 2-1 on Jim Maloney's four-hitter while the Giants slipped past Houston 3-2 as Willie McCovey singled home the winning run in the ninth inning.

Los Angeles dropped 4½ games behind, losing its second straight to Chicago 8-6. Milwaukee remained six games behind, defeating Philadelphia 4-2 and St. Louis thumped Pittsburgh 7-3.

Four straight singles and a Met error in the second inning produced both Cincinnati runs. Ed Kranepool homered for New York and Vada Pinson's circus catch left the tying and winning runs stranded in the ninth. Pinson slipped going back for John Stephenson's fly ball and caught it flat on his back.

McCovey's hit delivered Willie Mays with the winning run. Mays had reached second when his grounder went through Walt Bond's legs.

Billy Williams, whose homer beat Sandy Koufax Tuesday, blasted another one as the Cubs beat Don Drysdale.

Drysdale was struck on the right ankle by an Ernie Banks' line drive and had to leave the game.

Bobby Wine's throwing error led to three unearned runs for the Braves as Milwaukee whipped Philadelphia. Tony Cloninger won his 22nd as the Braves snapped a three-game losing string.

Curt Flood drove in five runs with a double and three singles, powering the Cardinals past Pittsburgh. It was St. Louis' 16th straight victory in Forbes Field.

In the American League, first place Minnesota reeled off its seventh straight victory and reduced its magic number for clinching the pennant to six with a 7-5 victory over Kansas City.

Rookie Ted Uhlaender's pinch single delivered the winning run in the eighth inning.

Elsewhere, Mel Stottlemyre won his 18th game as New York defeated Washington 5-3, Boog Powell walloped his 17th homer giving Baltimore a 3-2 decision over Detroit and Danny Cater slapped three hits leading Chicago to an 8-1 victory over California in the first game of a doubleheader.

In the nightcap, the Angels and White Sox were tied 1-1 after six innings.

Abernathy Sets NL Relief Record

Chicago (AP) — Ted Abernathy, Chicago Cub right-hander, set a National League record for most appearances by a pitcher Wednesday when he worked in his 76th game on relief.

The all-time mark was 75 games by William White of Cincinnati in 1879 and the modern day league record was 74 by Jim Konstanty of Philadelphia in 1950.

John Wyatt of Kansas City holds the major league record of 81 games, set in 1964.

Bears Strengthen Linebacking Staff

Chicago (AP)—The Chicago Bears were bolstered Wednesday at their strongest position, linebacking, with the belated appearance of veteran Larry Morris.

Morris, 31, becomes the Bears' seventh linebacker.

Bear President George Halas, Jr., said the club now has 40 players, matching the National Football League limit effective Tuesday.

Arkansas QB Picked

Fayetteville, Ark. (AP)—Coach Frank Broyles said Wednesday that Jon Brittenum would be the starting quarterback when the Razorbacks open their season against Oklahoma State Saturday night at Little Rock.

Carl Poling In Seniors Golf Lead

Fremont—Carl (Snick) Poling of Beatrice took the first round lead in the Nebraska Seniors Golf Tournament here Wednesday with a one-over-par 72 over the Fremont Country Club course.

Poling played the 2,903-yard front nine in even par 35, but went one over with a 37 on the 3,085-yard back side.

Poling's 72 was one stroke better than Omaha's Walt Smola turned in, but Smola is in the junior-senior (under 55) division and is not yet eligible for the main prize.

Ed Printz of Omaha had the third best score of the day with a 75. Smola came back with a one-under-par 35 on the back side after going three over par with a 38 on the first nine holes.

The golfers will play 18 more holes both today and Friday to decide the championship in the first annual tournament. The tourney was split from the State Amateur Tournament for the first time this year.

Extra Preparation Not Always Good

. . . SAYS COACH DEVANEY

By HAL BROWN
Star Sports Editor

Extra time isn't always the key to being prepared for a football game and Nebraska coach Bob Devaney is well aware of that fact.

"We have had more time to prepare for Texas Christian than we will have for any of our other games," Devaney noted Wednesday, "but this isn't always an advantage because in the opening game you don't always know what you are preparing for."

Of course, Texas Christian coach Abe Martin is in the same predicament. The two schools have traded movies of their spring games plus two late season games from a year ago.

"Either team could have made changes in its offense or defense or both since last spring," Devaney advised. "This makes the game very unpredictable as far as what type of game it could be.

"It will depend a lot on how well either team can adjust with something new."

Texas Christian runs its offense similar to Nebraska, Devaney pointed out. "They are well balanced between running and passing," he noted. "Under ordinary conditions, Texas Christian is not predominately a grind 'em out type team, nor are they a team that just goes out and throws the ball."

Texas Christian quarterback Kent Nix completed 11 of 20 passes in the last TCU scrimmage session and the 6-2, 185-pounder is also a capable runner.

Devaney compares Nix's running ability with that of Husker quarterback Fred Duda.

"Texas Christian runs a lot of sprint out run-pass options and Nix has run effectively from that," the NU coach mentioned. "He's no 10-second man, but he runs well."

One of Nix's leading pass targets is Sonny Campbell, a 6-2, 194-pound junior who grabbed 35 passes for 502 yards a year ago. Only All-American Larry Elkins of Baylor surpassed this in the Southwest Conference.

Devaney also opined Wednesday that Texas Christian's experienced defensive secondary wasn't likely to alter the Husker game plans.

"Any time you're throwing against experienced defenders, it makes it tougher," he noted. "But we're not going to stop throwing just because of that.

"You've got to play your regular patterns because if you try to concentrate on running and give up throwing or vice versa, you're going to come up short some place."

Diet, Weights Add Brawn To Wayne State Gridders

Wayne (AP) — That brawn on Wayne State guard Bob Kruse and tackle Dick Mintken was acquired the hard way.

Kruse, of Franklin Park, Ill., and Mintken of Hooper, Neb., room together off campus and train year around. Like some of their teammates at Wayne, they are weight lifters.

Their diet, with some variations, includes sizable chunks of meat, usually steak, three times a day; a dozen whipped eggs, drunk raw; quantities of fruit and vegetable juice extracted from fresh products, and other things heavy in protein and vitamins.

The product of this kind of living is a weight gain from last year from 230 pounds to 250 for Kruse and from 218 to 250 for Mintken.

Top 10 Will Have To Be Sharp To Win Openers

By DICK DUNKEL

They've taken all the fun and frolic out of college football openers.

Today it's serious hard-nosed business from the start.

Back in 1935 the season began with such capers as Ole Miss 92, Memphis Teachers 0; Claflin (yes) 90, Harbison (?) 0; Furman 69, Piedmont 0; Kentucky 60, Maryville 0; and Temple 51, St. Joeph's 0.

No more. Even the lordly Top Ten will have to look sharp this year. Eight of the 1964 leaders will see action this weekend. In the continuous Dunkel Index their carried-over comparison with opponents is:

Michigan 21 over N.Carolina
Notre Dame 19 over Calif.
Arkansas 24 over Okla. St.
So. Calif. 13 over Minnesota
Texas 18 over Tulane
Alabama 15 over Georgia
Illinois 10 over Oregon St.
Florida 16 over N'western

The average team's rating deviation from one season to the next is only 7.0 points, or one touchdown. Right now we don't know who'll be deviating and in which direction. If there's a fiasco above it may be that Alabama will find Georgia more hospitable than indicated.

We'll see. And we'll also see brand new 1965 ratings by the Dunkel system (progressive index of scoring margin relative to opposition rating) here next week.

Meanwhile, these are carry-over differences of other big games of next Saturday:

EAST—Syracuse 7 over Navy, Oregon 4 over Pitt, Villanova 17 over Toledo, Boston College 10 over Buffalo.

MIDWEST—Michigan State 9 over UCLA, Missouri 6 over Kentucky, Purdue 20 over Miami, O.; Cincinnati 24 over Dayton, Colorado 1 over Wisconsin, Indiana 12 over Kansas State, Iowa 13 over Wash. State.

SOUTH—LSU 11 over Texas A&M, Mississippi 7 over Memphis State, Auburn 8 over Baylor, Army 2 over Tennessee, Ga. Tech 10 over Vanderbilt, Miami, Fla. 18 over SMU, Duke 1 over Virginia, Clemson even with N. C. State, S. Carolina 13 over Citadel, Va. Tech 2 over Wake Forest, W. Virginia 25 over Richmond, Wm. & Mary 8 over VMI.

SOUTHWEST—Texas Tech 8 over Kansas, Rice 18 over La. Tech, Miss. State 13 over Houston.

FAR WEST — Stanford 26 over San Jose, Washington 13 over Idaho. Schedule with ratings follows:

Steen Wants River Site For Recreation

State Game Commission Director Mel Steen said Tuesday he is going to emphasize acquisition of access sites on the Missouri River so the waterway can be developed to serve the expanding outdoor recreational needs of eastern Nebraska.

Steen said development of the river has been limited thus far because access land mostly is in the hands of private owners.

Mays' HR Pace Lags Behind Maris, Ruth

New York (AP) — Willie Mays, with 48 home runs and 501 for his career, still is running behind the pace of Roger Maris and Babe Ruth in their big years.

Mays has hit 48 homers in 144 games. In 1961, when Maris hit his record 61, he had 56 in the first 144 games. In 1927, when Ruth hit 60, he had 53 in the first 144 games of a 154-game season.

Tigers, Kentucky Collide In Intersectional Battle

Columbia, Mo. (AP)—Kentucky of the Southeastern Conference and Missouri of the Big Eight—both with league championship, top ten and bowl game ambitions — will collide here Saturday in one of the nation's best intersectional football games.

Charlie Bradshaw, a disciple of Alabama Coach Bear Bryant, has by far the deepest and strongest team in his four years in Kentucky. His club is rated only a shade behind Alabama and LSU in the SEC.

Missouri is rated second in the Big Eight only to Nebraska, defending league champ ranked No. 1 in The Associated Press pre-season national poll. Coach Dan Devine admits his backfield is the best since 1960, when the Tigers beat Navy in the Orange Bowl.

The game matches a pair of top quarterbacks. Gary Lane of Missouri, a swift runner and good sprint-out passer, has won the Big Eight total offense crown two straight years.

Kentucky's Rick Norton, a gifted drop-back passer, led the SEC in passing and total offense last fall. Bradshaw said "Norton will be the best drop-back passer in the nation this year. He has matured and he was passing far better than ever before last spring."

Devine said he considered Kentucky the toughest opener in his college coaching career. Devine's career won-lost percentage is third best among the nation's active coaches, but he has lost his last two openers, both to drop back passers — Craig Morton of California and Tom Myers of Northwestern.

Iowa State

Ames, Iowa (AP)—Iowa State football coach Clay Stapleton warned his squad Wednesday that the winner of its Saturday game at Drake University "will be the team that wants to play the hardest."

Fort Worth, Tex. (AP)—U.S. Davis Cup veteran Ham Richardson cut down Costa Rica's Luis Rojas and led the charge Wednesday into the second round of the Colonial National Invitation Tennis Tournament.

Hunter's Clock

Shooting hours for all upland game birds and small-game animals are from one-half hour before sunrise to sunset. Shooting hours for big game are from one-half hour before sunrise to one-half hour after sunset. Waterfowl and other migratory birds may be taken between sunrise and sunset. The following applies to shooting at any point in Nebraska that is due north or due south of each of the cities and towns. For each 13 miles west of each city add one minute, and for each 13 miles east subtract one minute.

Valentine and Scottsbluff schedules are Mountain Time. All others are Central Time. Hunters should set their watches according to the time zone in which they are hunting.

Prelates Begin Religious Liberty Debate; U.S. To Have 4 In Bishops Synod

Vatican City (AP) — Two American cardinals urged the Vatican Ecumenical Council Wednesday to approve a religious liberty document that has caused bitter controversy among the council's almost 2,500 prelates.

Cardinals Francis Spellman of New York and Richard Cushing of Boston spoke in St. Peter's Basilica at the opening daily working meeting of the council's fourth and final session.

Pope Paul VI attended long enough to hear the reading of a new papal document setting up a worldwide synod of bishops to help him govern the Roman Catholic Church and outlining its general scope. He had announced his decision to create the synod when he opened the council's 1965 session. Progressives have long favored such a step.

Unannounced

The Pope came in unannounced, stayed an hour and walked out a side door after his "motu proprio," or personally written document, was read.

His appearnace in a working meeting was a rarity, and the bishops applauded him as he left. Then they took up debate on the religious liberty document, which had been the final matter handled at last fall's council session.

An initial approving vote on the topic, which says every man is free to practice religion according to his conscience, was shelved last year because 122 council fathers out of 2,200 wanted more time to study it.

Progressive-minded bishops were angry at the postponement, regarding the document as vital for the council and for Christian unity efforts. One of its drafting bishops, putting it onto the council floor for new debate, said most of 218 written comments sent in by bishops early this year favored its strong statement that religious freedom is a positive right of man.

Real Answer

Cardinal Spellman, the first to speak on it, said the document was "a real answer to the requirements of the modern times." He added that the principles it contained could be agreed upon by both Catholics and non-Catholics.

"Any modifications in the text could give rise to serious doubts regarding the sincerity of the church and the council," he said.

Cardinal Cushing, a fiery orator, was applauded when he told the council:

"This schema (document) answers the expectations of the church and world. What it says has solid foundation in the teaching of the church . . The foundation of this right (to free worship) is not subjective but rests on sound moral theology . . .

"We must preach the gospel of freedom. Denial of the right to religious liberty usually brings on the denial of many other civil rights. I am not afraid of the gospel of freedom."

Shaking his fist, Cardinal Cushing insisted that the document be approved.

Italians, Spaniard

Two Italians and a Spaniard argued against upholding religious freedom as a right of man. A third Italian cardinal spoke in favor of it.

Ernesto Cardinal Ruffini of Palermo, a leading conservative, said, "The state as a state has a duty to worship God." He said he thought the document could be a danger in "cutting religion off completely from the state."

Giuseppe Cardinal Siri of Genoa said the document defended all liberty indiscriminately and was wrong in that. "If we defend religious liberty too much, we weaken theology and thereby weaken ourselves," he said.

Benjamin Cardinal Arriba y Castro of Tarragona, Spain, argued:

"Only the Catholic Church has the right to preach the gospel. Proselytism (convert-seeking) in a Catholic state is bad and must be repressed not only by the church but also by the state, for reasons of the common good."

A third Italian cardinal spoke in favor of the document in the name of 32 other prelates from Italy. Giovanni Cardinal Urbani, patriarch of Venice, said it was "substantially good" and followed "an excellent method" in outlining principles.

Eight prelates spoke Wednesday on the document.

Joseph Cardinal Frings of Cologne, Germany, and Bernard Jan Cardinal Alfrink of Utrecht, Holland, favored it.

Some theologians and church law experts attached to the council said the "Synod of the Bishops," as the new body created by the pontiff will be officially called, was one of the most important developments in updating Catholicism since the Vatican Council began three years ago.

The papal document, entitled "Apostolica Sollicitudo" (Apostolic Solicitude) from its opening words, says synod membership will be predominantly diocesan bishops chosen by national bishops' conferences.

Conferences with more than 100 bishops will be allowed four synod members. Those with less than 25 will have one synod member. The United States has more than 250 bishops and is in the four-member class.

The outline rules given Wednesday say the synod will be a central permanent assembly and will meet whenever and wherever the Pope decides. It will have the duty of teaching and advising, with deliberative or full authoritative powers when so decided by the Pope.

Reds See Threat In German Militarism

Moscow (UPI)—Russia and Czechoslovakia charged Wednesday that "reviving militarist forces" in West Germany are "the biggest threat to European peace."

A joint statement signed by the two nations after a state visit here by Czech President Antonin Novotny continued the current drum-fire of Communist criticism of Bonn.

The statement also attacked American "escalation" in Viet Nam, promised aid to North Viet Nam, called for peace between India and Pakistan, urged Communist China's membership in the United Nations and pledged continued Moscow-Prague economic cooperation.

It demanded that the Bonn government sign a World War II peace treaty permanently divided Germany, recognize the Oder-Neisse River line between Poland and East Germany and stop "laying territorial claims to other European states."

Top 10 Will Have To Be Sharp To Win Openers

By DICK DUNKEL

They've taken all the fun and frolic out of college football openers.

Today it's serious hard-nosed business from the start.

Back in 1935 the season began with such capers as Ole Miss 92, Memphis Teachers 0; Claflin (yes) 90, Harbison (?) 0; Furman 69, Piedmont 0; Kentucky 60, Maryville 0; and Temple 51, St. Joeph's 0.

No more. Even the lordly Top Ten will have to look sharp this year. Eight of the 1964 leaders will see action this weekend. In the continuous Dunkel Index their carried-over comparison with opponents is:

Michigan 21 over N.Carolina
Notre Dame 19 over Calif.
Arkansas 24 over Okla. St.
So. Calif. 13 over Minnesota
Texas 18 over Tulane
Alabama 15 over Georgia
Illinois 10 over Oregon St.
Florida 16 over N'western

The average team's rating deviation from one season to the next is only 7.0 points, or one touchdown. Right now we don't know who'll be deviating and in which direction. If there's a fiasco above it may be that Alabama will find Georgia more hospitable than indicated.

We'll see. And we'll also see brand new 1965 ratings by the Dunkel system (progressive index of scoring margin relative to opposition rating) here next week.

Meanwhile, these are carry-over differences of other big games of next Saturday:

EAST—Syracuse 7 over Navy, Oregon 4 over Pitt, Villanova 17 over Toledo, Boston College 10 over Buffalo.

MIDWEST—Michigan State 9 over UCLA, Missouri 6 over Kentucky, Purdue 20 over Miami, O.; Cincinnati 24 over Dayton, Colorado 1 over Wisconsin, Indiana 12 over Kansas State, Iowa 13 over Wash. State.

Steen Wants River Site For Recreation

State Game Commission Director Mel Steen said Tuesday he is going to emphasize acquisition of access sites on the Missouri River so the waterway can be developed to serve the expanding outdoor recreational needs of eastern Nebraska.

Steen said development of the river has been limited thus far because access land mostly is in the hands of private owners.

Mays' HR Pace Lags Behind Maris, Ruth

New York (AP) — Willie Mays, with 48 home runs and 501 for his career, still is running behind the pace of Roger Maris and Babe Ruth in their big years.

Mays has hit 48 homers in 144 games. In 1961, when Maris hit his record 61, he had 56 in the first 144 games. In 1927, when Ruth hit 60, he had 53 in the first 144 games of a 154-game season.

Tigers, Kentucky Collide In Intersectional Battle

Columbia, Mo. (AP)—Kentucky of the Southeastern Conference and Missouri of the Big Eight—both with league championship, top ten and bowl game ambitions — will collide here Saturday in one of the nation's best intersectional football games.

Charlie Bradshaw, a disciple of Alabama Coach Bear Bryant, has by far the deepest and strongest team in his four years in Kentucky. His club is rated only a shade behind Alabama and LSU in the SEC.

Missouri is rated second in the Big Eight only to Nebraska, defending league champ ranked No. 1 in The Associated Press pre-season national poll. Coach Dan Devine admits his backfield is the best since 1960, when the Tigers beat Navy in the Orange Bowl.

The game matches a pair of top quarterbacks. Gary Lane of Missouri, a swift runner and good sprint-out passer, has won the Big Eight total offense crown two straight years.

Kentucky's Rick Norton, a gifted drop-back passer, led the SEC in passing and total offense last fall. Bradshaw said "Norton will be the best drop-back passer in the nation this year. He has matured and he was passing far better than ever before last spring."

Devine said he considered Kentucky the toughest opener in his college coaching career. Devine's career won-lost percentage is third best among the nation's active coaches, but he has lost his last two openers, both to drop back passers — Craig Morton of California and Tom Myers of Northwestern.

Prelates Begin Religious Liberty Debate; U.S. To Have 4 In Bishops Synod

Vatican City (AP) — Two American cardinals urged the Vatican Ecumenical Council Wednesday to approve a religious liberty document that has caused bitter controversy among the council's almost 2,500 prelates.

Cardinals Francis Spellman of New York and Richard Cushing of Boston spoke in St. Peter's Basilica at the opening daily working meeting of the council's fourth and final session.

Pope Paul VI attended long enough to hear the reading of a new papal document setting up a worldwide synod of bishops to help him govern the Roman Catholic Church and outlining its general scope. He had announced his decision to create the synod when he opened the council's 1965 session. Progressives have long favored such a step.

Unannounced

The Pope came in unannounced, stayed an hour and walked out a side door after his "motu proprio," or personally written document, was read.

His appearnace in a working meeting was a rarity, and the bishops applauded him as he left. Then they took up debate on the religious liberty document, which had been the final matter handled at last fall's council session.

An initial approving vote on the topic, which says every man is free to practice religion according to his conscience, was shelved last year because 122 council fathers out of 2,200 wanted more time to study it.

Progressive-minded bishops were angry at the postponement, regarding the document as vital for the council and for Christian unity efforts. One of its drafting bishops, putting it onto the council floor for new debate, said most of 218 written comments sent in by bishops early this year favored its strong statement that religious freedom is a positive right of man.

Real Answer

Cardinal Spellman, the first to speak on it, said the document was "a real answer to the requirements of the modern times." He added that the principles it contained could be agreed upon by both Catholics and non-Catholics.

"Any modifications in the text could give rise to serious doubts regarding the sincerity of the church and the council," he said.

Cardinal Cushing, a fiery orator, was applauded when he told the council:

"This schema (document) answers the expectations of the church and world. What it says has solid foundation in the teaching of the church . . . The foundation of this right (to free worship) is not subjective but rests on sound moral theology . . .

"We must preach the gospel of freedom. Denial of the right to religious liberty usually brings on the denial of many other civil rights. I am not afraid of the gospel of freedom."

Shaking his fist, Cardinal Cushing insisted that the document be approved.

Italians, Spaniard

Two Italians and a Spaniard argued against upholding religious freedom as a right of man. A third Italian cardinal spoke in favor of it.

Ernesto Cardinal Ruffini of Palermo, a leading conservative, said, "The state as a state has a duty to worship God." He said he thought the document could be a danger in "cutting religion off completely from the state."

Giuseppe Cardinal Siri of Genoa said the document defended all liberty indiscriminately and was wrong in that. "If we defend religious liberty too much, we weaken theology and thereby weaken ourselves," he said.

Benjamin Cardinal Arriba y Castro of Tarragona, Spain, argued:

"Only the Catholic Church has the right to preach the gospel. Proselytism (convert-seeking) in a Catholic state is bad and must be repressed not only by the church but also by the state, for reasons of the common good."

A third Italian cardinal spoke in favor of the document in the name of 32 other prelates from Italy. Giovanni Cardinal Urbani, patriarch of Venice, said it was "substantially good" and followed "an excellent method" in outlining principles.

Eight prelates spoke Wednesday on the document. Joseph Cardinal Frings of Cologne, Germany, and Bernard Jan Cardinal Alfrink of Utrecht, Holland, favored it.

Some theologians and church law experts attached to the council said the "Synod of the Bishops," as the new body created by the pontiff will be officially called, was one of the most important developments in updating Catholicism since the Vatican Council began three years ago.

The papal document, entitled "Apostolica Sollicitudo" (Apostolic Solicitude) from its opening words, says synod membership will be predominantly diocesan bishops chosen by national bishops' conferences.

Conferences with more than 100 bishops will be allowed four synod members. Those with less than 25 will have one synod member. The United States has more than 250 bishops and is in the four-member class.

The outline rules given Wednesday say the synod will be a central permanent assembly and will meet whenever and wherever the Pope decides. It will have the duty of teaching and advising, with deliberative or full authoritative powers when so decided by the Pope.

Reds See Threat In German Militarism

Moscow (UPI)—Russia and Czechoslovakia charged Wednesday that "reviving militarist forces" in West Germany are "the biggest threat to European peace."

A joint statement signed by the two nations after a state visit here by Czech President Antonin Novotny continued the current drum-fire of Communist criticism of Bonn.

The statement also attacked American "escalation" in Viet Nam, promised aid to North Viet Nam, called for peace between India and Pakistan, urged Communist China's membership in the United Nations and pledged continued Moscow-Prague economic cooperation.

It demanded that the Bonn government sign a World War II peace treaty permanently divided Germany, recognize the Oder-Neisse River line between Poland and East Germany and stop "laying territorial claims to other European states."

Social Security Benefit Checks Now Being Sent

Washington (AP) — Mailing of retroactive benefit checks totaling some $885 million to about 20.5 million Social Security beneficiaries began Wednesday.

Robert M. Ball, Social Security commissioner, said most beneficiaries will receive their checks in a few days.

He said checks are being mailed from six treasury disbursing offices—in New York, Philadelphia, Birmingham, Chicago, Kansas City and San Francisco.

Thepayments represent the seven per cent increase retroactive to Jan. 1, provided in the Social Security amendments signed into law July 30 by President Johnson.

The checks cover the increase for the months of January through August.

Ball said they will average about $48 for single retired workers, $80 for aged couples, $40 for aged widows, $112 for a widow with two children, $56 for disabled workers and $104 or more for the average disabled worker with a wife and one or more children.

The regular monthly Social Security checks to be mailed early in October will reflect the increase. These checks cover benefits for September. The total monthly increase will be about $100 million.

Ball urged that beneficiaries be on the lookout for their retroactive checks as well as their regular checks and remove them from their mailboxes promptly.

"We have been working closely withthe Secret Service to prevent thefts and subsequent illegal cashing of Social Security checks," Ball said.

The Secret Service said that thousands of government checks fail to reach the people entitled to them each year because the checks are stolen, endorsements forged and the checks cashed by thieves posing as rightful owners.

J. C. PENNEY . . . alert despite failing eyes and ears, sits in office.

J. C. Penney Looks Forward To 100 On His 90th Birthday

New York (AP) — James Cash Penney, a farmer's son who founded a nationwide store chain, celebrates his 90th birthday Thursday.

Penney, alert and dapper despite failing sight and hearing, will be honored by major retailing executives at a birthday luncheon. Cakes also will be cut at 1,673 J. C. Penney department stores for the chain's 56,000 employes.

"I expect to live to be 100," said Penney in an interview, patting down his carefully combed white hair and smoothing his small, brush-like mustache. "My doctor tells me I'm good for it."

63 Years Ago

It was 63 years ago that Penney scraped together $2,000 and opened his first apparel and dry goods shop in the mining town of Kemmerer, Wyo., calling it the "Golden Rule Store." At a time when most small-town merchants aimed at big profits from small sales, Penney attracted a volume business by buying in bulk and selling cheaply. His success led to a chain of J. C. Penney stores.

For its 1964-65 fiscal year, J. C. Penney Inc., logged more than $2 billion in sales, second only to Sears, Roebuck & Co. among nonfood chains.

Penney still carries a retail clerk's sharpened pencil in his suit breast pocket and pumps a visitor's arm with a salesman's handshake. He said his vision has dimmed so he no longer can read or make out facial features — but he can run his practiced storekeeper's eye over a stranger and tell him exactly what size suit he wears.

"You take a size 40 long," he correctly told the interviewer.

Unpaid Director

Penney retired from active management in 1958 but still serves as an unpaid director. Associates say he appears almost daily at his 45th-floor office at Penney's Manhattan headquarters. The rest of his time is divided between his Park Avenue apartment, a dairy farm in New York's Duchess County and a country home in Connecticut. Twice a widower, he is now married to the former Caroline Autenreith of New York.

Penney said he spends most of his office time answering letters from Penney customers and business associates.

"I answer them all myself," he said. "I wouldn't have it any other way."

Penney cut his hand-picked store managers in for a share of profits and insisted they run the stores themselves—a practice the chain still follows.

'Tough Hiring'

"I was tough hiring a man to run a store but once I hired him I'd trust him to the ends of the earth," recalled Penney, standing erect on his 5-foot-8½, 180-pound frame.

Born in Hamilton, Mo., the son of a poor farmer who was also a Baptist preacher, Penney never smoke or drank and wouldn't hire a manager who did either. He is still a great believer in first impressions and recalled how he would take a prospective manager to lunch to size him up.

"I wouldn't hire a man who salted his meat before he tasted it," said Penney. "How could he know what it would taste like?"

He wears low-priced Penney suits and admonishes Penney employes to save money by turning off lights.

How did he feel looking back on his poverty-to-riches career from his skyscraper Manhattan office?"

"Well, I guess I never wanted to be mediocre," said J. C. Penney.

Wide Range In August Temps; 109 At Merriman

Temperatures in Nebraska during August ranged from a low of 33 degrees near Hay Springs, to a high of 109 degrees at Merriman, the monthly climatic summary of the Lincoln Weather Bureau showed Wednesday.

Over-all, however, August was a cool month with temperatures averaging below normal throughout the state, the report said.

August precipitation averaged below normal in all divisions of the state except the central and southwest. It was the first time in four months that rainfall fell short of normal in these other divisions.

For the five-month period of April through August, however, rainfall has exceeded normal in all sections of the state. South central Nebraska has received 23.03 inches during the period, 8.10 inches above normal.

Friends Wonderful In Betsy Aftermath

New Orleans, La. (AP)—"Our friends mean more to us than money or anything in the world," said Mrs. Robert M. Servo. "They're wonderful."

Mrs. Servo credits her friends with indirectly saving the life of her ailing husband in the flooding aftermath of Hurricane Betsy's vicious surge through New Orleans last week.

She returned to the sidewalk in front of her water-soaked, uninhabitable home in suburban Carolyn Park Wednesday for the first time since her family was evacuated Saturday after being trapped by high water a day and a half.

Husband Critical

Her husband lies in critical condition in a hospital, suffering from pneumonia and other complications of an Aug. 3 operation for cancer.

"My husband was at home, recuperating from the operation," she said. "We thought the danger had passed when the hurricane itself moved out of our area Thursday night.

"Water started rising Friday. It came up so fast we didn't have a chance to get out.

"My husband got out of bed and started working in the water, trying to put our good things up in high places. He should have stayed in bed if it had been possible. But pretty soon the bed was underwater.

"Finally, we got up in the attic and waited. We thought help would never come," Mrs. Servo related.

Daughter In Ordeal

She and her husband were joined in the ordeal by their 16-year-old daughter. Another daughter is married and lives away from home.

An Army amphibious vehicle rescued the Servos Saturday night.

"Friends of ours who knew my husband's condition waved the rescue boat on by their own houses so they could get to us first," Mrs. Servo said.

Her husband was taken to a hospital, where doctors said he was critically ill from working in the water at his home.

"He was a sick man before the hurricane hit," Mrs. Servo quoted a physician as saying.

In Hotel

She is living in a downtown hotel with her daughter.

Mrs. Servo visited her neighborhood for the first time since the storm Wednesday. She often dabbed tears away with a clenched handkerchief.

"We're thankful we didn't lose our lives. Think of the poor dead little children.

"I pray to God they'll do something so this won't ever happen again," she said.

Iowa Train, Car Wreck Claims Five

Stuart, Iowa (AP)—Five persons were reported killed when a Rock Island freight train and a car collided Wednesday at a downtown intersection in Stuart, about 40 miles west of Des Moines.

The dead were identified as Mrs. Dorothy Rohwer, 74, and her son Donald Woodward, estimated to be 45 or 50, both of Menlo; Harold Jones, 51, and his wife, Vada, 50, both of Stuart, and Raymond Green, about 50, of Greenfield.

Authorities said they did not know who was driving.

Charles Kinnan of Stuart, who went to the scene, said three bodies had been removed from the wreckage when he arrived and a fourth still was in the car. He said a fifth body had fallen from the car before it stopped.

The train carried the car about seven-tenths of a mile along the track, Kinnan said.

The automobile had to be pulled away from the front end of the locomotive before the last body could be removed.

The car unofficially was reported to be registered to a Stuart man.

The eastbound train does not normally stop at Stuart.

Chadron Getting CD Emergency Hospital Friday

Chadron (UPI)—A Civil Defense emergency hospital is due to arrive here Friday.

The hospital has been obtained through the Civil Defense organization. The equipment will include facilities for a 200-bed $45,000 hospital.

The equipment will be stored on the Chadron State College campus, and the hospital will be set up on the campus if an emergency arises.

Dawes County Civil Defense Director Robert Zeman and the hospital director, Dr. R. H. Rasmussen of Chadron, are seeking volunteers to operate the hospital, which will require a staff of nearly 300 under a full emergency situation.

Discrimination Claimed

Washington (UPI) — A total of 214 complaints charging job discrimination were filed with the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission.

Negro Protest Denied By House Committee

Washington (AP)—The House Administration Committee Wednesday approved a subcommittee recommendation to dismiss a challenge by Mississippi Negroes against the state's five congressmen.

By a 19-5 vote, it adopted the subcommittee's report without substantial change.

Included was language saying there was no intention to foreclose the House from unseating incumbent members. The report also recommended a committee review of procedures for handling such cases in the future, particularly if they involve violations of the voting rights act.

Final action on the matter is expected in the House Friday.

Rep. Augustus F. Hawkins, D-Calif., a Negro committee member, said he expects the House vote will be about the same as a test vote in January by which the five congressmen were seated temporarily pending the outcome of the challenge. That vote was 276 to 149.

Three Contentions

Hawkins said he would file a minority report centering on three basic contentions:

—That the question of disfranchisement of Negroes in the Mississippi elections was "clearly a matter of record."

—That the fact that the challengers were not candidates in the general election was "not a valid issue" on the ground that intimidation and harassment kept prospective Negro candidates from registering.

—That the committee should hold adequate public hearings on the case.

The subcommittee and committee hearings were held in closed session. Capitol police barred reporters and the public from the corridor leading to the committee room.

Party Protests

About 200 members of the Mississippi Freedom Democratic Party, almost all Negroes, appeared at the Capitol the first day protesting that the hearings should be public, but soon left.

It was learned that the five committee members opposing the committee action were Reps. Hawkins, Lucien N. Nedzi, D-Mich., Samuel N. Friedel, D-Md., Jonathan B. Bingham, D-N.Y., and John Brademas, D-Ind., who voted by proxy.

The challengers, led by Mrs. Fannie Lou Hamer, contended the white congressmen were elected illegally. They said Negroes were systematically excluded from the polls.

The congressmen argued that the challengers were no candidates in the general election and by House precedent and tradition were not proper persons to file a contest.

The congressmen are Reps. William Colmer, Jamie Whitten, Thomas G. Abernethy, and John Bell Williams, Democrats, and Prentiss Walker, Republican.

Motors Pace Advance In Stock Market

New York (AP)—The surging motors paced the stock market in a vigorous advance Wednesday. Trading was active.

The performance was an unexpected reversal of Tuesday's loss which cut a string of eight advances.

The market gained from the start, reached its peak about midday, eased off and then came back somewhat.

Motors were helped by a report of bigger than expected new car sales in the first 10 days of September, and an announcement by Chrysler Corp. of a big expansion program to meet the demand for cars.

In addition to the motors, steels, aircrafts and rails were strong.

The Associated Press 60-stock average advanced 1.8 to 339.3 with industrials up 3.7, rails up .2 and utilities up .5.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials spurted 6.36 to 922.95.

Of 1,402 issues traded, 668 rose and 486 fell. New 1965 highs topped new lows 46 to 18.

Volume dropped to 6.22 million shares from 7.84 million Tuesday.

A seat on the New York Stock Exchange was sold for $225,000, a new high for the year, indicating rising interest in the market.

Chrysler, up 2⅝ at 52⅝ on 140,700 shares, was the most-active stock. Ford Motor, up 2½ at 57 on 107,800 shares, was second.

Prices advanced on the American Stock Exchange. Volume contracted to 1.65 million shares from 2.05 million Tuesday.

Corporate bonds were mixed and Treasuries declined.

Social Security Benefit Checks Now Being Sent

Washington (AP) — Mailing of retroactive benefit checks totaling some $885 million to about 20.5 million Social Security beneficiaries began Wednesday.

Robert M. Ball Social Security commissioner said most beneficiaries will receive their checks in a few days.

He said checks are being mailed from six treasury disbursing offices—in New York, Philadelphia, Birmingham, Chicago, Kansas City and San Francisco.

The payments represent the seven per cent increase retroactive to Jan. 1, provided in the Social Security amendments signed into law July 30 by President Johnson.

The checks cover the increase for the months of January through August.

Ball said they will average about $48 for single retired workers, $80 for aged couples, $40 for aged widows, $112 for a widow with two children, $56 for disabled workers and $104 or more for the average disabled worker with a wife and one or more children.

The regular monthly Social Security checks to be mailed early in October will reflect the increase. These checks cover benefits for September. The total monthly increase will be about $100 million.

Ball urged that beneficiaries be on the lookout for their retroactive checks as well as their regular checks and remove them from their mailboxes promptly.

"We have been working closely withthe Secret Service to prevent thefts and subsequent illegal cashing of Social Security checks," Ball said.

The Secret Service said that thousands of government checks fail to reach the people entitled to them each year because the checks are stolen, endorsements forged and the checks cashed by thieves posing as rightful owners.

Wide Range In August Temps; 109 At Merriman

Temperatures in Nebraska during August ranged from a low of 33 degrees near Hay Springs, to a high of 109 degrees at Merriman, the monthly climatic summary of the Lincoln Weather Bureau showed Wednesday.

Over-all, however, August was a cool month with temperatures averaging below normal throughout the state, the report said.

August precipitation averaged below normal in all divisions of the state except the central and southwest. It was the first time in four months that rainfall fell short of normal in these other divisions.

For the five-month period of April through August, however, rainfall has exceeded normal in all sections of the state. South central Nebraska has received 23.03 inches during the period, 8.10 inches above normal.

J. C. PENNEY . . . alert despite failing eyes and ears, sits in office.

J. C. Penney Looks Forward To 100 On His 90th Birthday

New York (AP) — James Cash Penney, a farmer's son who founded a nationwide store chain, celebrates his 90th birthday Thursday.

Penney, alert and dapper despite failing sight and hearing, will be honored by major retailing executives at a birthday luncheon. Cakes also will be cut at 1,673 J. C. Penney department stores for the chain's 56,000 employes.

"I expect to live to be 100," said Penney in an interview, patting down his carefully combed white hair and smoothing his small, brush-like mustache. "My doctor tells me I'm good for it."

63 Years Ago

It was 63 years ago that Penney scraped together $2,000 and opened his first apparel and dry goods shop in the mining town of Kemmerer, Wyo., calling it the "Golden Rule Store." At a time when most small-town merchants aimed at big profits from small sales, Penney attracted a volume business by buying in bulk and selling cheaply. His success led to a chain of J. C. Penney stores.

For its 1964-65 fiscal year, J. C. Penney Inc., logged more than $2 billion in sales, second only to Sears, Roebuck & Co. among nonfood chains.

Penney still carries a retail clerk's sharpened pencil in his suit breast pocket and pumps a visitor's arm with a salesman's handshake. He said his vision has dimmed so he no longer can read or make out facial features — but he can run his practiced storekeeper's eye over a stranger and tell him exactly what size suit he wears.

"You take a size 40 long," he correctly told the interviewer.

Unpaid Director

Penney retired from active management in 1958 but still serves as an unpaid director. Associates say he appears almost daily at his 45th-floor office at Penney's Manhattan headquarters. The rest of his time is divided between his Park Avenue apartment, a dairy farm in New York's Duchess County and a country home in Connecticut. Twice a widower, he is now married to the former Caroline Autenreith of New York.

Penney said he spends most of his office time answering letters from Penney customers and business associates.

"I answer them all myself," he said. "I wouldn't have it any other way."

Penney cut his hand-picked store managers in for a share of profits and insisted they run the stores themselves—a practice the chain still follows.

'Tough Hiring'

"I was tough hiring a man to run a store but once I hired him I'd trust him to the ends of the earth," recalled Penney, standing erect on his 5-foot-8½, 180-pound frame.

Born in Hamilton, Mo., the son of a poor farmer who was also a Baptist preacher, Penney never smoke or drank and wouldn't hire a manager who did either. He is still a great believer in first impressions and recalled how he would take a prospective manager to lunch to size him up.

"I wouldn't hire a man who salted his meat before he tasted it," said Penney. "How could he know what it would taste like?"

He wears low-priced Penney suits and admonishes Penney employes to save money by turning off lights.

How did he feel looking back on his poverty-to-riches career from his skyscraper Manhattan office?"

"Well, I guess I never wanted to be mediocre," said J. C. Penney.

Iowa Train, Car Wreck Claims Five

Stuart, Iowa (AP)—Five persons were reported killed when a Rock Island freight train and a car collided Wednesday at a downtown intersection in Stuart, about 40 miles west of Des Moines.

The dead were identified as Mrs. Dorothy Rohwer, 74, and her son Donald Woodward, estimated to be 45 or 50, both of Menlo; Harold Jones, 51, and his wife, Vada, 50, both of Stuart, and Raymond Green, about 50, of Greenfield.

Authorities said they did not know who was driving.

Charles Kinnan of Stuart, who went to the scene, said three bodies had been removed from the wreckage when he arrived and a fourth still was in the car. He said a fifth body had fallen from the car before it stopped.

The train carried the car about seven-tenths of a mile along the track, Kinnan said.

The automobile had to be pulled away from the front end of the locomotive before the last body could be removed.

The car unofficially was reported to be registered to a Stuart man.

The eastbound train does not normally stop at Stuart.

Chadron Getting CD Emergency Hospital Friday

Chadron (UPI)—A Civil Defense emergency hospital is due to arrive here Friday.

The hospital has been obtained through the Civil Defense organization. The equipment will include facilities for a 200 bed $45,000 hospital.

The equipment will be stored on the Chadron State College campus, and the hospital will be set up on the campus if an emergency arises.

Dawes County Civil Defense Director Robert Zeman and the hospital director, Dr. R. H. Rasmussen of Chadron, are seeking volunteers to operate the hospital, which will require a staff of nearly 300 under a full emergency situation.

REFUGEE . . . Mrs. Servo fights back tears.

Friends Wonderful In Betsy Aftermath

New Orleans, La. (AP)—"Our friends mean more to us than money or anything in the world," said Mrs. Robert M. Servo. "They're wonderful."

Mrs. Servo credits her friends with indirectly saving the life of her ailing husband in the flooding aftermath of Hurricane Betsy's vicious surge through New Orleans last week.

She returned to the sidewalk in front of her water-soaked, uninhabitable home in suburban Carolyn Park Wednesday for the first time since her family was evacuated Saturday after being trapped by high water a day and a half.

Husband Critical

Her husband lies in critical condition in a hospital, suffering from pneumonia and other complications of an Aug. 3 operation for cancer.

"My husband was at home, recuperating from the operation," she said. "We thought the danger had passed when the hurricane itself moved out of our area Thursday night.

"Water started rising Friday. It came up so fast we didn't have a chance to get out.

My husband got out of bed and started working in the water, trying to put our good things up in high places. He should have stayed in bed if it had been possible. But pretty soon the bed was underwater.

"Finally, we got up in the attic and waited. We thought help would never come," Mrs. Servo related.

Daughter In Ordeal

She and her husband were joined in the ordeal by their 16-year-old daughter. Another daughter is married and lives away from home.

An Army amphibious vehicle rescued the Servos Saturday night.

"Friends of ours who knew my husband's condition waved the rescue boat on by their own houses so they could get to us first," Mrs. Servo said.

Her husband was taken to a hospital, where doctors said he was critically ill from working in the water at his home.

"He was a sick man before the hurricane hit," Mrs. Servo quoted a physician as saying.

In Hotel

She is living in a downtown hotel with her daughter.

Mrs. Servo visited her neighborhood for the first time since the storm Wednesday. She often dabbed tears away with a clenched handkerchief.

"We're thankful we didn't lose our lives. Think of the poor dead little children.

"I pray to God they'll do something so this won't ever happen again," she said.

Negro Protest Denied By House Committee

Washington (AP)—The House Administration Committee Wednesday approved a subcommittee recommendation to dismiss a challenge by Mississippi Negroes against the state's five congressmen.

By a 19-5 vote, it adopted the subcommittee's report without substantial change.

Included was language saying there was no intention to foreclose the House from unseating incumbent members. The report also recommended a committee review of procedures for handling such cases in the future, particularly if they involve violations of the voting rights act.

Final action on the matter is expected in the House Friday.

Rep. Augustus F. Hawkins, D-Calif., a Negro committee member, said he expects the House vote will be about the same as a test vote in January by which the five congressmen were seated temporarily pending the outcome of the challenge. That vote was 276 to 149.

Three Contentions

Hawkins said he would file a minority report centering on three basic contentions:

—That the question of disfranchisement of Negroes in the Mississippi elections was "clearly a matter of record."

—That the fact that the challengers were not candidates in the general election was "not a valid issue" on the ground that intimidation and harassment kept prospective Negro candidates from registering.

—That the committee should hold adequate public hearings on the case.

The subcommittee and committee hearings were held in closed session. Capitol police barred reporters and the public from the corridor leading to the committee room.

Party Protests

About 200 members of the Mississippi Freedom Democratic Party, almost all Negroes, appeared at the Capitol the first day protesting that the hearings should be public, but soon left.

It was learned that the five committee members opposing the committee action were Reps. Hawkins, Lucien N. Nedzi, D-Mich., Samuel N. Friedel, D-Md., Jonathan B. Bingham, D-N.Y., and John Brademas, D-Ind., who voted by proxy.

The challengers, led by Mrs. Fannie Lou Hamer, contended the white congressmen were elected illegally. They said Negroes were systematically excluded from the polls.

The congressmen argued that the challengers were no candidates in the general election and by House precedent and tradition were not proper persons to file a contest.

The congressmen are Reps. William Colmer, Jamie Whitten, Thomas G. Abernethy, and John Bell Williams, Democrats, and Prentiss Walker, Republican.

Self-Contained Heart Is Near

Washington (AP)—A self-contained unit to replace the human heart may be developed within five years, a National Heart Institute official said Wednesday.

The unit, with a power supply included, would be implanted within the chest.

It may be many years, however, before such a device is available to large numbers of patients.

The official, Dr. Frank Hastings, said in an interview, "We are only in the conceptual stage. Five years is our goal. However, we realize that it is only a goal. There are some major problems to be overcome."

A report by the Army's Harry Diamond Laboratories said some authorities believe an implantable heart may be available to some patients within ten years.

Calves Kept Alive

The report, published by the Commerce Department's Clearing House for Scientific Information, said implantable artificial hearts had been used to keep two calves alive for almost 24 hours.

However, in these experiments the power supply was outside the body and control valves, although implanted, were separated from the blood pumping device.

A major accomplishment of the Harry Diamond Laboratories was the development of a switching and control device which has no moving mechanical parts. These devices operate on compressed air or gas and were developed primarily for space and defense projects.

Heart pumps developed by the Army laboratory were used in the experiments with the calves, which were conducted recently at the Cleveland clinic by Dr. Willem Kolff, a leading researcher in the artificial heart field.

Many Years

In indicating it may be many years before a feasible artificial heart is available to a great number of patients at a reasonable cost, Hastings said:

"It depends on whether you are talking about a temporary device or one which really rehabilitates the patient. The artificial kidney will keep a person alive but he must remain in a hospital. And the cost is about $9,000 per year.

"By developing a device that would operate only temporarily, it might go from a bad situation to an intolerable one. We would like to develop something which would rehabilitate the patient."

The two major needs, he said, are a small, reliable power unit which can be implanted in the chest, and materials which can be placed within the body without harming it.

An Army scientist said an atomic battery three inches in diameter and seven to eight inches long has been developed and could be made smaller. Its life is three to four years.

Hastings said scientists have rejected the idea of an artificial heart powered by battery located outside the body.

Committee Votes Armed Services Insurance Policy

Washington (AP)—Each member of the armed services would be able to buy a $10,000 group life insurance policy for $2 a month under a bill approved Wednesday by the House Veterans Affairs Committee.

The proposed group life insurance, to be handled by private companies, would cover all members of the "uniformed services" — Army, Navy, Air Force, Marine Corps, Coast Guard, Public Health Service, and Environmental Science Services Administration.

The program would permit a serviceman to convert the policy after his discharge without a medical examination.

The proposed group plan would be in addition to any U.S. government life insurance or national life insurance a serviceman might hold.

Lincoln Man Is Named To Iowa Entomology Post

Des Moines (AP)—The appointment of Gale B. Mast of Lincoln, Neb., as state entomologist was announced Wednesday by Iowa Secretary of Agriculture Kenneth E. Owen.

Mast will take over the $12,000 a year job Oct. 15. He currently is an agricultural research entomologist with the Geigy Chemical Corp. headquartered in Yonkers, N.Y.

He fills a vacancy left by the resignation of Dr. Wilfred Graig to accept a position with the entomology extension division of Missouri.

A native of Emerson, Neb., Mast is married and has three children.

Race For Big Prize Still Wide Open

Washington (AP)—It's still a wide-open race for almost every state to land what one governor terms "the scientific prize of the century," a proposed $348-million atom-smasher machine.

And as the government Wednesday announced only a modest carving down of original site proposals, the frenetic contestants vie for a device whose construction hasn't as yet been authorized by Congress, to say nothing of appropriating the millions it will cost.

But officials of the Atomic Energy Commission indicated they hope to include an initial request for construction funds in the budget for fiscal year 1967 — and to make a final site selection by next February.

126 Down To 85

The AEC, after months of study, announced it has selected 85 proposals for further evaluation from among an original 126 — the latter representing more than 200 sites in all states except Alaska, Hawaii, Delaware, Vermont and New Hampshire. New Hampshire teamed up with Maine on a joint proposal for locating the big machine at a site in Maine near the New Hampshire border.

The reduced list still includes locations in 43 states, and thus the months ahead loom as cliff-hangers for survivors in the quest for what Gov. Roger D. Branigan of Indiana has termed the "scientific prize of the century."

A Republican congressman, Rep. Craig Hosmer of California, termed the AEC's site selection methods so badly bungled it should start all over, and an AEC official denied a report published in Houston, Tex., that only 30 or 35 sites were actually being considered.

200 BEV Accelerator

The proposed device—whose acquisition would mean a rich payoff in payrolls and prestige for the community landing it — is technically known as a 200-billion-electron-volt "proton accelerator."

It would be the world's largest and most powerful atom-smashing machine. To be shaped like a giant merry-go-round, nearly a mile in diameter, it will require eight years to build and cost about $60 million a year to run. Approximately 2,300 scientists and other technicians will be needed to run it, and about 1,000 more are expected to visit it yearly to perform experiments.

The monster machine is seen as science's most powerful weapon for exploring the fundamental secrets of nature. That's a quest which proponents of atom-smashing machines say might eventually have a rich practical payoff, from developing new sources of energy to making new advances in medicine and even in weather control.

The AEC announced it has referred the list of 85 proposals to a special site-selection committee of the National Academy of Sciences, headed by Dr. Emanuel R. Piore of New York.

It will be the committee's job to pare the list to some three or four from which the AEC — presumably with White House concurrence — will make a final selection.

On Down To 30

For weeks, AEC spokesmen had been saying the commission expected to carve the original list down to about 30, but one said Wednesday that the furnishing of supplementary information by various contestants left the commission with 85 proposals that met the AEC's basic criteria for site selection.

The AEC said the academy committee already has started sending site-inspection groups to visit some of the proposed locations.

It was disclosed the AEC has turned over the entire 126 original proposals to the committee. But a high AEC official told a reporter that, as regards the 41 proposals not included in the AEC's priority list, "it's not likely that any further information" would be forthcoming that would help them get back in for consideration.

Sidney Taken Off A-Smasher List

Washington (UPI)—A number of communities across the U.S. were stricken from the list of possible sites for a proposed $300 million atom smasher.

Among the cities eliminated by the Atomic Energy Commission were Sidney, Neb.; Parsons, Kan., and New Hampton, Iowa.

Mead, Neb., Ordnance Plant remains on the list.

Gross Describes Belly-Dancers

Washington (AP)—In 40 well-chosen words—some such jawbreakers the House Clerk had difficulty reading them—Rep. H. R. Gross, R-Iowa, tried Wednesday to give encouragement to belly-dancers.

He sought to do this by amending the administration's proposal to create a National Foundation on the Arts and Humanities. Gross said he didn't like it and didn't think it is necessary but if it is to become law it should not discriminate among the arts.

His amendment, which he said is designed to take care of belly-dancers, described that art as:

"The irregular jactitations and-or rhythmic contraction and coordinated relaxations of the serrati, obliques, and abdominis recti group of muscles, accompanied by rotatory undulations, tilts, and turns timed with and attuned to the titillating and blended tones of synchronous woodwinds."

The House apparently didn't understand, so it defeated the amendment by voice vote.

It also defeated a gross proposal to include in the definition of arts poker and pinochle players, football and baseball players and other outdoor sportsmen.

Mayor's Salary Should Go Up, Says Sorensen

Omaha (AP)—Omaha Mayor A. V. Sorensen doesn't think the job pays what it should.

Mayor Sorensen gave that comment to the city charter study committee. The present charter gives the mayor a minimum of $17,500 a year and that's what Sorensen gets.

Sorensen's 1965-66 salary is pledged to the South Omaha Boys Club, the mayor said.

Sorensen also said he thought councilmen ought to get more than they draw now. Present pay is $3,000 for council members and $3,600 for the council president.

The mayor noted that the present charger permits the council to raise salaries but not for the current term of a member, and, said Sorensen, it is his thought that no raises could be made without a vote of the people.

Sorensen has recommended to the council a salary of $18,000 in 1966 for the city public works director — more than the mayor would get.

Woman Teller Defies Would-Be Bank Bandit

Newark, N.J. (AP)—A brave woman bank teller defied a holdup man Wednesday, forcing him to flee empty-handed from the Security National Bank with two bank executives chasing him.

The would-be hold-up man shook off his pursuers in the city subway station at Broad Street and Raymond Boulevard in crowded downtown Newark.

He had led the bank's president and vice president through several stores and the Prudential Insurance Co. Building lobby during the three-block chase.

The teller Helen Reardon, said a tall soft-spoken man approached her window and placed a paper coffee bag and a note on the counter.

The penciled note said: "Fill-bag. Large bills fast."

Mrs. Reardon said the man told her: "I have a gun. If you don't fill it up fast, I'm going to shoot you."

"You are not getting my money," she said bravely.

Mrs. Reardon, an attractive middle-aged woman, said the man then put his elbows on the chest-high counter, and had what appeared to be a gun sticking out at her from between his fingers.

Mrs. Reardon said she thought it looked like a toy so she grabbed the man's hand and yelled for William Barlow, bank vice president. The hold-up man wheeled and fled as Barlow started after him. Bank President Oliver Herttua also took up the chase, and was about 40 feet behind Barlow.

During the chase, Barlow shouted to several men to stop a revolving door before the hold-up man got to it. One attempted to do so, but the bandid slipped by him. The hold-up man took his gun with him, but left the bag and note on the counter.

Mrs. Reardon said later she was frightened at first, but not after she noticed the gun did not appear real.

Motors Pace Advance In Stock Market

New York (AP)—The surging motors paced the stock market in a vigorous advance Wednesday. Trading was active.

The performance was an unexpected reversal of Tuesday's loss which cut a string of eight advances.

The market gained from the start, reached its peak about midday, eased off and then came back somewhat.

Motors were helped by a report of bigger than expected new car sales in the first 10 days of September, and an announcement by Chrysler Corp. of a big expansion program to meet the demand for cars.

In addition to the motors, steels, aircrafts and rails were strong.

The Associated Press 60-stock average advanced 1.8 to 339.3 with industrials up 2.7, rails up .2 and utilities up .5.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials spurted 6.36 to 922.95.

Standard & Poor's 500-stock index, representing 85% of the value of stocks listed on the New York Stock Exchange, rose .49 to 89.52.

Of 1,402 issues traded, 668 rose and 486 fell. New 1965 highs topped new lows 46 to 18.

Volume dropped to 6.22 million shares from 7.84 million Tuesday.

A seat on the New York Stock Exchange was sold for $225,000, a new high for the year, indicating rising interest in the market.

Chrysler, up 2⅝ at 52¾ on 140,700 shares, was the most-active stock. Ford Motor, up 2⅛ at 57 on 107,800 shares, was second.

Prices advanced on the American Stock Exchange. Volume contracted to 1.65 million shares from 2.05 million Tuesday.

Corporate bonds were mixed and Treasuries declined.

Self-Contained Heart Is Near

Washington (AP)—A self-contained unit to replace the human heart may be developed within five years, a National Heart Institute official said Wednesday

The unit with a power supply included, would be implanted within the chest

It may be many years, however before such a device is available to large numbers of patients

The official, Dr. Frank Hastings, said in an interview, "We are only in the conceptual stage. Five years is our goal. However, we realize that it is only a goal. There are some major problems to be overcome."

A report by the Army's Harry Diamond Laboratories said some authorities believe an implantable heart may be available to some patients within ten years.

Calves Kept Alive

The report, published by the Commerce Department's Clearing House for Scientific Information, said implantable artificial hearts had been used to keep two calves alive for almost 24 hours.

However, in these experiments the power supply was outside the body and control valves, although implanted, were separated from the blood pumping device.

A major accomplishment of the Harry Diamond Laboratories was the development of a switching and control device which has no moving mechanical parts. These devices operate on compressed air or gas and were developed primarily for space and defense projects.

Heart pumps developed by the Army laboratory were used in the experiments with the calves, which were conducted recently at the Cleveland clinic by Dr. Willem Kolff, a leading researcher in the artificial heart field.

Many Tears

In indicating it may be many years before a feasible artificial heart is available to a great number of patients at a reasonable cost, Hastings said:

"It depends on whether you are talking about a temporary device or one which really rehabilitates the patient. The artificial kidney will keep a person alive but he must remain in a hospital. And the cost is about $9,000 per year.

"By developing a device that would operate only temporarily, it might go from a bad situation to an intolerable one. We would like to develop something which would rehabilitate the patient."

The two major needs, he said, are a small, reliable power unit which can be implanted in the chest, and materials which can be placed within the body without harming it.

An Army scientist said an atomic battery three inches in diameter and seven to eight inches long has been developed and could be made smaller. Its life is three to four years.

Hastings said scientists have rejected the idea of an artificial heart powered by battery located outside the body.

Committee Votes Armed Services Insurance Policy

Washington (AP)—Each member of the armed services would be able to buy a $10,000 group life insurance policy for $2 a month under a bill approved Wednesday by the House Veterans Affairs Committee.

The proposed group life insurance, to be handled by private companies, would cover all members of the "uniformed services" — Army, Navy, Air Force, Marine Corps, Coast Guard, Public Health Service, and Environmental Science Services Administration.

The program would permit a serviceman to convert the policy after his discharge without a medical examination

The proposed group plan would be in addition to any U S government life insurance or national life insurance a serviceman might hold

Lincoln Man Is Named To Iowa Entomology Post

Des Moines (AP)—The appointment of Gale B. Mast of Lincoln, Neb., as state entomologist was announced Wednesday by Iowa Secretary of Agriculture Kenneth E. Owen.

Mast will take over the $12,000 a year job Oct. 15. He currently is an agricultural research entomologist with the Geigy Chemical Corp. headquartered in Yonkers, N.Y.

He fills a vacancy left by the resignation of Dr. Wilfred Graig to accept a position with the entomology extension division of Missouri.

A native of Emerson, Neb., Mast is married and has three children.

Race For Big Prize Still Wide Open

Washington (AP)—It's still a wide-open race for almost every state to land what one governor terms "the scientific prize of the century," a proposed $348-million atom-smasher machine

And as the government Wednesday announced only a modest carving down of original site proposals, the frenetic contestants vie for a device whose construction hasn't as yet been authorized by Congress, to say nothing of appropriating the millions it will cost.

But officials of the Atomic Energy Commission indicated they hope to include an initial request for construction funds in the budget for fiscal year 1967 — and to make a final site selection by next February.

126 Down To 85

The AEC, after months of study, announced it has selected 85 proposals for further evaluation from among an original 126 — the latter representing more than 200 sites in all states except Alaska, Hawaii, Delaware, Vermont and New Hampshire. New Hampshire teamed up with Maine on a joint proposal for locating the big machine at a site in Maine near the New Hampshire border.

The reduced list still includes locations in 43 states, and thus the months ahead loom as cliff-hangers for survivors in the quest for what Gov. Roger D. Branigan of Indiana has termed the "scientific prize of the century."

A Republican congressman, Rep. Craig Hosmer of California, termed the AEC's site selection methods so badly bungled it should start all over, and an AEC official denied a report published in Houston, Tex., that only 30 or 35 sites were actually being considered.

200 BEV Accelerator

The proposed device—whose acquisition would mean a rich payoff in payrolls and prestige for the community landing it — is technically known as a 200-billion-electron-volt "proton accelerator."

It would be the world's largest and most powerful atom-smashing machine. To be shaped like a giant merry-go-round, nearly a mile in diameter, it will require eight years to build and cost about $60 million a year to run. Approximately 2,300 scientists and other technicians will be needed to run it, and about 1,000 more are expected to visit it yearly to perform experiments.

The monster machine is seen as science's most powerful weapon for exploring the fundamental secrets of nature. That's a quest which proponents of atom-smashing machines say might eventually have a rich practical payoff, from developing new sources of energy to making new advances in medicine and even in weather control.

The AEC announced it has referred the list of 85 proposals to a special site-selection committee of the National Academy of Sciences, headed by Dr. Emanuel R. Piore of New York.

It will be the committee's job to pare the list to some three or four from which the AEC — presumably with White House concurrence — will make a final selection.

On Down To 30

For weeks, AEC spokesmen had been saying the commission expected to carve the original list down to about 30, but one said Wednesday that the furnishing of supplementary information by various contestants left the commission with 85 proposals that met the AEC's basic criteria for site selection.

The AEC said the academy committee already has started sending site-inspection groups to visit some of the proposed locations.

It was disclosed the AEC has turned over the entire 126 original proposals to the committee. But a high AEC official told a reporter that, as regards the 41 proposals not included in the AEC's priority list, "it's not likely that any further information" would be forthcoming that would help them get back in for consideration.

Sidney Taken Off A-Smasher List

Washington (UPI)—A number of communities across the U.S. were stricken from the list of possible sites for a proposed $300 million atom smasher.

Among the cities eliminated by the Atomic Energy Commission were Sidney, Neb.; Parsons, Kan., and New Hampton, Iowa.

Mead, Neb., Ordnance Plant remains on the list.

Gross Describes Belly-Dancers

Washington (AP)—In 40 well-chosen words—some such jawbreakers the House Clerk had difficulty reading them—Rep H R. Gross, R-Iowa, tried Wednesday to give encouragement to belly-dancers.

He sought to do this by amending the administration's proposal to create a National Foundation on the Arts and Humanities. Gross said he didn't like it and didn't think it is necessary but if it is to become law it should not discriminate among the arts.

His amendment, which he said is designed to take care of belly-dancers, described that art as

"The irregular jactitations and-or rhythmic contraction and coordinated relaxations of the serrati, obliques, and abdominis recti group of muscles, accompanied by rotatory undulations, tilts, and turns timed with and attuned to the titillating and blended tones of synchronous woodwinds."

The House apparently didn't understand, so it defeated the amendment by voice vote.

It also defeated a gross proposal to include in the definition of arts poker and pinochle players, football and baseball players and other outdoor sportsmen.

Mayor's Salary Should Go Up, Says Sorensen

Omaha (AP)—Omaha Mayor A. V. Sorensen doesn't think the job pays what it should.

Mayor Sorensen gave that comment to the city charter study committee. The present charter gives the mayor a minimum of $17,500 a year and that's what Sorensen gets.

Sorensen's 1965-66 salary is pledged to the South Omaha Boys Club, the mayor said.

Sorensen also said he thought councilmen ought to get more than they draw now. Present pay is $3,000 for council members and $3,600 for the council president.

The mayor noted that the present charger permits the council to raise salaries but not for the current term of a member, and, said Sorensen, it is his thought that no raises could be made without a vote of the people.

Sorensen has recommended to the council a salary of $18,000 in 1966 for the city public works director — more than the mayor would get.

Woman Teller Defies Would-Be Bank Bandit

Newark, N.J. (AP)—A brave woman bank teller defied a holdup man Wednesday, forcing him to flee empty-handed from the Security National Bank with two bank executives chasing him.

The would-be hold-up man shook off his pursuers in the city subway station at Broad Street and Raymond Boulevard in crowded downtown Newark.

He had led the bank's president and vice president through several stores and the Prudential Insurance Co. Building lobby during the three-block chase.

The teller Helen Reardon, said a tall soft-spoken man approached her window and placed a paper coffee bag and a note on the counter

The penciled note said "Fill bag Large bills fast"

Mrs Reardon said the man told her "I have a gun If you don't fill it up fast, I'm going to shoot you"

"You are not getting my money," she said bravely.

Mrs. Reardon, an attractive middle-aged woman, said the man then put his elbows on the chest-high counter, and had what appeared to be a gun sticking out at her from between his fingers.

Mrs. Reardon said she thought it looked like a toy so she grabbed the man's hand and yelled for William Barlow, bank vice president. The holdup man wheeled and fled as Barlow started after him. Bank President Oliver Herttua also took up the chase, and was about 40 feet behind Barlow.

During the chase, Barlow shouted to several men to stop a revolving door before the hold-up man got to it. One attempted to do so, but the bandid slipped by him. The holdup man took his gun with him, but left the bag and note on the counter

Mrs Reardon said later she was frightened at first, but not after she noticed the gun did not appear real.

Watch Out For The Other Guy

Maybe you're a good driver. Many drivers aren't. So why put yourself at the mercy of some other guy's mistakes? Better to drive defensively. And expect the unexpected. After all, nearly half the drivers in fatal collisions are good drivers, and in the right. But being in the right isn't enough. You could be dead right.
